BILLION DOLLAR TARNISH DIMS SILVER POLICY

TaxpayersBearLoad of Roosevelt Loss.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 31.—[Special.]—The Roosevelt silver buying policy, from which the administration now shows signs of retreating, to date has cost the taxpayers nearly a billion dollars, it was learned today.

Of the amount thus invested in stocks of silver which are not needed in the American monetary system, more than a quarter of a billion dollars represents the net liquidating loss to the taxpayers—the difference between the price paid for the silver and the price at which it could be sold today theoretically. Actually an attempt to sell Uncle Sam's hoard of silver would depress the price so much that the net loss would come closer to half or three-quarters of a billion dollars.

Objectives Still Unattained.

Despite this colossal outpouring of public funds on a project represented as the remonetization of silver the objectives of the legislation are further from attainment than ever, while actual results have been the derangement of the internal economy of such silver money nations as China and Mexico, the inflation of the American currency, and the piling of further burdens on the American taxpayers.

The only beneficiaries have been the American silver producers, who have received a subsidy of about 60 million dollars, and the speculators at home and abroad who received 800 million dollars gross for the foreign silver they sold to the American treasury. Among those who profited handsomely were a number of Democratic politicians and others in the confidence of the administration.

On Feb. 28 last the treasury silver stocks aggregated 2,251,800,000 ounces, compared with 694,500,000 ounces on June 30, 1934, shortly after the inauguration of the silver purchase program. Thus the aggregate acquisitions of silver under the Roosevelt silver purchase program have been 1,557,300,000 ounces.

754 Million in Three Years.

According to treasury figures, the silver purchased during the fiscal years 1935, 1936, and 1937 cost $754,358,914. The average price paid was 52 cents an ounce, compared with a market price of about 43 cents an ounce.

Treasury figures on silver buying to date during the 1938 fiscal year were not obtainable, but apparently the amount purchased up to Feb. 28 was 283,145,093 ounces at an estimated cost of upwards of 165 million dollars. The total cost of the silver purchased under the Roosevelt program in a little over four years, therefore, approximates 920 million dollars.

At the market price of 43 cents an ounce today, the 1½ billion ounces of silver so far purchased is worth a little less than 670 million dollars. The net liquidating loss therefore is about 250 millions.

Foreign Purchases 800 Millions.

Of the total amount acquired, 1,382,300,000 ounces were foreign silver that cost the treasury approximately 800 million dollars and 175 million ounces were newly mined domestic silver for which about 120 million dollars was paid.

The treasury at one time was paying 81 cents an ounce for silver in the effort to carry out the purposes of the silver purchase legislation which was to bring the market price up to statutory monetary value of $1.29 an ounce or to amass a volume of silver equal to one third of the American stock of gold.

Eventually the orgy of silver speculation at the expense of American taxpayers became so noisome and the influx of gold left the treasury so much further from attaining the 25 per cent silver ratio that the administration abandoned the effort. The price paid for foreign silver eventually came down to 45 cents, while the price paid for domestic silver was maintained at 77 cents until Dec. 31 last, when the President reduced it to 64 cents.

Seeks to Bolster Peso.

In order to bolster the Mexican peso and thereby stave off a threatened financial crisis in Mexico which might bring a Fascist or communist government into power, the Roosevelt administration agreed to buy 5

LOAD DEMOCRAT PARTY GUNS FOR POLL LIST FIGHT

Order Precinct Tally in War Move.

Both factions of the Democratic party drew their battle lines last night for a fight over the register of Chicago voters in the primaries of April 12. All indications led to the prediction that a real political war will break next week.

County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki and Alexander J. McKay, his appointee as chairman of the Chicago election board, moved to ward off the increasing attacks on the freshly printed precinct poll lists and to make ready for any eventuality. In the meantime the Democratic county central committee took a step so unusual that it was considered portentous.

Orders Precinct Canvass.

Acting under telegraphic orders of Chairman P. A. Nash the regular organization threw approximately 4,000 precinct captains into a hurried house to house canvass to list the "dead" names on the precinct rolls and the names of registered voters wrongly stricken from the rolls. The orders directed that the work be completed in the next three days, a fact that became the basis for a belief that Nash and his associates contemplate drastic action of some sort early next week.

In Nash's telegrams to the ward and township leaders he instructed them to make a thorough investigation of poll registers to ascertain: [1] The number of deceased persons whose names appear. [2] The number of persons who have moved out of a precinct but whose names appear on its list. [3] The names and addresses of persons residing in a precinct and registered there, but whose names are not on the list. [4] The number and names of persons whose addresses are incorrect on the list.

Disputes Board's Figures.

"We are taking our own voters' census because the election board is unable to furnish reliable information," Nash said. "We do not intend to see legally qualified voters disfranchised and we will not permit illegally registered persons to perpetrate fraud."

Judge John Prystalski, regular organization candidate opposing Judge Jarecki, said that charges made by the aldermen substantiate remarks in his speeches in which he accused Judge Jarecki of failing to enforce the election laws and causing confusion by replacing experienced persons in the election board office with those recommended by Jarecki ward leaders.

Defending the registration machinery, McKay explained that seven weeks ago letters were sent to all of the 1,900,000 voters who came under the permanent registration system. The letters stated that if the voter's name and address were given correctly, he could disregard the letter, but if the information were incorrect he should inform the election board immediately.

Suspect Notices Sent Out.

Of the 1,900,000 letters, 267,912 were returned by mail carriers unable to locate the addressees. Suspect cards were then sent to these 267,912 persons at the same addresses, requesting them to furnish correct information to the election board. Of the 267,912, about 117,000 persons have given the board satisfactory information and are on the registration rolls while about 121,000 names will be stricken from the rolls. In the other 29,000 cases, suspect notices are outstanding.

Many did not receive the first letter, through some mischance, but did receive and reply to the suspect notice. The master cards at the election board offices, which are constantly being corrected as the voter changes address or [in case of a woman marrying] changes name, are the final word on a person's right to vote.

McKay said last night that of the 29,000 suspect notices outstanding, 11,000 were issued because of faulty naturalization records, 12,000 for faulty lodging and hotel affidavits, and 6,000 for erasure of names on applications backed by affidavits filed by party and individual canvasses. The board offices on the third floor of the city hall were crowded yesterday by hundreds of persons whose right to vote had been challenged. The deadline for hearing objections to suspect notices is tomorrow evening.

ZOO TRANSCRIBES ITS PROGRAM FOR ALL FOOLS' DAY

Every April Fool's day the zoos are swamped with calls from people who have been told to call such and such a number and ask for Mr. Fox or Mr. Lion or somebody. Of course, most of them swear and hang up when they find out it's the zoo they've called, but some don't catch on even then and insist on speaking to Mr. Lion or Mr. Fox or whoever.

In past years this has embarrassed Robert Bean, assistant director at the Brookfield zoo. He has had to explain that there are no phones in the individual cages and it will be impossible to bring Mr. Lion or Mr. Fox into the administration offices to talk.

But this year it's different. The voices of all the animals have been put on phonograph records and when the calls come in today Mr. Bean will start the turntable. Those who ask for Mr. Lion will hear "Garoomph!" Mr. Wolf will say whatever he is accustomed to say, and so on. The number is Rockwell 4750.

But if you prefer flesh and blood entertainment the dog pound will send a dog to the telephone that has been trained to bark at a command.

GIRLS FLEE NUDE STATUE OF MAN BEGGING A LIGHT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LYONS, France, March 31.—Parents of this city are demanding censorship on municipal monuments after the peculiar adventure of two working girls yesterday.

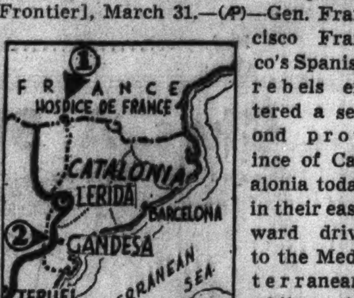
The girls stopped near the University bridge to admire the statue of former Mayor Gailleton and other pieces of sculpture which surround it. They nearly fainted when a nude man descended from one of the pedestals and approached them, raised his hand as if to tip his hat, which wasn't there, and politely asked them for a light.

The girls fled, screaming, while the male Galatea disappeared in the dusk, wading the Rhone river as other astonished spectators gathered and gaped.

The police failed to capture the mysterious nudist, nor did they determine how he managed to install himself on an empty pedestal in full view of persons walking along the busy street without being noticed.

Rebels Push Second Drive Into Catalonia

HENDAYE, France [at the Spanish Frontier], March 31.—(AP)—Gen. Francisco Franco's Spanish rebels entered a second province of Catalonia today in their eastward drive to the Mediterranean, while to the north thousands of deserting government militiamen and civilian refugees streamed toward and across the French border.



Arrows indicate where [1] refugees crossed into France and [2] rebels pushed into Tarragona province.

Navarrese troops under Gen. Garcia Valino were reported to have penetrated Tarragona and captured the village of Batea in smashing their way to a point five miles west of the important city of Gandesa.

A second column in the sector, rebel dispatches said, occupied the village of Calaceite, in eastern Teruel province, crossed into Tarragona and took the village of Caseras. Navarrese reported they had taken a government battalion composed entirely of Englishmen in the southern sector.

Report Lerida Surrounded.

To the north of these operations, Lerida, "key" to the defenses of Catalonia and 80 miles west of Barcelona, was announced by the rebels to have been surrounded. Lerida is the capital of the province of the same name, the first of the four provinces of Catalonia the rebels entered.

The rebels were strongly opposed by loyalist infantry in the western and southwestern outskirts of the city. The loyalists were said to have mined all entrances to the city.

Gandesa, goal of the Navarrese, is almost due south of Lerida, 21 miles from the Mediterranean and about 80 miles southwest of Barcelona. Southwest of Gandesa was the extreme right wing of the rebels, which was reported to have occupied the village of Fornoles and driven to within five miles of Valderrobres.

Flee Rebels' Northern Drive.

In the north, next to the French border, loyalist refugees and soldiers fled ahead of a rebel offensive along the Jaca-Boltana line at the base of the Pyrenees. They eluded guards placed at the border by the Barcelona government and escaped over snowy mountain trails. Most of them arrived at the hamlet Hospice de France and were sent on to the larger towns of Bagneres de Luchon and Marignac.

French frontier guards disarmed the soldiers and interned them. Civilians were placed in refugee camps. By nightfall more than 2,000 soldiers and civilians had fled across at Hospice de France alone.

The soldiers were mainly from the 134th brigade of the Spanish loyalists' 31st division. The men were in uniform, but their arms consisted of daggers, scythes, hunting pieces, and ancient pistols. The men said many others of their division were on the way to France.

Rebel aviators reported that all main highways of Catalonia were choked with refugees fleeing from the battle front. The rebel planes continued their strafing of government troops at the front and bombing raids on coastal cities. Thirty bombs were dropped on Mataro, near Barcelona, killing five persons and wounding twenty.

GIRLS LEARN A TRICK FROM THE BOYS; FOUR TAKEN TO HOSPITAL

Atlantic City, N. J., March 31.—[Special.]—Four girls in the sophomore class of the Holy Spirit High school rendered themselves unconscious while trying a trick some of the boys showed them this afternoon.

The girls, Betty Lovedahl, Virginia De Barry, and Catherine Grimm, all 14 years old, and Evelyn Simpson, 13 years old, were taken to a hospital, where they were revived and returned to their homes.

The boys told them that if they placed their thumbs against certain parts of their necks it would make them dizzy. The girls tried it and collapsed. At the hospital it was explained they had pressed against the "carotid sinus, resulting in a syncope followed by hysteria."

2 OCEAN LINERS ARE FOG BOUND IN HARBOR OF N.Y.

New York, March 31.—(AP)—Nearly 2,000 passengers on two transatlantic liners, the Normandie and Bremen, were stalled at the gateway of the New York harbor tonight by fog.

More than 900 Europe-bound passengers, including Mary Pickford, were aboard the Normandie.

The Bremen's 909 passengers included Herman Cron, big game hunter; James Reynolds, horse trainer, and John Hartigan, European commissioner for the New York World's fair.

Refuse to Buy Gadgets; Lose TVA Current

BY ARTHUR EVANS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Knoxville, Tenn., March 31.—[Special.]—The plight of farmers around Moore's Gap, who wired their homes for electric lights to replace kerosene lamps, but were refused current by TVA unless they also put in electric washing machines and refrigerators, is one of the things folks in these parts say might well be a subject for congress' TVA investigation.

It is a phase of the benevolent dictatorship, to use an old TVA term, under which society was to be planned and regimented in the Tennessee valley. In its program for an electrified America, TVA pushed sales of electric stoves and refrigerators and other gadgets to electrify rural homes. There were to be electric griddles for every ridge cabin, and electric razors, so to speak, for the mountaineers.

Residents Raise a Fuss.

Moore's Gap is not far from Norris dam, which in the early days of the TVA experiment was to bring light, heat, and beautification at cheap rates to residents of the valley. A month ago some of the residents set up a good old mountain holler against dictation that could be heard almost in Knoxville, and the Knoxville Daily Journal sent out reporters to find out what the complaint was about.

Occupants of nine small farm homes told the Journal they were denied TVA current because they would not buy more appliances at the demand of the Norris Rural Electric system, which is connected with the TVA.

Mrs. Hannah Leinart, 64 years old, lives alone in a $600 house on one acre of land and has an extremely small income. She said the TVA obtained her permission to run a transmission line across her land when they said she could get current for lights and a radio. Then electricity was refused because she would not put in an electric stove. Wires lead from her home to the line.

Doesn't Want Electric Stove.

"Some TVA man told me I couldn't have power for my lights and radio," said Mrs. Leinart, "until I got an electric range to cook on. I don't want to cook on an electric stove and I'd have to have the house rewired. Besides I'd freeze in the kitchen in the winter. I meant to take a radio, a washing machine, and a hot plate, but I won't have a stove.

"I told the TVA man I hadn't signed up for any stove, and if I'd known I couldn't get lights I wouldn't have given the right of way. He said my daughter, Mabel Cox, signed up for me. She says she didn't, and anyway Mabel isn't my guardian."

Charles Brooks, one of those denied power, lives in a neat yellow house, wired for electricity. It houses $500 worth of crated electrical appliances. Brooks said they are useless because he could not get current to operate them, although the transmission line is connected to the house and a meter has been installed. He had given a right of way across his farm. He said he was denied electricity because he would not put in a pump.

"About two years ago," said

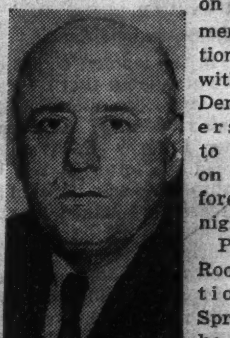
SPONSORS SEEK HOUSE PASSAGE IN THREE DAYS

Opponents Kill Move to Stifle Debate.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 31.—[Special.]—The house plunged into debate on the government reorganization bill today, with the worried Democratic leaders determined to force a vote on passage before Saturday night.



Rep. Sam Rayburn.

President Roosevelt's assertion at Warm Springs, Ga., that he had no inclination to be a dictator encouraged sponsors of the bill, which has been attacked as a measure to make dictatorship possible.

But when violent opposition developed to mere consideration of the bill, leaders again were uncertain. The house voted, 202 to 143, to start debate on the measure, but the fact that 143 members were opposed even to discussion of it was deemed significant.

Large Opposition Unexpected.

The opposition was made up of 81 Republicans, 56 Democrats, 5 Progressives, and 1 Farmer-Laborite. Majority Leader Sam Rayburn had not expected more than 100 votes against the motion to consider the measure.

With protesting letters and telegrams pouring in and with a number of veterans' and labor organizations urging defeat of the bill, Rayburn and other leaders feared that enough members might be swayed to roll up a majority against the measure. It was pointed out that some 90 members dodged the issue today, not voting on the motion to consider.

The majority leader staked all on pushing the house to a final vote before members could digest provisions of the bill. To protests from the floor that the senate debated the measure for four weeks, Rayburn answered that three days were enough for the house.

Kill Moves to Limit Debate.

Realizing that this was the strategy of the leaders, opponents today filibustered as much as was possible under the tight rules of the house. They succeeded in killing all moves to limit debate and the house finally began debate under a rule permitting each member recognized by the chair to talk for one hour.

Leaders decided to let the house talk all it wanted today and most of tomorrow and then to try to conclude debate. Another test vote will come at that time.

The session ended shortly before 6 p. m. with no decision having been reached as to when general debate will conclude. Majority Leader Rayburn said he proposed to attempt to shut off debate at some point tomorrow and a dozen members, all Democrats, jumped up to protest.

House Kept in Tangle.

A vote probably will be demanded on Rayburn's motion to conclude the discussion tomorrow.

Democratic opposition to the bill was led by Representatives Sam Pettengill of Indiana, Arthur P. Lamneck of Ohio, and John J. O'Connor of New York. Minority Leader Bertrand Snell led the Republican opposition.

For two hours and a half, these and other opponents kept the house in a parliamentary snarl before debate finally was started at 2:30 p. m. Those 150 minutes contained many a hilarious incident.

Pettengill first lodged a point of order against the bill. He pointed out that two sections of the measure already have been voted upon by the house and argued that the house therefore was precluded from considering them again.

Expert Supports Stand.

O'Connor, deemed the expert of the house on rules, supported this point of order.

"We are being asked to pass two laws which we already have passed," he said.

The two sections referred to relate to the formation of a new department of welfare and the addition of six $10,000 a year men to President Roosevelt's secretariat. They were passed by the house last year.

Speaker Bankhead quickly overru'ed the point of order, however, stating that he thought the bill was in proper form.

Representative John Cochran [D., Mo.], Rayburn's chief supporter in the maneuver to force an early vote, then suggested that debate be unlimited for a day or two. There were shouts of protest and a demand that the membership be informed just how long the discussion would last.

"It is the intention of the leadership to pass this bill by Saturday night," Rayburn warned the members.

"Do you actually think it just, in view of the fact that hearings have been denied, that the house should debate this bill only today and tomorrow when the senate discussed it for four weeks?" asked Representative Earl Michener [R., Mich.]

Rayburn did not answer. He objected when Representative Andrew J. May [D., Ky.] suggested that sixteen hours of general debate be allowed. This would have postponed a vote until next week.

A record roll call was forced upon Cochran's motion to begin consideration of the bill, and the speaker announced the motion was carried by the vote of 202 to 143.

Force Reading of Bill.

The opponents then forced complete reading of the eighty-two page bill, a process usually dispensed with on first reading. The clerk had read several pages when Representative Thomas F. Ford [D., Cal.] asked sarcastically:

"Why not print this bill in words of one syllable so that the Republicans can understand it?"

Representative Clare Hoffman [Rep., Mich.] demanded that this statement be eliminated from the record as insulting to the minority party. Speaker Bankhead had departed to some peaceful retreat and was sent for.

He could not be found for ten minutes, and the members amused themselves by yelling taunts at one another in the meanwhile, the galleries gazing in silence upon the spectacle.

The speaker when found ruled that Ford's words were not objectionable and the fight went on.

Roosevelt Statement Read.

Meanwhile, in the lobbies, copies of the President's statement that he was opposed to an American dictatorship were circulated among members. Representative Lindsay C. Warren [D., N. C.] read the letter in full to the membership and said it should remove any fears entertained by the congressmen.

Lamneck touched off the opposition oratory. He said the house measure was in some respects an improvement over the senate measure, but warned that the house should kill the bill because the senate version would be substituted in conference.

He centered his fire on the provision for a new department of welfare, the secretary of which, under the measure, would have charge of education as well as various other matters in the United States. This provision aroused alarm of those congressmen whose constituents send their children to parochial schools. They feared a federal system of schools set up under this new department.

Expects Rule by Hopkins.

"Harry Hopkins undoubtedly will be made the new secretary of welfare if this bill is passed," Lamneck said. "The powers of this one department are so large that he could take over everything relating to the public health, safety, sanitation, education, relief, unemployment, and the consumer. Harry soon would be doing everything for the voters except washing their faces and combing their hair."

Representative John Taber [R., N. Y.] termed the bill vicious. "A delegation of power to the President is involved here which is dangerous for the congress to give up," he declared. "There is no reservation of any protection on the part of the congress of its rights or the right to veto a reorganization program of the President which is not in the public interest except by a two-thirds vote of both houses."

First quarter tax payments in Chicago dropped from 59 million dollars in 1929 to 16 million in 1933 and have now risen to 72 million.

Final tabulations for the first quarterly payment of 1937 income taxes in the 1st Illinois district, comprising twenty-six counties in northern Illinois, completed yesterday by Carter H. Harrison, collector of internal revenue, and telegraphed to Washington, show total collections from Jan. 1 to March 31 were $72,251,532. This is a decline of $429,113 from the amount collected during the same period in 1937.

Mr. Harrison made public figures comparing tax collections since 1929 when $59,757,212 was collected during the first quarter. From 1929 a decline began due to depression years, reaching a low of $16,210,022 by March 31, 1933. Then there was an increase year by year until 1937 when a peak of $72,680,646 was reached.

The decrease in revenue this year may be due to more persons with tax free incomes filing returns, Mr. Harrison said, or that incomes were lower during 1937.

BY WALTER TROHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Warm Springs, Ga., March 31.—[Special.]—Through swirling clouds of dust rising from Georgia's red clay roads, President Roosevelt drove his open car this afternoon to inspect the Pine mountain valley community, a federal resettlement project.

With him rode Mrs. Roosevelt, Harry Hopkins, WPA administrator, and Miss Gay Sheppardson, Georgia state WPA director. Hopkins arrived here early today after a long convalesence in Florida. He paused here on his way back to his desk in Washington.

Started by FERA.

The community was begun by the Federal Emergency Relief administration, turned over to Rexford Guy Tugwell, former No. 1 brain truster, when he was resettlement administrator, and is now being directed by the Farm Security administration, successor to the defunct Tugwell unit.

The community, which Tugwell said is doomed to failure unless federal funds are endlessly poured in on its inhabitants, numbers 200 transplanted families. Each family occupies 36 acres, of which 28 are tillable and the remainder wooded.

Gov. Rivers in Party.

Before he set out Mr. Roosevelt was joined for the third time in his present excursion from the capital by Gov. E. D. Rivers of Georgia. Rivers was with the President when he assailed southern foes of the administration plan to control wages and hours at Gainesville at the outset of his vacation, and again during the President's visit to Columbus and Fort Benning yesterday.

His third appearance gave rise to reports that he was seeking the President's approval of plans to run against Senator Walter F. George of Georgia, who voted against the wage and hour program.

The President had no word to add to his dramatic denial of intention to become a dictator under the reorganization bill pending in congress. He followed eagerly congressional reaction to the letter to an unnamed friend in which he advocated passage of the measure in its present form.

TOWN WILL CLOSE ALL ITS STORES IN PROTEST AGAINST DICTATOR BILL

Pittsburg, Cal., March 31.—(AP)—The Pittsburg Merchants' association voted today to close the city's stores for one day next week as a protest against provisions of the governmental reorganization bill now pending in congress. Telegrams announcing the plan were ordered sent to President Roosevelt and to Washington, D. C., newspaper correspondents. Pittsburg is a central California industrial city of 9,600 population.

LYONS DEMANDS ROOSEVELT QUIT, OR BACK CHARGES

Calls on President to Name Feudal Lords.

Richard J. Lyons, leading Republican candidate for United States senator, last night demanded that President Roosevelt name the feudal lords he charges are preventing recovery, or impeach himself in the same manner that he fired Dr. Arthur E. Morgan as chairman of the Tennessee Valley authority. Speaking at Republican meetings in the 21st ward, at 2150 South Damen avenue, and in Villa Park, Lyons said the time has come for the American people to take stock of their executives.

"The President," Lyons asserted, "called in Dr. Morgan for a one-man inquisition with himself as judge, jury, and prosecutor. Dr. Morgan refused to tell what people in the TVA had committed wrong, so Mr. Roosevelt fired him.

Charges Smoke Screen.

"Then the President, while on his way to Warm Springs, made a vague accusation that a few feudal lords are attempting to hold up prosperity. I charge that he is merely attempting to incite class hatred and that his statement is intended as another smoke screen to conceal the failure of the New Deal, a smoke screen to conceal the millions of men who are unemployed.

"If the President fired Dr. Morgan for refusing to name the men behind the TVA troubles, why isn't he big enough to name the feudal lords he speaks of? I demand he tell the American people who they are.

"If there are any such people the nation would be better off without them. But I don't believe they exist. I think that 'feudal lords' is another of the phrases that so glibly roll off Mr. Roosevelt's tongue, like 'princes of privilege' and 'economic royalists'. Is he childish enough to believe that the people will always run at the cry of 'wolf'?"

Assails Tax Measure.

Taking up a bulky document, Lyons said he was holding the Roosevelt administration's new tax bill.

"It is 319 pages long," he said, "and debate was limited to ten hours. Why it couldn't even be read in that time!" Then he lifted a single sheet of paper.

"And here," he said, "is all the authorization the administration needs to spend a quarter of a billion dollars. This is the 250 million appropriation to continue the WPA. Those poor fellows will have jobs now until after the primaries, then they'll starve through the summer, and be put back on the rolls for the fall campaign.

IGOE RIDICULES LUCAS CLAIM TO LABOR SUPPORT

Turns Thunder Loose as Rival Speaks Nearby.

As Igoe, who is supported by the Nash-Kelly machine, stopped in front of 4715 Madison street to address a 30th ward meeting, he heard Lucas, who is Gov. Horner's candidate, charging the Chicago leaders with bossism at 4753 Madison. Lucas' words were carried by a large loud speaker.

Derides Green Indorsement.

Paying no attention to his opponent, Igoe plunged into a derisive criticism of Lucas' indorsement by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor. Igoe has been indorsed by the state federation, the Committee for Industrial Organization unions, and Labor's Nonpartisan league. Lucas announced the Green indorsement Wednesday night.

In a scornful voice, Igoe told his audience that it seemed that April Fool's day was coming unusually early this year, judging by the actions of his friends on the other side of the Democratic fence.

"With all the flourish of a magician pulling an Easter rabbit out of a hat," he began, "my opponent produces a letter from a man named Green in Washington to a man named Goolsby in Jacksonville, Ill., assuring the latter that he would regard my opponent's record as favorable to labor. Green and Goolsby! There's a ticket for you! They might go well together in 1940—almost as well as the last Republican national ticket did, in Maine and Vermont.

April Fooled, Igoe Asserts.

"My opponent's principal supporter, the governor, his loud speaker of the last session at Springfield, and the dancing dervishes of their Democratic ticket in Cook county have sought to make of this an indorsement by the American Federation of Labor. But the Democrats of downstate Illinois and Cook county, least of all the legitimate labor leaders of the state, won't be April fooled by a March hare brained trick of this type.

"This purported indorsement is of a piece with a recent publicity release by my opponent to the effect that his candidacy has the indorsement of a Texas congressman, my friend Marvin Jones. He may be running well in Washington and Texas, but the Democratic voters downstate won't be fooled by phony indorsements and the two headed calf type of campaigning."

Challenges for Answer.

Igoe challenged Lucas to answer two questions he propounded on Wednesday. First, he asked for a convincing answer to the query as to whether Lucas, "in the improbable event of your nomination," will accept the support of the 4,353 precinct committeemen of the Nash-Kelly organization after the primary?

Second, Igoe demanded to know whether Lucas would "reject the regularly elected leaders of the Cook county organization, National Committeeman P. A. Nash and Mayor Kelly, if you are nominated?"

Easter Fashions

Maurine McCarty, age 7, in jonquil color herringbone coat, with Tom Dempsey, 11, who is dressed in topcoat of camels hair and double breasted green gray herringbone suit and brown suede shoes.

Costumed in the rainbow hues accepted by their elders as fashionable this spring, several of Chicago's tiniest sub-debs and their escorts skipped across the stage at the Palmer house yesterday in the first of three revues the State Street Council will hold for the Easter season.

Although many of the children were suited and hatted miniatures of their parents, they were allowed their own childish whimsy in details. The Snow White motif, a favorite for both the boys and girls, was interpreted for little sister in purses, hats, or dresses after the fashion of the fairy tale princess. As for the boys, a whole family of dwarfs romped across their ties and scarfs.

LUCAS ANSWERS IGOE, THEN ADDS PAY ROLL CHARGE

Asserts 3,000 Given City and Park Jobs.

Scott W. Lucas, Gov. Horner's senatorial candidate, last night answered two questions hurled at him by his Democratic primary opponent, Michael L. Igoe, and propounded five questions of his own for Igoe's consideration. In his queries Lucas charged that pay rolls of the city of Chicago and the Chicago park district have been padded with 3,000 additional employés in the last two weeks.

On Wednesday Igoe challenged Lucas to say whether in the event he is nominated he will accept the support of the Nash-Kelly precinct captains in the fall election. Igoe has the Chicago organization's backing.

His Answer: Yes and No.

To that question Lucas, speaking with the governor and others in Evanston, made the following answer:

"I shall accept the support of all loyal citizens, but if you mean by your question, will I submit myself to the dictatorship and bossism of Kelly and Nash, as you are doing in this primary campaign and evidently agree to do in the event of your nomination and election, my answer to you is emphatically no!"

Lucas gave an indirect answer to Igoe's second query, which demanded to know if he would reject the support of National Committeeman P. A. Nash and Mayor Kelly.

Refuses Any Bargaining.

"I will not bargain with any political machine," Lucas said, "which proposes to deliver to me the votes of a large bloc of the electorate in return for a mess of patronage or a mortgage on my freedom of decision in the United States senate or the free government of this state and nation.

Puts Question to Igoe.

"Now that I have answered the question you put to me, I hope you will reciprocate for the benefit of the people in Illinois by answering these questions:

"Do you subscribe to and accept the leadership of Edward J. Kelly and P. A. Nash and the things they stand for? Do you favor the position of Kelly and Nash in their attempt to secure the enactment of the handbook licensing bill which was vetoed by Gov. Horner? Do you subscribe to the wrecking of the school system of Chicago by Kelly and Nash? Do you subscribe to the Kelly-Nash program in their opposition to permanent registration and their attempt to seize control of the election machinery through the ousting of Judge Jarecki? Do you subscribe to the padding of the city and park district pay rolls by hiring 3,000 additional employés in the last two weeks entirely for election purposes?"

COURT VOIDS ELECTION IN KENTUCKY COUNTY; 4 REPUBLICANS LOSE

Harlan, Ky., March 31.—(AP)—A Circuit court ruling today voided the election of four Republicans last November to the positions of sheriff, county attorney, jailer, and coroner of this troublous southeastern Kentucky coal county.

Special Judge Sanders E. Clay of Danville, Ky., announcing his decision in a contest suit filed by four Democrats who charged bribery and coercion, said it was "inescapable that money was lavishly spent and whisky was bountifully distributed to influence voters."

The ruling declared the election, as to the four offices involved, was "entirely void," thus denying the positions to the contestants. The defendants notified they would appeal.

Judge Clay rapped the actions of state patrolmen, sent here election day by Gov. A. B. Chandler to "maintain order," asserting they were not within their rights in seizing the ballot boxes in seven precincts.

LANTZ PRESENTS FARM PROBLEMS IN BALLOT DRIVE

[This is another in a series of informal sketches of major candidates for state offices in the April 12 primary.]

BY PERCY WOOD.

On April 12, his 66th birthday, State Senator Simon E. Lantz of Congerville hopes to receive a present of one of the Republican nominations for congressman at large. If he goes to Washington, the farm bloc at Springfield will lose its veteran leader, but congress will gain the services of a sage man who has been farming and raising prize stock in central Illinois for 40 years.

Simon E. Lantz.

Lantz would like to go to Washington because he thinks the Roosevelt administration has politicians instead of farmers running its agricultural program, and because, as he illustrates it, 25 acres out of every quarter section of land in the country is in hock as the result of the 38 billion dollar federal debt which the Democrats have saddled on the country. The farmers, Lantz says, know that eventually they are going to have to pay that debt.

Raises Prize Cattle.

But whether he is nominated or not, the next big date in Lantz's life after the primary is April 28, when he expects more than a thousand persons to attend his annual sale of prize Black Angus cattle down on the big farm at Congerville. Stockmen from ten or twelve states probably will attend, for this year Lantz is selling 68 head of what he says are the world's best beef cattle. He is satisfied they will bring a good price although nothing like that he got back in 1918 when he sold 55 head at an average of $932 per head—the highest average price ever obtained on this continent at a sale where all the cattle were bred and raised by the seller.

Lantz served two years in the house and is in his 22d consecutive year in the senate. During most of his time in the senior body he has been spokesman for the farm bloc, and in that rôle he is a calm, contained leader, an unyielding battler on occasions but generally a little on the homely philosopher side. He has his own idea of what is right and sticks to it. Although he expresses the views of the Illinois Agricultural association he has never taken orders from that potent farmer's body, arguing and thrashing things out with them—if he doesn't agree—before presenting their matters on the floor. Once he does agree to present them, they are in a form he approves.

Farm Abounds with Wild Life.

All of the 900 acres on the Lantz farm are a wild life preserve and abound with deer, small game, and wild fowl, which the senator hopes soon to supplement with peacocks. In addition to his beloved Angus cattle, he raises pure bred saddle horses and Welsh and Hackney show ponies. He sells about 100 of the latter each year and is fond of saying, "Show me a boy whose folks can afford to buy him a pony, and I'll sell him one."

Back in '97, Lantz was on the football team at the University of Illinois. He didn't graduate because his father died and he had to go home and run the farm. He is still running it. The senator is married, has two daughters and three grandchildren, likes to drive fast and fancies himself a pretty good bass singer. Once in a long while he will take a drink but he doesn't smoke, although he frequently asks his running mate, Frederick A. Virkus, to light his pipe when they are driving around together. It smells pleasant, he says.

Arraign Returned Fugitive in Drake Holdup Slaying

William Melnechuck returned to Chicago from Santa Barbara, Cal., to face a murder charge in connection with the slaying of a cashier in the Drake hotel robbery of 1925, pleaded not guilty yesterday before Chief Justice Cornelius J. Harrington in Criminal court. He was ordered held for trial April 4.

THIRD OF COUNTY TAXPAYERS OWE 10% ON '32 BILLS

Delinquencies Result of Legal Mixup.

An examination of county tax records yesterday showed that a large percentage of Cook county taxpayers—probably in excess of one-third of the total—are listed as still owing 10 per cent of their 1932 tax bills. The disclosure will surprise most taxpayers who believed they met the 1932 obligation in full when they paid 90 per cent of the face amount of their bills.

The delinquency arises from an unusual situation prevailing when the second instalment of the 1932 real estate tax bills came due in the summer of 1934. In what was supposed to be a move to insure that all taxpayers would get the benefit of 1932 rate reductions ordered by the County court, the taxpayers were told to deduct 10 per cent from their bills.

Charge Legal Right Lacking.

In recent primary campaign speeches Mayor Kelly and Judge John Prystalski have charged that County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki is responsible for the situation. They asserted that he instructed the county collector to advise all taxpayers to deduct 10 per cent from their 1932 tax bills without legal justification. Judge Prystalski is opposing Judge Jarecki for the Democratic nomination for county judge.

Judge Jarecki said yesterday he would discuss the whole tax situation in an address within the next two days. He characterized the charges as "political tricks."

Since the charges were made two days ago the offices of the county clerk and treasurer have received hundreds of telephone calls from taxpayers who are disturbed to learn they still owe 1932 taxes. Yesterday approximately 500 taxpayers—mostly home owners—appeared at the treasurer's office and paid about $12,500, or an average of $25 each, in 1932 deficiencies.

Majority Deducted 10%.

A study of the 1932 tax books for Chicago residential districts disclosed that a big majority of the taxpayers deducted the 10 per cent. Some have paid up the balance since 1934 but most have not. A comparison with record books for the loop district showed that large property owners, who carried their rate objections through the court, received the 10 per cent reduction and have their accounts marked paid in full.

A clerk in the office of County Clerk Michael J. Flynn explained that most of the home owners who paid the extra 10 per cent did so in 1935 and 1936, probably on occasion of tax searches by mortgage holders or in connection with the sale of the property.

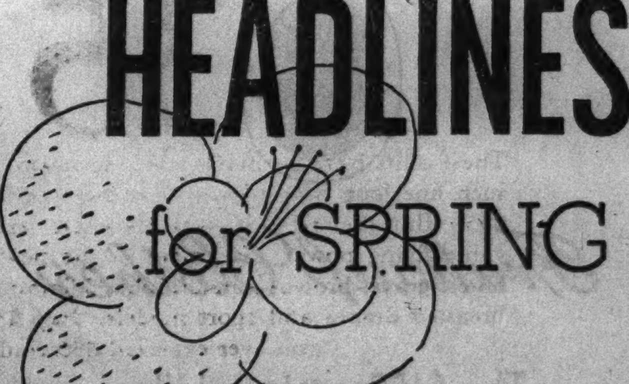
HEADLINES for SPRING



Spring headgear is brisk, a bit skittery, a trifle mad, but exciting enough to refire the temperamental shopper weary of the usual finds, says Rhea Seeger, Chicago fashions editor.

Among the new modes show.. are the perennially favored berets, the bicycle sailors, the flower-trimmed skull caps, the disklike crownless styles—all in a profusion of materials and colors to gladden the heart of any fashion seeker.

Margot has sketched six of the attractive new styles in color to accompany Miss Seeger's article. You will find this interesting full page feature in the Women's Features section of Sunday's

SWEEP OF STORM RUIN REVEALED BY PLANE PHOTOS

BY MARCIA WINN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Flying in The Tribune amphibian plane, a reporter and a cameraman yesterday surveyed from the air the destruction caused by a tornado which on Wednesday swept through several towns in west central Illinois. The tornado was one of a series that caused 37 deaths, the injury of about 300 persons, and millions of dollars in property damage in six states. The Illinois death toll last night was placed at 13.

THE TRIBUNE's aerial survey of the devastated area in this state was undertaken because broken power lines had crippled communications, and the information at first received from the stricken district was scanty. The plane was piloted by Howard H. West with Ralph Heimer as co-pilot.

Covers Storm Course in Reverse.

Flying southwest from Chicago, through a bright but choppy sky, the survey took the tornado's path in reverse order, beginning near Deer Creek, in central Illinois, where a long lane of yellow, strewn across a field for a quarter of a mile, was all that remained of a once vast farm.

This yellow lane was the straw from the barn. In strewing it, the tornado apparently made its last fling.

From there on the trail was clear, for it had stripped the countryside in a straight and deadly diagonal. The path was narrow—a farm on one side of a highway would be demolisher; another, 100 yards away, would be undisturbed—but anything in the path, tree, well-sweep, cow shed, or home, was swept clean.

A Path of Wreckage.

Seen from an altitude of 4,000 feet, it left a straight row of empty squares dotted with splinters of wood. These squares were what once had been farm houses.

In a few instances the walls were standing, or pushed together like cardboard cut-outs. Again, a chicken house or a wrecked tractor might be shoved through brick or wooden wall into a bedroom.

This strip of ruin went directly southwest, along the outskirts of Deer Creek and Morton into what Wednesday was the pleasant little railroad town of South Pekin. Right now a town of splinters and straw, it looks like a game of jack straws tossed upon the ground.

Flying low over the Deer Creek section, from 50 to 100 feet from the ground, the surveyors counted twelve crumpled farms before abandoning numbers.

What They Found.

Here is what we found:

At the first farm, everything gone but the implement shed. At the second, everything gone but the base of the corn crib. At the third, home standing two feet deep in debris of wood and twisted steel. At the fourth, everything gone but a bare, contorted tree and the remains of a hay stack. At the fifth, everything gone but a shed, a stove, and a pile of mangled farm tools.

And so it went. Furniture strewn in bits through the fields; overturned cars, one in the middle of a field, far from a highway; here a dismantled barn and an unscathed house; there an unscathed barn and a shattered house. And, everywhere, either no trees or nubby, broken black trunks, their branches gone.

To go from one scene of desolation to the next, it was necessary only to look for a line of black automobiles on a white highway, for they were certain to be headed toward or parked near the remains of a farm.

Rush to Replace Roofs.

Once at the farm, there usually was little left to see. Wherever the house or barn had been left, however, men already were working, trying to patch up a makeshift roof.

If any cattle were killed, there was no evidence of it from the air. Great herds of them grazed peacefully in distant green meadows.

These single farms, however, were almost inconsequential compared to South Pekin. Southwest of South Pekin, the direction from which the tornado came, there stretches again the unswerving line of demolished farms, and to the northwest stretches what once was a grove of trees. Some 500 of them now lie uprooted, a few across the highway. But South Pekin itself is simply a mass of splintered, colored wood. Less than a dozen houses went unscathed.

South Pekin Demolished.

South Pekin was a railroad town. When the tornado struck, streaking through the town in three minutes, some 150 freight and passenger cars were standing on the railroad tracks. Yesterday they were lying, crumpled, on their sides. And the roundhouse was smashed to bits.

So was the railroad station. So was the water tower; it lies a black mass of twisted steel, twisted into a sailor's knot. So is virtually everything else.

South Pekin must have had churches, but it has none now. Not a steeple rises. In a nearby cemetery the white tombstones were pushed to 45 degree angles.

Many houses are roofless. Others are without walls. One, its roof gone and its furniture sucked up and out, contained only a bed, but the bed was complete with linen.

Automobiles had been blown helter-skelter. A red truck had lost its hood, its top, and three wheels.

As well as the skilled eye of Co-Pilot Heimer could estimate, the tornado, roaring from the southwest, dipped to earth two miles southwest of South Pekin, to continue its destruction. Then one, two, three, four, it leveled the farms in its path, came full blast into the town, and continued northward through the groves of trees.

Somewhere, some place, it must have dropped to earth against those houses sucked cleanly from the ground. Wherever that was the Tribune group did not see it, although from time to time an entire door or a strong iron bedstead would spring surprisingly up in the center of a checkerboarded field.

Other communities struck by the tornado were Rushville, Astoria, Mount Sterling, and Quiver Beach, near Havana.

Seek $30,000 in Chicago to Aid Tornado Victims

The Chicago chapter of the American Red Cross issued an appeal yesterday for $30,000 to aid tornado victims in the midwest. The sum has been designated as Chicago's share of the fund being raised throughout this section of the country, according to James B. Forgan, chairman of the local chapter. He said 37 experienced relief workers had been sent by the Red Cross into the devastated areas in Illinois, Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma, and Arkansas.

CATALONIA RICH IN PRODUCTS OF LAND AND TRADE

Barcelona Spain's Largest City, Busiest Port.

Another turbulent chapter is being written into the history of Catalonia as Gen. Francisco Franco's rebel army drives eastward toward the Mediterranean.

In recent years syndicalists, anarchists, and communists—many times at the point of guns—have fought among themselves for supremacy in Catalonia. But for centuries Catalans have fought together for autonomy, first from the monarchy and later the republic. Today Catalans are united again in the loyalist cause to prevent their land being occupied by the Franco forces.

Catalonia is a triangular area in the northeast corner of Spain. It is bounded on the southeast by the Mediterranean, the north by the Pyrenees [fronting on France and Andorra], and on the west by Aragon.

Offshoots of Pyrenees.

The areas of Catalonia's four provinces and the latest population figures are as follows:

Provinces—	Area, square miles.	Population, 1930.
Barcelona	2,968	2,020,951
Gerona	2,264	325,523
Lerida	4,690	314,843
Tarragona	2,505	348,893
Total	12,427	3,009,709

The surface of Catalonia is broken by southern spurs of the Pyrenees and the Sierra Llena range. The lofty Sierra del Cadi reaches a peak of 8,317 feet in Barcelona province.

The rivers of Lerida, Gerona, and Barcelona provinces have their sources in the Pyrenees and most of them are mere coast rivers, but the Llobregat is important and waters the central area of Barcelona province. The chief river of Catalonia is the Segre, which rises in the fertile Aran and La Cerdana valleys of northern Lerida, waters the central plain, and joins the Ebro in southern Lerida. The Ebro, which rises in the Cantabrian mountains and flows 465 miles southeast to the Mediterranean, benefits both Lerida and Tarragona provinces, where canal systems have been constructed.

Develop Many Resources.

The Catalans are a frugal, sharp witted, and industrious people. Irrigation, husbandry, and railroads have developed the excellent resources of the principality. There are many manufacturing towns, particularly in the provinces of Barcelona and Tarragona.

The climate of Catalonia is generally healthy and favorable for vegetation, varying from about 48 to 75 degrees Fahrenheit. In the warmer areas dwarf palms, oranges, limes, almonds, and olives grow. Wheat sufficient for one-fourth the population of Catalonia is grown. Other products include wine grapes, maize, barley, millet, rye, rice, flax, licorice, and many fruits. Sheep, pigs, and horses are the principal live stock.

Barcelona province is the center of Spanish industry and shipping, and Barcelona is the largest cty of Spain. There is level land along the coast, but most of the province is mountainous and wooded. There are lead, zinc, lignite, coal, and salt mines in the hill regions.

Tarragona for Wines.

Tarragona is mountainous inland but fertile along the coast and the Ebro valley. The province is famous for its vineyards. Grain, vegetables, rice, and hemp also are raised, and manufacturing is well advanced in silk, cotton, linen, and wool products.

Gerona is mountainous in the north, but there is arable land along the Ter, Muga, and Fluvia rivers. Fisheries and the cork industry are important in the province. There also is coal mining and manufacturing.

Lerida province is well divided between attention to agriculture, mining, and textile manufacturing. There are many saw mills and flour mills. There are a number of distilleries in the province.

Catalonia perhaps is the most advanced section of Spain in railway service and highway construction. There is a main coastal railway from France through Barcelona to Tarragona and Valencia. There are other principal lines from Barcelona to Saragossa and Tarragona to Lerida, as well as subsidiary lines.

Catalonia, Rebels' Goal, Rich in Resources

(Story in adjoining column.)

RID SPAIN OF ALIEN FIGHTERS BY JUNE, BRITISH PROPOSE

LONDON, March 31.—(AP)—Great Britain today offered a new plan for withdrawing foreign fighters from Spain's civil war. The proposal, laid before envoys of Europe's major powers at a nonintervention subcommittee meeting, was designed to start withdrawals by mid-June.

The proposals were:

FIRST — That 10,000 volunteers should be accepted as a criterion for substantial progress in the withdrawals.

SECOND—That land and sea supervision of trafic to Spain should be reëstablished when nonintervention commissions begin counting volunteers, but that it should be taken off if actual withdrawals did not start after fifty-six days.

With the Spanish rebels smashing into Catalonia on a sweeping "victory drive," the possibility arose that Gen. Francisco Franco's forces might win the war before the British plan could become operative.

Addressing a luncheon of the Foreign Press association, attended by many foreign ambassadors and ministers, Lord Halifax, Britain's foreign secretary, said:

"This nation intends to be strong and to go on building up its strength . . . in order that it may make its voice powerfully heard in the counsels of Europe."

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., March 31.—[Special.]—Lester A. Dehling, 28 years old, a local salesman of canned goods, was found dead today in his car. There was a bullet hole in his forehead. Dr. E. A. Cornell, Chippewa county coroner, called it suicide.

GIBRALTAR PUT UNDER COMMAND OF GIANT OFFICER

LONDON, March 31.—(AP)—Britain today chose giant Gen. Sir William Ironside to command Gibraltar—the rock which guards the empire's arteries in a war-like world.

Sir William Ironside.

The man who once picked out Reza Khan, the present shah of Iran [Persia], from the ranks of his own men, was appointed governor and commander in chief of Gibraltar in recognition of a bold career which has straddled three continents. The army's tallest and heaviest officer, he stands 6 feet 5 and weighs 250 pounds. He succeeds Gen. Sir Charles Harington, whose term at Gibraltar expires in October. Since 1936 Ironside has been commander in chief of the eastern command.

Month Long Political Truce Ordered in Czechoslovakia

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, March 31.—(AP)—The Czech cabinet today ordered a "political truce" during the month of April, forbidding all political assemblies and demonstrations. The "Easter Peace" customarily in recent years has lasted only a week, but the cabinet said a longer period was ordered to give the government ministers more freedom for important tasks ahead.

ADVERTISE IN THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE

SHOCKED WIFE STRIPS FAMILY SKELETON BARE

But Mate Says Star Gazer Took Shirt in Market.

There was an air of expectancy on both sides yesterday when Mrs. Theresa Saunders, 46 years old, and her three daughters faced her husband, Carleton, before Judge John J. Lupe on her suit for separate maintenance.

Carleton Saunders.

"Your honor," began Norman Becker, Mrs. Saunders' attorney, "this man has made a nudery of his home."

"A nudery?" asked Judge Lupe. "What's a nudery?"

"Who went around nude there?"

Complains of the Effect.

"Mr. Saunders did, judge. Every time he happened to be drinking he would walk about the house unclad, no matter who happened to be there. I have advised Mrs. Saunders to leave the home with her daughters."

Judge Lupe then called on Saunders, who is an accountant. He stepped up and began his version.

"I can tie that nudery story, judge," he said. "My wife has gotten control of my stocks and securities and has become a victim to the study of astrology- a belief in the influence of the stars.

"Every day, judge, she looks in the book to see what the stars are doing and then either sells my stocks or buys more. She never looks to see what the stock market is doing. This ought to be stopped before she breaks us."

"Do you drink, as your wife charges?"

A 33 Year Old Habit.

"Certainly. I have been drinking for thirty-three years, which is five years longer than we have been married. I see no reason to stop at this late date."

"And about the nudery charges?"

"Bosh, judge. Pure bosh."

Judge Lupe then attempted to reconcile the Saunderses, who live at 6559 Greenview avenue, but failed. He ordered the husband to pay $140 a month for the support of his family, which includes twin daughters, Patricia and Peggy, 12 years old, and Jane, who is 24.

KIDNAPED BOY'S FATHER PLEADS AGAIN ON RADIO

New Rochelle, N. Y., March 31.—(AP)—Murray Levine made another appeal to the kidnapers of his son, Peter, 12 years old, tonight on a national radio program.

Speaking from a friend's home here, he introduced the Rev. Francis J. H. Coffin, Episcopal minister of nearby Larchmont, as his intermediary, and disclosed that Coffin was the unidentified gobetween who made an unsuccessful attempt to pay the $30,000 ransom March 1, a week after the boy disappeared.

"I would like to feel that I am talking directly to the kidnapers of Peter Levine," the minister said over the radio. "You can telephone Mr. Levine or me; write, or come to see either of us at any time, day or night, and you will be perfectly safe."

Bench and Bar Honor Judge Treanor at Dinner

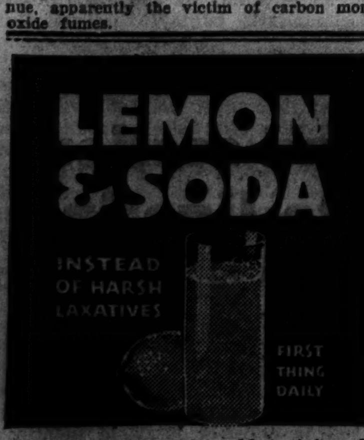
Some 200 members of the bench and bar honored Judge Walter E. Treanor of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals at a dinner given last night by the Chicago Bar association in its quarters at 29 South La Salle street. Judge Treanor, a former justice of the Indiana Supreme court, was inducted in January. Among the speakers were Hayes McKinney, bar association president; Lloyd D. Heth, who spoke for the bar, and Federal Judges J. Earl Major and Will M Sparks of the Appeals court, and Philip Sullivan, John P. Barnes, William H. Holly, and Walter Lindley of the District court.

RaidGamingHouses;U.of I. Student Signs Warants

Champaign, Ill., March 31.—(AP)—Three Champaign gambling houses were raided late tonight by sheriff's officers and Champaign police on warants signed by a University of Illinois student. Gambling paraphernalia was confiscated. Three keepers and four inmates were arrested and hearings set for April 9. The keepers were released on $500 bond and the inmates on $100 bond. Bill Dennis of Chicago, one of two Daily Illini reporters who visited the gambling houses, signed the warant.

FOUND DEAD OF AUTO FUMES.

John Szchechoviak, 50 years old, a butcher, was found dead yesterday in the garage at his home at 8106 Escanaba avenue, apparently the victim of carbon monoxide fumes.



First thing upon arising add the juice of a Sunkist Lemon to a tall glass of cold or warm water. Into another glass put a half teaspoon of baking soda (bicarbonate). Pour back and forth a few times and drink. Do this daily, and see how you benefit!

Denied to Father

JEANETTE LANE.

A father who fails to visit or provide for his children for ten years forfeits all right to them, Judge Donald S. McKinlay ruled yesterday in the case of Rufus W. Lane, a watchmaker of Tonawanda, N. Y., who had brought a habeas corpus petition for the custody of two children. They are Robert, 15 years old, and Jeanette, 14. Judge McKinlay ruled that they shall remain with their maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. James Greer of 2841 North Francisco avenue, where they have been since the death of their mother, Irene, early this year. Later, however, the court amended the order to permit the children to visit their father.

U. S. Discards 35,000 Ton Limit on Fighting Vessels

Washington, D. C., March 31.—(AP)—The international race to build vaster dreadnaughts officially began today when the United States discarded a treaty clause limiting such vessels to 35,000 tons. Secretary of State Cordell Hull sent notes to the British and French embassies and to the Canadian legation advising them of the government's intention. At the same time a note from Britain, announcing a similar intention, was on its way to Washington. France took another course, electing not to build superbattleships unless other European powers [Germany and Italy] do so.

LOSES HAND IN MACHINE.

Taxpayers Stand Loss in Roosevelt Plan.

million ounces of Mexican silver a month. The agreement was to be renewable monthly and the price paid was 45 cents, the cost of this item of the President's good neighbor policy being 2¼ million dollars a month.

When the Mexican government expropriated the 200 million dollar American oil industry in Mexico, Mr. Roosevelt retaliated by suspending the purchase of Mexican silver. The treasury followed this move by reducing the price paid for foreign silver from 45 to 43 cents an ounce.

As a result, there has been no end of gossip to the effect that the administration is backing away from the silver purchase program, if not atcually beginning the liquidation of the venture.

Far Off from Ratio.

How much farther the treasury is from achieving the 25 per cent silver monetary ratio, provided for by the silver legislation, than it was when the program was initiated is disclosed by a comparison of the gold and silver stocks in 1934 and 1938.

On June 30, 1934, the silver stock had a statutory monetary value of $1.29 an ounce, or approximately 900 million dollars. The gold stock after dollar devaluation had a monetary value of $35 an ounce, or about 7 billions. In order to bring the silver stock up to 25 per cent of the monetary stock of the country [equivalent to one-third of the gold stock] about 2⅓ billion dollars' worth of silver was required. That is, provided the gold stock remained at 7 billions, it would have been necessary to purchase a little more than 1 billion ounces of silver having a monetary value of a little more than 1⅓ billion dollars.

A Labor of Sisyphus.

The undertaking, however, soon became a labor of Sisyphus. As a result of the purchase of gold at an artificially inflated price, gold poured into the country until the gold stock on March 25, 1938, was 365,300,000 ounces with a monetary value of $12,785,000,000. So, to achieve the objective of the silver purchase legislation, it now is necessary to have a stock of silver with a monetary value of $4,261,666,666, whereas the present silver stock has a monetary value of $2,911,300,000.

It thus falls out that despite the purchase of 1⅓ billion ounces of silver with a monetary value of about 2 billion dollars, it is still necessary to purchase an additional amount of silver in excess of 1 billion ounces with a monetary value of more than 1⅓ billion dollars.

BOND CLOTHES

Worn by more men than any other clothes in America

MADISON STREET STORE OPEN EVERY EVENING

It's easy . .

to be "the well dressed man" if you know all the answers

Single or double breasted?

Double-breasteds first. A virile, athletic contour is the big thing, these days. Double-breasteds do the trick—with chesty breadth above, tapered waistline below. Bond's Rochester experts have tailored an impressive array—from distinguished conservatives to loosely draped lounge jackets.

How wide should trousers be?

The chap in the center has the right idea. Trouser bottoms should be medium wide—from 19 to 20 inches. Men who buy at Bond's get 2 pairs with every suit, a feature offered by no other clothier. Drape and sports suits have one pair pleated, the other plain. Extra style, extra wear—at no extra cost!

What's new in colors?

Grey is tops. But beware—last year's greys look as decrepit as the "old grey mare". The new ones are craftily blended with blue or green. They've a freshness and sparkle that dates them "Spring 1938". If you've a dark complexion, steer clear of greens. Bluish tones, or tawny tans, are best for you.

Are sports backs in the swing?

Yes—with reservations. The comfortable bi-swing, the conservative pinch-back, are aces. The "big apple" variety (with fancy frills) is out. And be careful about patterns. Keep away from the wild ones. P. S.—With an extra pair of Bond slacks ($5.50), you've two complete outfits.

Will it be worsteds or tweeds?

What's wrong with this picture?

Tall men should avoid bold stripes. They exaggerate height. Six-footers look best in plaids or checks. For short men, the opposite is true. Stripes or herringbones add stature. Plaids look squatty. Bond sizes cover the whole range, from big long-stouts to trim short-shorts.

HOW MUCH? That's easiest of all. Buy at Bond's—and save from $5 to $7.50. We tailor our own clothes. You pay no outside maker's profits, here!

JAPAN SHOCKED; HEARS U. S. NAVY IS IN HER WATERS

BY KIMPEI SHEBA.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, March 31.—Japanese official quarters were dumbfounded today by a report that warships of the United States were maneuvering near Japanese mandated islands in the South seas.

The report was described as "disagreeable" to Japan. For warships of one friendly nation to stage war games off the coast of another friendly nation's possessions is regarded as an affront by the Japanese.

Says Maneuvers Spread.

Information from one of the Truk group of islands in the Japanese mandate, south of the American island of Guam, indicates that the United States navy's Pacific maneuvers extend to the mandated group. Although the United States hitherto has confined its Pacific maneuvers to a triangular area extending from Alaska to Hawaii to Panama, the Tokio newspaper Hochi said the United States had concentrated ten capital ships, 500 planes, and an armada of other vessels in the region of Wake, Samoa, Howland, Baker, and Phoenix Islands in the southwestern Pacific.

[The navy department at Washington last night denied American warships are maneuvering near Japanese mandated islands in the Pacific. The department said none of the United States warships went beyond Midway Island, which is 1,200 miles east of the Truk group of islands.]

Hochi said the naval maneuvers are particularly significant in view of America's recent claim to Canton and Enderbury Islands.

"It is quite clear," the paper said, "that the United States is preparing for trans-Pacific operations with Japan as the hypothetical enemy."

The report that American warships were maneuvering off the Truk group of islands said a mystery warship had entered the harbor of one of the islands at 2 a. m. on March 27. It was indicated that "various quarters"—presumably government sources—believed the warship was American.

Japan meanwhile served notice on the United States, Great Britain, and France that she is ready to build up her fleet if, by invocation of the escalator clause of the 1936 London naval treaty, these powers embark on gigantic naval expansion programs.

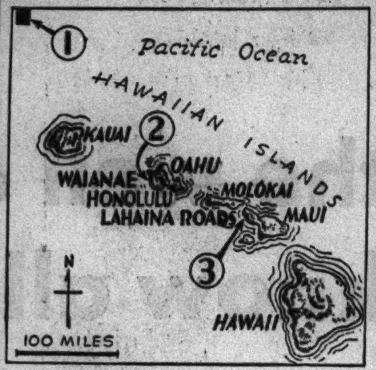
[The escalator clause is the escape clause permitting signatories of the London naval treaty to exceed the 35,000 ton battleship limit if it is exceeded by nonsignatories. Japan is not a party to the London treaty.]

Rear Admiral Kiyosha Noda, spokesman for the Japanese navy, said any increase in the size of the fleets of the big naval powers would be regarded as a menace to Japan and Japan would have to revise her naval plans accordingly.

JAPS ACCUSE U. S. OF 'INVASION'

(Story in adjoining column.)

Japanese were excited yesterday by a report that American warships in the Pacific were maneuvering near the Truk group of islands which are under Japanese mandate. The navy department at Washington ridiculed the story, saying the Pacific fleet had not gone beyond Midway island, 1,200 miles east of the Truk group.



1. American naval bomber with six aboard lost.

2. Three bodies recovered from wreckage of second plane, which sank killing five of its seven occupants.

3. Six men hurt when surf swamped nine boats during landing maneuvers.

ABANDON HOPES FOR 6 FLYERS ON LOST NAVY PLANE

HONOLULU, T. H., March 31.—(AP)—Hope for six navy flyers aboard a missing bomber was abandoned tonight by naval officials directing an extended search in the area of the Pacific maneuvers.

Sixty-five warships and 240 war planes were ordered into the search, though officers expressed the belief the six men died when the plane fell into the sea off Kauai island yesterday morning a few hours after five other flyers were killed in the crash of another bomber.

A hundred yards off Waianae, on the northwest shore of Oahu Island, naval salvage workers recovered three bodies from the submerged wreckage of this other plane.

Fleet authorities disclosed that five sailors and one marine were injured in the "successful" landing of 1,400 bluejackets at Lahaina roads, seventy-five miles southeast of Honolulu. Heavy surf swamped nine boats and four were wrecked in the landing.

Senate Votes $12,000,000 to Fight Venereal Diseases

Washington, D. C., March 31.—(AP)—A bill providing $12,000,000 to assist states, counties, and other governmental units in the investigation and control of venereal diseases won unanimous approval of the senate today. The measure was sponsored by Senator La Follette [Prog., Wis.]. It now goes to the house.

CHINESE BATTLE JAPS IN STREETS TO RULE TOWN

Machine Guns, Grenades Used at Close Range.

SHANGHAI, April 1.—[Friday.]—(AP)—Hand to hand fighting surged through the barricaded streets of Taierchwang today with the success of Japan's drive toward Suchow hanging on the outcome.

About 10,000 Chinese fought against an equal Japanese force. Hand grenades and machine gun fire at 50 yards also played a part in the battle which has continued for days.

Japanese reported they held the northeast and northwest corners of the little city, much of which was in flames. Taierchwang is on a narrow gauge branch railroad east of the main line, the Tientsin-Pukow, on the coastal side of the central front.

Both Try Flank Attacks.

Japanese acknowledged meeting difficulties on the line of their advance south to Suchow, where the Tientsin-Pukow and east-west Lunghai trunk line intersect.

Both sides attempted wide flanking attacks in efforts to break the frontal deadlock. Japanese declared three Chinese divisions were trapped at Ikow, ten miles northeast of Taierchwang, between Japanese forces closing in from Lini and those attacking Taierchwang.

Japanese said the three Chinese divisions were attempting to shift from near Yihsien to an attack position behind the Japanese lines at Taierchwang.

Both sides made heavy use of bombing planes. Japanese reported a Chinese troop train was bombed and set afire on the Lunghai near Yunho. Chinese said a bombing squadron raided Japanese positions at Yihsien, scoring direct hits.

Missionary Escapes Planes.

CANTON, China, March 31.—(AP)—J. P. Anderson, formerly of Kiron, Ia., a Seventh Day Adventist missionary, had a narrow escape today when five Japanese airplanes machine gunned his motor car on the highway between Waichow, Kwangsi province, his station, and Canton.

MERCHANT FLEET OF U. S. IS CALLED DEFENSE WEAPON

LONDON, March 31.—(AP)—Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy of the United States tonight declared the United States was determined to maintain a merchant marine as an "auxiliary of defense," but had no aggressive designs on the world's shipping trade.

The ambassador, who was chairman of the United States maritime commission before President Roosevelt assigned him to the court of St. James's, spoke at the annual dinner of the Chamber of Shipping.

He concurred in the theory that a "domestic flag fleet" is more important as an auxiliary to the armed forces of a nation than for trade.

"From the standpoint of trade and defense," he said, "the American merchant marine is dangerously weak. Ninety per cent of the entire American fleet will be obsolete by 1942."

Kennedy cited American plans to build a "great navy" and said the nation needs a merchant marine "approximately the size we now have."

NEW RULES MAY BAR HELIUM FOR GERMANS' SHIPS

Washington, D. C., March 31.—(AP)—German airship service to the United States appeared doomed tonight following publication of strict regulations governing the sale of American helium to foreigners.

The regulations, after stressing that the helium must not be used for war purposes, demand:

1. The placing of a bond, the size of which would be determined by the secretaries of state, war, navy, and the interior.

2. A deposit in cash ranging from 60 to 120 per cent of the total cost of all the helium covered by the contract.

3. The right of a United States representative to inspect not only the airship in which the helium would be used but also its hangars and process of inflation.

4. Forfeiture of the contract for purchase of helium, and forfeiture of all deposits, in case of violation of any one of the rules.

EGYPTIANS RIOT AT ELECTION; 8 DIE, MANY HURT

CAIRO, Egypt, March 31.—(AP)—Eight persons were killed and many injured today in disorders during Upper Egypt's general election of members for the chamber of deputies.

Seven persons were killed and five injured seriously in Beirut. There was one death at Minia. The worst rioting occurred at Tanta, home of the dismissed Wafdist [Nationalist] premier, Nahas Pasha.

Early returns indicated a government victory for young King Farouk. Premier Mohamed Mahmoud Pasha, whom Farouk called into office after Nahas was dismissed, was returned to parliament. Three former Wafdist ministers were believed defeated. Lower Egypt's election will be held April 2.

U. S. Consul Protests Jap Treatment of American

SHANGHAI, April 1 [Friday].—(AP)—United States Consul General Clarence E. Gauss protested to Japanese authorities today against the rough treatment of V. F. Meisling of Los Angeles, Col., at the hands of Japanese police. Meisling is a reporter and photographer for the North China Daily News. He was accosted when he attempted to take photographs of the beflagged New Asia hotel, incubator of the new central government sponsored by the Japanese at Nanking.

WATER COMES FROM THE SKY

By CALEB

MANY years ago, John Paton was a missionary to the New Hebrides. There he found the islanders dying like flies from drought through the long dry seasons. He started digging a well, only to be ridiculed by the natives he sought to succor. "Water comes from the sky," they said. And they placed their inadequate storage vessels out to catch the rain in the short wet season. But Paton knew what he was about, and ultimately had a bountiful well.

Water had been flowing beneath the feet of the natives for many generations, but it took Paton's digging to reveal it to them.

Our merchandise displays change constantly. Many people ask us why we have so many things they never see elsewhere. The answer is simple. We "dig" for them. We unearth them in all kinds of odd places.

One day, a new adaptation of an old idea comes out of the fertile imagination of one of our experienced buyers. The next day some innovation results from the suggestion of a section assistant. Still another day, from Allahabad comes an item, or from Luxembourg. The skillful fingers of a craftsman in a remote corner of the earth may yield us what you see tomorrow, and in another week, across the world or across the continent another skilled artisan makes his contribution, but not without our digging. Our vigilance is—and must be—world-wide.

Our patrons, by the same token, have a world of interesting things opened up to them if their explorations here are store-wide. We are sure the week never passes that we are not told by several people, who express themselves in varying degrees of enthusiasm, how utterly pleased they are that they ventured into parts of the store new to them.

Are you a little jaded by the winter season? Do you wish to experience a little of the surprise and stimulation experienced by the New Hebrideans so long ago? Look then, for a mental adventure somewhere in our store where you haven't been for a long time.

You may find it on our second floor where there are brocades and fabrics so exquisite—but so old and delicate—that they are handled only with gloves. It may be in our Art Gallery, where you can sit and gaze as through a window, at sunny, flowery landscapes by a foremost painter. Or in the Store for Men where you can see guns and other hunting equipment, such as many people have no idea are to be found in Chicago.

If you think the only things which can interest you are in parts of the store you frequent, we would like to lead you to experience some pleasurable excitement over surprises you yourself can unearth.

CONGRESS SENDS TVA INQUIRY BILL TO ROOSEVELT

Quiz Starts April 15 If He Signs Resolution.

Washington, D. C., March 31.—(AP)—Congress sent President Roosevelt today a resolution for a sweeping investigation of the Tennessee Valley authority and the activities of power companies in connection with it.

The senate completed congressional action on the resolution by accepting, without protest, amendments approved yesterday by the house.

5 Members From Each House.

If President Roosevelt signs the resolution late tomorrow in Warm Springs, Ga., as it has been indicated he will do, Vice President Garner and Speaker Bankhead of the house will be free to name five members from each house on the inquiry committee.

Bankhead told reporters today that he had not made up his mind about the personnel of the house section of the committee.

Vice President Garner was said to have indicated to both Majority Leader Barkley [D., Ky.] and Minority Leader McNary [R., Ore.] that he would not follow his usual custom of consulting them before naming the senate committee members. Garner gave no information as to whom he would name.

$50,000 for Investigation.

The resolution, proposed by Senator Barkley, appropriates $50,000 for the investigation. It is considered probable the inquiry will get under way April 15, it being the feeling of congressional leaders that there should be some sort of interim report to congress before it adjourns.

Much of the inquiry is expected to be conducted at Knoxville, Tenn., the headquarters of the TVA.

FRENCH PREMIER PUTS OFF DEBATE ON BID FOR POWER

PARIS, March 31.—(AP)—Premier Leon Blum today decided to postpone until Tuesday a parliamentary debate on bills in which he will seek extraordinary powers to cope with France's financial difficulties.

The delay will give the Radical Socialist party, most moderate element of his People's Front government, time to study his measures. It was predicted the delay will lessen the danger of a split which might pull his cabinet down. Originally the premier intended to introduce the bills tonight and seek passage over the week-end.

The postponement was interpreted in lobbies of the chamber of deputies as an indication that Blum was alarmed by the growing hostility of the Radical Socialists.

Stormy sessions in parliament preceded announcement of the delay. The chamber was thrown into an uproar when People's Front deputies combined to invalidate the election of Jean Goy, prominent rightist deputy.

Write Home for Mother's Day, Navy Urges Sailors

Washington, D. C., March 31.—(AP)—The navy has asked American sailors and marines in every corner of the globe to write home to mother for Mothers' day, May 8.

SMILIN' JACK—CLOSING IN

Homes Are Wired, but Current Is Refused.

Brooks, "TVA men came through here asking us to sign up for power and saying a line was coming through. We wanted power so we signed up. They asked us to sign up for certain appliances. I signed up for a radio, an electric refrigerator, a washing machine, an electric iron, and a hot plate. We were to get power for 75 cents a month, up to 25 kilowatt hours.

"Eight months ago, more TVA men came and asked us to sign up for the right of way and electrical appliances. They wanted me to add a pump for my well, but I said the service would cost too much. They said it wouldn't cost more than $2 a month for the whole bill. I told them if they would guarantee that they could put me down for a $150 pump. They wouldn't do it.

"They built the line across my farm, they connected my house with lines, and put in a meter. Just before Christmas they turned the power on the line, and I didn't get any. They told me I couldn't have power until I got the pump for the well, that I had signed for it.

Offers to Sell Appliances.

"I didn't sign for any pump and now I'm advertising the things I bought for sale. There's something mighty crooked about the whole thing."

Fred Moses, field manager of the Norris Rural Electric system, said the farmers had signed contracts for appliances, then refused to buy them, so current was denied.

"We've got to keep a grip on this thing, you know," Moses said, "or it would get completely away from us."

The nine farm residents said they had not signed such contracts.

Up the mountain road lives Mrs. Annie Foster, 67 years old, a widow. Her house is wired, but has no lights.

"It cost me $35 to have the house wired," she said, "and now they say I can't have power until I get an electric stove. They claim I signed up for one, but I didn't, and don't want one.

"I've got a radio, an electric refrigerator, and an iron that cost me $200, but I can't use them because I can't get power."

The farmers said they were not told they must buy their appliances from any particular firm, but before it was announced the line would be built, agents of one large firm began soliciting them for the business.

Agents Solicit Business.

"Looks to me," said Brooks, "like somebody on the inside tipped them off." Moses, the TVA man, said no favorites were played, that all appliance firms were told at the same time when a line was to be built.

Mrs. Hiley Cox, a middle aged widow with several children, runs a small mill for a living.

"Denny Foster [a neighbor] came through and put me down for a meter, a washing machine, a refrigerator, a hot plate, and an iron," she said. "I didn't sign for them, he just put them down.

Has Her Home Wired.

"Later another man came through and asked me to sign up again. I told him I wouldn't, but finally I did sign for lights and the mill motor.

"Then they used the old paper Denny had written instead of the one I had signed and came along to collect my meter money. I paid it, and they went away after acting something hateful about it.

"A man they called Whited guaranteed me lights for the right of way I gave them, but they said I couldn't have lights until I bought all that other stuff.

"That would cost me $700 to $800, and I'd be lucky to make that much in five years. I spent $30 having that little old three room house wired, but they won't turn on the power."

Denies He Signed Up.

Clarence Cox, a husky young farmer, said: "I had wiring put in and the TVA approved it. When they turned the juice through the line they wouldn't turn it on for me—claimed I had signed up for a range and a refrigerator. I didn't sign for either. I've already got a radio I can't use."

Cox said the old contracts two years ago were for a 75 cent a month rate up to 25 kilowatt hours. Later it was changed to $1 a month up to 35 kilowatt hours.

The Journal reporters asked Moses why, if the farmers interviewed were ready to pay their $1 a month, they were not given current.

"We've got to keep our grip," was the answer.

UNCOVER 168 FALSE VOTE REGISTRATIONS IN VISITS TO HOTELS

Continuing their purge of fraudulent registrations for the April 12 primary, investigators for the election board and the state's attorney's office yesterday visited three hotels in the 42d ward and one in the 27th ward. They reported finding 168 names falsely listed.

The hotels in the 42d ward were the Le Grand, 618 North Clark street, where seven names were discovered fraudulently registered on the poll lists; the Hollywood, 677 North Clark street, 18 names, and the Victor, 8 East Grand avenue, 8 names. At the McCoy hotel, 949 Madison street, in the 27th ward, the investigators found 135 false registrations.

County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki yesterday overruled a motion to quash one of three vote fraud charges against Jack O'Connor, a parolee. Attorney Daniel A. Covelli argued that the charge against O'Connor of registering after having been convicted of a felony in the federal court did not come within the scope of the registration law. O'Connor, who has asserted that he was beaten by vote fraud investigators, is also charged with registering under an assumed name and registering twice.

ASSISTANT IS NAMED FAGG'S SUCCESSOR AS AIR COMMERCE CHIEF

Washington, D. C., March 31.—[Special.]—Denis Mulligan, one of the two assistant directors of the bureau of air commerce, has been appointed director of the bureau to succeed Fred D. Fagg Jr., effective April 16, Secretary Daniel C. Roper announced today.

Fagg, an international authority in the field of air commerce law, who became director of the bureau last year while engaged in codifying the bureau's regulations, will become dean of the school of commerce of Northwestern university on April 12.

Mulligan has been in the bureau since 1934, when he became chief of the enforcement section. Last April he became chief of the regulation and enforcement division, and in October he was appointed assistant director.

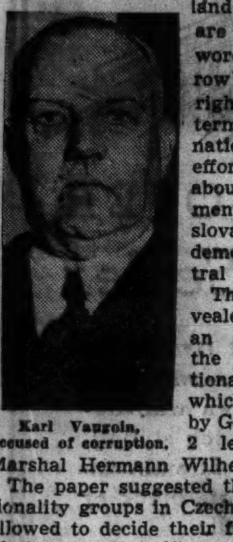
ASKS MINORITIES DECIDE FATE OF CZECHOSLOVAKIA

Nazis Quote the Words of Woodrow Wilson.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, March 31.—German Nazis and their friends in dictatorial Poland and Hungary are using the words of Woodrow Wilson—"the right of self-determination of nations"—in an effort to bring about dismemberment of Czechoslovakia, the last democracy of central Europe.



Karl Vaugoin, accused of corruption.

This was revealed today in an editorial in the Essener National Zeitung, which is guided by Germany's No. 2 leader, Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering.

The paper suggested that the "nationality groups in Czechoslovakia be allowed to decide their fate and that of the state itself" on the strength of the right of self-determination of nations.

Nazis Seek Referendum.

No mention of a referendum was made, but this evidently is what the Nazis want.

"The Sudeten Germans are tired of being starved out by a foreign minority—the Poles want their freedom—the Hungarians want to be reunited with their motherland, and the Slovaks have more than enough of their union into one country with the autocratic Czechs," the paper said. "What is there to oppose use of the right of self-determination which could do away with another European danger point?"

The Germans themselves admit that at least 9,000,000 of the 15,000,000 inhabitants of Czechoslovakia are Czechs.

Charged with Corruption.

Gen. Karl Vaugoin, former Austrian chancellor and minister of war, who was regarded by the Austrian Nazis as one of their chief opponents at the time he commanded the Austrian army, is being held prisoner on charges of corruption. Vaugoin was arrested yesterday.

Nazi authorities said that "material seriously compromising Vaugoin has been discovered in connection with the crash of the Phoenix Insurance company two years ago." After resigning as war minister in 1933, Vaugoin became vice president of the company and president of the Austrian state railways. It is charged that in his capacity as railway present, "repeated accusations were raised against him for enriching himself illegally."

Kurt Schuschnigg, Austria's fallen chancellor, still is being held a prisoner in Belvedere palace where, officials announced, he "enjoys all freedom, including a wireless set which he uses frequently."

Wilhelm Miklas, who was forced to resign as president of Austria, also is still in his Vienna home.

"Miklas had permission to leave his quarters, but failed to do so," Nazi authorities said.

LIECHTENSTEIN'S NEW RULER PUTS NAZIS IN CABINET

[Copyright: 1938: By the New York Times.]

VADUZ, Liechtenstein, March 31.—Prince Franz Joseph, new sovereign of Liechtenstein, in whose favor his aged uncle, Prince Franz I., abdicated yesterday, today changed the government and gave several Nazi cabinet portfolios. The growing Nazi movement in the principality was one reason for Prince Franz's abdication. Another reason is that he married Baroness Elsa Gutmann, who is of Jewish extraction, in 1929. German Nazis attacked the marriage even at that time. Liechtenstein's Nazis are demanding that no Catholic priest shall be allowed to become a deputy or civil servant. They also demand a change in the electoral system.

Cow Gets Permanent Wave in Tail and Goes to Banquet

Eau Claire, Wis., March 31.—(AP)—Clarabelle the cow, as lovely as six beauticians could make her, occupied a stall of honor between the speakers' tables at the annual banquet of the state Dairyman's association convention here tonight. Before appearing among the diners she surrendered to the ministrations of six beauty operators in the lobby of a downtown hotel. They marcelled her silky hair and gave her tail a permanent wave.

U. S. MUST SHUN SNARES OF WAR, HOOVER WARNS

Urges Independence in World Affairs.

New York, March 31.—(AP)—Describing Europe as a rumbling war machine, former President Herbert Hoover tonight recommended for the United States absolute independence of political action in world affairs and adequate preparedness as the best means of keeping out of another world war.

Speaking before the Council on Foreign Relations about his recent two month tour of fourteen European countries, Hoover said he had found most nations in Europe convinced that the United States would be inevitably drawn into the next great war, as in the last.

Finds Insistence for Combine.

"I find in many quarters of Europe and some in America," he said, "an insistence that, as democracy is endangered by the rise of dictatorships and authoritarian governments, therefore democracies should join in some sort of mutual undertaking for protective action.

"These ideas were greatly stimulated and encouraged by the word 'quarantine' from these shores. Such proposals, if sincere, involve more than mere good words. Anything honest in that direction implies the pledge of some sort of joint military or economic action by the United States with other powers.

"If we join with the two other powerful democracies, Great Britain and France, we are engaging ourselves in an alliance directed against Germany and Italy and all the satellites they can collect, but we are doing more than this.

Warns of European Snares.

"Great Britain has her own national and imperial problems and policies. Any commitment of ourselves will mean that we are dragged into these policies. France has her own special alliances and her own policies, including an alliance with Russia. We would be supporting Stalin.

"But more than all this, we would be fostering the worst thing that can happen to civilization, that is, the building up of a war between government faiths or ideologies.

"We should have none of it. If the world is to keep peace we must keep peace with dictatorships as well as with popular governments."

Hoover said his trip abroad—the first in nineteen years—had shown him seven obvious forces or factors which have come to the forefront since the end of the world war.

These were the rise of dictatorships, the race to arms, the increased government debts, the striving for self-sufficiency, the failure of the league of nations as a force for peace, the fear of a general war, and the growth in some nations of brutality.

YACHT HITS REEF OFF WESTERN MEXICO COAST

San Pedro, Cal., March 31.—(AP)—The 224 foot cruiser Ares, owned by Hugh J. Chisholm, paper and railroad magnate of Portland, Me., and New York, went on the rocks of Ceravalo Island near Cape San Lucas at the tip of Lower California late today. Hours later it was reported the yacht had been refloated, but was leaking badly. Mr. and Mrs. Chisholm were among those on board.

Because the scene of the accident was 250 miles below the Mexican border the United States coast guard was prevented by an international agreement from sending aid. A representative of Lloyd's cabled agents in Mazatlan, Mexico, to send salvage boats to the rescue. It is presumed they did so.

The Ares sailed from Miami, Fla., a month ago.

REVISE TAX BILL IN SENATE BODY TO AID BUSINESS

Punitive Levies Ruled Out by Committee.

BY CHESLY MANLY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 31.—[Special.]—The senate finance committee completed action today on a bill drastically revising the revenue laws for the purpose of relieving business from destructive taxation and the nation's capital markets from stagnation.

Pat Harrison.

Abolishing the principle of the punitive tax on undistributed corporate profits and removing the shackling effects of the capital gains and losses tax, the bill meets all the objections to existing legislation made by big and little business representatives in their appearances before the committee.

Based on Baruch's Views.

Particularly, the bill represents the tax philosophy of Bernard M. Baruch, adviser of Presidents from Woodrow Wilson to Franklin D. Roosevelt and an intimate friend of Senator Pat Harrison [D., Miss.], chairman of the finance committee. Mr. Baruch "regretfully" expressed the opinion, at a recent appearance before the senate relief and unemployment committee, that the present depression is traceable more directly to government policy than to anything that business could or should do.

Experts of the joint congressional committee on internal revenue estimated that the finance committee's bill would produce $23,000,000 more revenue than the house bill for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1939. The budget estimate of internal revenue for the next fiscal year, on the basis of existing law, is $5,330,037,000 and the treasury experts estimated that the house bill would lose $21,000,000. Thus the senate bill, according to the estimates, would produce a net gain over existing law of $2,000,000.

Early Action Expected.

The committee deferred action on formally reporting the bill pending the submission of a tentative draft, which will be subject only to technical changes. Chairman Harrison said the experts hoped to complete their job of draftsmanship by Monday, and that the bill would be reported in time to take it up in the senate early next week.

The last important action of the committee was to reject the plan of Senator Robert M. La Follette [Radical, Wis.] to broaden the income tax base and step up the surtax brackets in the lower and middle brackets. La Follette first offered an amendment to start the surtax at $3,000, instead of $4,000 as under existing law, and gradually increase the surtax rates in the brackets up to $40,000. He estimated that it would produce additional revenue of 213 million dollars.

Adopted, Then Rejected.

Chairman Harrison said he would vote for this plan if the committee should adopt the other La Follette amendment to broaden the income tax base and "make the people more tax conscious." The surtax proposal was adopted by a vote of 10 to 7.

Then the committee rejected by a vote of 10 to 7 the La Follette amendment to lower personal exemptions from $2,500 to $2,000 for married persons and from $1,000 to $800 for single persons. Senator Harrison thereupon moved to reconsider the vote on the surtax amendment, and it was defeated, 9 to 7. An amendment combining the two proposals was defeated 9 to 8. La Follette plans to offer his amendments on the senate floor.

In lieu of the undistributed profits tax principle, which it rejected altogether, the committee voted today to strengthen the well known and long standing section 102, which is intended to prevent unreasonable accumulations of corporate earnings for the purpose of evading surtaxes on stockholders.

Existing law imposes a surtax on undistributed earnings of 25 per cent of the retained net income under $100,000, plus 35 per cent of the retained net income in excess of $100,000 whenever the commissioner of internal revenue finds that the earnings are permitted to accumulate for the purpose of tax avoidance.

Amendment Approved.

The committee adopted an amendment to put the burden of proof upon the corporation, as follows:

"The fact that the earnings or profits of a corporation are permitted to accumulate beyond the reasonable needs of the business shall be determinative of a purpose to avoid surtax unless the corporation by the clear preponderance of the evidence shall prove to the contrary." The commissioner's rulings in this respect are subject to judicial review.

In view of the "death sentence" of the public utility act of 1935, requiring holding companies to limit their operations to a single, geographically integrated public utility system, the committee adopted an amendment to exempt securities involved in dissolutions and reorganizations from the capital gains tax.

The committee voted to reduce the excise on automobile tires and tubes by approximately one-third, with an estimated revenue loss of $13,000,000. The present taxes, yielding $40,000,000, range from 1½ to 2¼ cents a pound on tires and 2½ to 4 cents a pound on tubes. Previously the committee had thrown out a house provision increasing the liquor tax from $2 to $2.25 a gallon, estimated to yield from $19,000,000 to $35,000,000. Also, the committee had eliminated a house provision increasing the import duty on pork products from 3¼ to 9¼ cents a pound, estimated to yield $5,000,000.

New Tax Law as Proposed by Senate Committee

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 31.—(Special.)—Here are the principal provisions of the bill revising the revenue law as agreed upon by the senate finance committee. In parallel columns are provisions of present law and of house bill.

PRESENT LAW. [Act of 1936.]	HOUSE BILL.	SENATE REVISION.
Corporations—Must pay a so-called normal tax graduated from 8 to 15 per cent, plus a surtax on the undistributed profits graduated from 7 to 27 per cent.	Corporations — Exempts corporations with net incomes of less than $25,000 from the principle of the undistributed profits tax. Such corporations would pay 12½ per cent on the first $5,000, 14 per cent on the next $15,000, and 16 per cent on the remainder. Corporations with net incomes in excess of $25,000 would be taxed on a graduated scale ranging from 16 per cent, if all earnings were distributed in dividends, to 20 per cent if no earnings were distributed.	Corporations—Abolishes the principle of the undistributed profits tax and substitutes therefor a flat corporation income tax of 18 per cent of the adjusted net income. In addition, it contains a credit formula for businesses with net income of less than $25,000. Such corporations would receive a credit of 10 per cent of the difference between their actual net income and $25,000, the credit to be subtracted from the actual net income and the 18 per cent rate applied to the remainder.
Capital Gains and Losses—Does not permit losses to be carried over to offset gains. A percentage of capital gains are taxed as ordinary income, ranging from 100 per cent on assets held less than one year, 80 per cent on assets held from one to two years and on down to 30 per cent on assets held more than ten years.	Capital Gains and Losses—Permits a one year carry-over of net losses to be applied against net gains if any in the succeeding year. The house bill would tax short-term gains, realized from assets held less than one year as ordinary income. Long term losses, sustained from the sale of assets held more than one year, could be availed of only to the extent that there were long term gains, except that $2,000 of the excess losses could be charged against ordinary income. A percentage of the excess of long term gains would be taxed as ordinary income except that the taxpayer would have the alternative of paying a flat 40 per cent rate. If the assets were held more than thirteen months but not over fourteen months, 98 per cent of the gain would be taxed as ordinary income, and the precentage is graduated downward to 40 per cent in the case of assets held more than five years.	Capital gains and losses—Taxes short term gains, realized from the sale of capital assets held less than eighteen months, as ordinary income, but would permit short term losses to be carried over to offset gains if any in the succeeding year. On long term gains, realized from the sale of assets held for more than eighteen months, the senate bill offers the taxpayer the choice of whichever is less: [1] paying a flat rate of 15 per cent on the net gain or [2] adding 50 per cent of the gain to the ordinary income and computing the tax at the normal individual and surtax rates. On long term losses sustained from the sale of assets held more than eighteen months, the senate bill offers the taxpayer his choice of whichever is more: [1] Taking a credit of 15 per cent of the net loss against his income tax or [2] subtracting from the ordinary income 50 per cent of the net loss.
Estate and Gift Taxes — The 1936 act permits an exemption of $100,000 and graduates the estate tax rates up to 20 per cent. The 1932 act permitted an exemption of $40,000 and graduated the estate tax rates up to 70 per cent. The law permits a deduction of the amount payable under the 1926 act from the tentative figure computed on the basis of the 1932 act. The law also permits a credit for state death duties of 80 per cent of the federal tax due under the 1926 act, with no additional credit under the 1932 act. In effect, this permits a credit for state death duties of about 25 per cent of the total federal tax.	Estate and Gift Taxes—Combines the two estate levies, but provides that the credit for state death duties can not be more than 16⅓ per cent of the federal tax. Moreover, it telescopes the existing exemption of $40,000 for both estate and gift taxes, providing that a total of not more than $40,000 could be taken. In addition to the special $40,000 gift tax exemption, existing law permits an annual exemption of $5,000 on gifts to any number of individuals, and the house bill reduces this to $3,000.	Estate and gift taxes—Restores the provisions of existing law. In addition to the $40,000 estate tax exemption there is an exemption of $40,000 on insurance policies payable to the beneficiaries of the decedent. Annual gifts of not more than $5,000 each may be made to any number of relatives or other individuals without taxation. In addition to the annual gift exemptions there is a special gift exemption of $40,000, which may be taken in any one year or over a period of years, but gifts made under it are cumulative. If a man gave his wife $25,000 in one year, $5,000 of it would be exempt under the annual gift exemption and $20,000 would be charged to his special exemption of $40,000. If he gave her $25,000 the next year, $5,000 would be exempt under the annual exemption, but he would exhaust his $40,000 exemption.
Personal Holding Companies—Levies a prohibitive tax of 75 per cent on the undistributed profits of personal holding companies, but the shackling effects of the capital gains tax has prevented their liquidation in most cases.	Personal Holding Companies—Unchanged.	Personal holding companies—Permits the liquidation of such companies over a three year period, which would embrace four tax periods if the liquidation began in the middle of a tax year. Under the senate bill the capital gains would be subject only to the flat 15 per cent tax.

VAN NUYS' HOPES RISE AS INDIANA DRIVE SHAPES UP

Indianapolis, Ind., March 31.—[Special.]—Making preparations to return to Washington for the final weeks of the present session of congress, Senator Frederick Van Nuys said tonight he is well satisfied with the organization formed to back his independent candidacy for reëlection.

In the last ten days the senator has held daily conferences here with political leaders from all parts of the state. Today he announced completion of a preliminary organization reaching into all 92 counties of the state.

Organization to be Separate.

"In view of the bitter opposition of the state house Democratic machine, my preliminary organization is a much better one than I had expected at the time I came here," Van Nuys said. "I might say that my own organization will be separate and distinct from the state house machine, that it will be financed independently of the Two Per Cent club [the administration organization which levies a tribute on all state employés' salaries], and that it will comply with the spirit and letter of both the state corrupt practices act and the federal act on the same subject.

Raps Two Per Cent Club.

"Even under other circumstances I could not have accepted aid from the Two Per Cent organization for the simple reason that I regard the organization as violative of both the federal and state corrupt practices act."

Senator Van Nuys will leave Saturday for Washington to vote on the new tax measure. He will vote for repeal of the undistributed corporate surplus levies in the present law, against the proposal to penalize family owned corporations, and for repeal of the captial gains and losses provision of the law.

BLOWS BUBBLE OF INVECTIVE AT BRONX LEADER

New York, March 31.—[Special.]—James J. Lyons, Bronx borough president, was described as an official who looks and thinks like a cake of soap today by Newbold Morris, president of the city council, as the board of estimate held a session to delete items from the current capital outlay budget.

Lyons moved to adopt Mayor Firello H. La Guardia's capital outlay budget in full on the theory that his home borough got more at the mayor's hands than it would at the hands of his colleagues on the board.

FOUND SLAIN IN HOTEL.

Columbus, O., March 31.—(AP)—A man identified through personal effects as Lawrence Lloyd Carroll, 45 years old, of Mattoon, Ill., was found shot to death today in a hotel room. The coroner said he apparently had committed suicide.

HERE'S A SHORT CUT TO SPRING CLEANING
That Saves Time—Saves Work and most important, Saves Your Hands

You, too, will be thrilled the way the rich "double-suds" of American Family Flakes take the drudgery out of spring cleaning

IF YOU have a horror of Spring Cleaning; if you dread the thought of how ugly and red your hands will look—then do what countless thousands of women do AND USE AMERICAN FAMILY FLAKES EXCLUSIVELY.

The wisdom of this is very plain. For most cheap soap chips depend upon harmful alkali or strong chemicals which nearly always make hands rough and red, as they vainly try to get rid of dirt.

AMERICAN FAMILY FLAKES, ON THE OTHER HAND, DEPEND ON THE PUREST, THICKEST, CREAMIEST SUDS YOU HAVE EVER SEEN TO GET THINGS CLEAN.

Amazing Results of Laboratory Tests

Laboratory tests prove that American Family Flakes contain more suds-making material than ordinary flakes, chips or powders. They dissolve almost the instant they hit the water. And they dissolve ENTIRELY and thus eliminate the danger of spotting fabrics.

But of even greater importance is the fact that their active, "DOUBLE SUDS" float out the grimiest dirt—without hard rubbing. This is why white fabrics come out with a new, snowy whiteness. Why colored fabrics retain their brilliance and beauty. Why ALL washables last much longer. And why for washing woodwork, window sills, etc., they are unsurpassed.

For over ninety years American Family has been the largest selling brand of soap in and around Chicago. Try American Family Flakes and you will quickly prove that you can't afford to use Cheap Soap Chips. That it IS cheaper to buy good soap than new clothes.

For dishwashing you will find American Family Flakes unexcelled—and that they leave your hands soft and smooth.

REPORT RENEWAL OF U. S. HOUSING QUIZ IN CHICAGO

Old Charge of Plumbing Fraud Is Denied.

Washington, D. C., March 31.—[Special.]—Reports from Chicago today indicated the possible renewal of an old investigation into plumbing bids and costs on several federal housing projects there.

The original inquiry was begun in 1936 and completed last year. A voluminous report of the findings was sent to Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes and forwarded to the department of justice last summer. So far as could be learned tonight the report is still there.

Investigators Employed Elsewhere.

S. Norman Moe, who directed the inquiry as chief agent in Chicago for the public works division of investigation, is no longer with the division. He is employed by the Wisconsin state labor board. Herbert Wentzel, another investigator, is also no longer associated with the division. He is a trial examiner for the National Labor Relations board. The present PWA chief investigator is C. Raymond Wire.

The Chicago investigation of plumbing in federal housing projects was ordered some two years ago by Mr. Ickes along with similar inquiries in key cities from Cleveland to San Francisco. At the same time Mr. Ickes ordered inquiries into costs of steel on various PWA projects. The investigation also covered foreign steel and cement. No prosecutions developed from the inquiries.

The reports of a renewal of the old plumbing investigation in Chicago come at a time when more and more complaints are being heard that federal housing costs far more than private building.

Plumbers' Group Disbands.

The original inquiry was conducted into the operations of the Cook county plumbing contractors' association, which had a membership of some 600, and was headed by William J. Woolley, chairman of its administrative board. This organization disbanded four weeks ago, explaining in public advertisements why it did so.

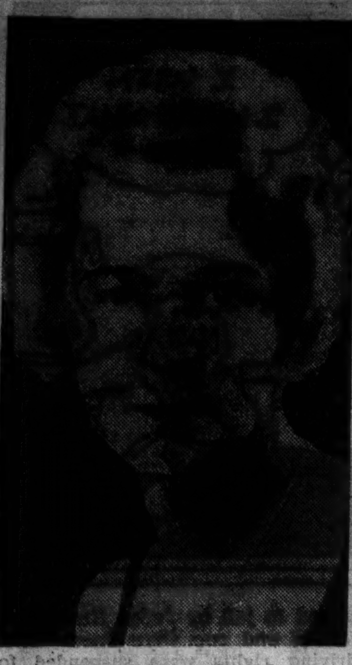
According to the Chicago reports, the plumbing organization, under Mr. Woolley, is accused of working with the plumbers' union to raise plumbing bids on housing projects so that costs on the projects were half a million dollars higher than they should have been. The organization, it was charged, forced low bidders to raise their estimates, either by threatening them with fines that would make the work unprofitable or by depriving them of necessary union labor.

The investigators' report was given to Special Assistant Attorney General James Ruffin to investigate as a possible basis for a charge of conspiracy to defraud the government. That was months ago. Mr. Ruffin could not be reached tonight to find out whether action may be taken.

CHARGES ARE DENIED.

In Chicago last night William J. Woolley denied the several charges made against the plumbing group he heatied. The organization grew out of the old NRA, he said, and was designed to guarantee that all plumbing work on contracts conformed to a fair code of practices. His books were open to government investigators two years ago and still are, he said. The plumbers' association was disbanded, he added, because of a number of unscrupulous contractors whose work the association had guaranteed.

Divorced by Mate



[Rayhuff-Richter Photo.]

MRS. RAYMOND J. HEALY.

An uncontested divorce was granted yesterday by Judge Denis J. Normoyle to Raymond J. Healy, 31 years old, of the Lake Shore Athletic club, from Mrs. Dorothy Morton Healy, 28 years old, of 3500 Lake Shore drive. Healy, who is the son of one of the founders of the Lyon & Healy Co., charged desertion. A property settlement has been arranged, the court was told.

SALE OF WEDDING LICENSES STILL IN SLUMP IN COUNTY

The marriage license business is still in a slump, according to statistics made public yesterday by Michael J. Flynn, county clerk. There were only 1,517 licenses issued in March, as compared to 2,782 a year ago.

There have been 4,899 licenses issued since the first of the year. In the first three months of last year there were 8,093. The medical test and three day notice requirements are still affecting the license market adversely, Flynn said.

MASS 15 MILLION POSIES FOR SHOW PREVIEW TONIGHT

Flower Exhibit Takes All U. S. as its Theme.

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

Gardeners have forced into bloom approximately 15 million flowers that are being arranged for the preview tonight of the twelfth annual Chicago Flower show on Navy pier. The show is held under the direction of the Garden Club of Illinois, an organization of more than 10,000 women gardeners. It will be open to the public daily, beginning tomorrow morning, from 10 a. m. to 10 p. m. Through Sunday, April 10, Mrs. Raymond Knotts of Berwyn, publicity chairman, announced yesterday.

More than 5,000 persons who coöperated in presenting this national horticultural exhibition have received invitations to the preview, according to Mrs. O. W. Dynes of Hinsdale, general chairman. More than 234,000 attended last year.

Planned on National Scale.

Under the direction of Walter Frazier, Chicago architect, the show this year has been designed for the first time to represent flower gardening on a nationwide scale. Officials explained that this was in honor of Mrs. Dynes, who is president of the National Council of State Garden clubs.

Through coöperation of the council's federation of forty state garden clubs, officials of the Garden Club of Illinois have been able to bring flowers, shrubs, and trees from all parts of the United States. Exhibits have been built by members of the 120 garden clubs in Illinois to symbolize the seven regions of the country represented in the national council.

Emphasis will be given to home gardening in the Pacific coast, Rocky mountain, south central, central, and north Atlantic states.

Southern Garden Displays.

There will be bougainvillea vines, palm trees, smilax, and magnolia from southern gardens. Many horticulturists consider bougainvillea the handsomest ornamental vines of the tropics. The American Cactus society has aided in developing the assortment of cacti that will be displayed in the Pacific coast exhibit. Many of the plants, brought from Arizona, are ready to unfold their blossoms. Lemon trees from the south will be shown.

Carpenters have been working all week hewing rails and posts for the corral fence built around the Colorado ranch house, a feature of the Rocky mountain regional exhibit.

Prizes to Be Awarded.

Prizes will be awarded today by thirty-five judges working under the general supervision of Mrs. Albert O. Olsen of Glencoe. Ribbons will be tied on the winning exhibits before the preview this evening.

In addition to ribbons and trophies, cash awards will be made to outstanding gardens and other features in regional exhibits by Willard W. Jacques, 5754 Sheridan road, Chicago; Mrs. Sherman Hay, 645 Sheridan road, Winnetka; Mrs. Charles R. Walgreen, Dixon, Ill., and Mrs. Henry Bartholomay, Lake Geneva, Wis.

Between $5,000 and $6,000 will be awarded for the best exhibits by commercial growers.

INVESTIGATE SEVEN SERUM DEATHS; FOUR OTHER PERSONS ILL

Orlando, Fla., March 31.—(AP)—Deaths of seven women and the illness of four other persons—all patients at a clinic where a serum was injected for the treatment of cancer—were investigated by county, state and federal health authorities today.

The seventh victim of a strange poisoning, much like tetanus [lockjaw] yet differing in its reaction to treatments, died today. She was Mrs. F. E. Moonert, 63 years old, of Winter Park, Fla.

Mrs. Lydia Morrison, 49; E. S. Bolte, 70; C. S. Pore, 65, and Mrs. Ola Hall, all residents of Orlando, were in hospitals with the same symptoms which preceded the deaths of the seven women. Physicians said Mrs. Morrison, Bolte and Pore appeared to be near death.

Dr. T. A. Neal said all the eleven received injections for cancer treatment at his clinic from a bottle of serum known as ensol. Dr. Neal agreed with a statement by Dr. H. C. Connell of Kingston, Ont., Canada, inventor of the serum, that the one bottle used for treating the eleven must have become contaminated.

TRAP SKYLIGHT BURGLAR IN ACT; 3 OTHERS HELD

A skylight burglar was trapped at dawn yesterday as he was preparing to drive away with his loot from the Rome Motor Sales company, 4107 Milwaukee avenue. Last night Jefferson Park police announced that they had confessions from him and three other men arrested as accomplices.

The skylight burglar is Eugene Tabirs, 317 South Throop street, a parolee. Capt. Herbert Burns and Lieut. John Walsh said he has stolen $15,000 worth of typewriters, tools, and equipment from garages. Held with him are Robert Bruce of the same address; Charles Krugen, 949 Madison street, and Harry Berninger, 2147 Gladys avenue.

2 ROB JEWELRY SALESMAN OF $7,500 IN RINGS

Seized in the loop at Wells and Lake streets, Benjamin Tanenbaum, Buffalo, N. Y., jewelry merchant, was robbed of $7,500 worth of rings last night. Tanenbaum was returning from calls on Chicago customers when he halted for a stop light. A man leaped into his car, pressed a gun against him, and ordered him to drive north. At Grand avenue and Franklin street a second gunman got in. The robbers then took the rings and ordered Tanenbaum to drive on.

TAVERN CRIBBAGE PLAYER IS SHOT BY ROBBER GANG

Among the dozen or more customers last night in George Martin's tavern on Jackson street in Joliet were Philip Zappa and his wife, Ethelyn. They were playing cribbage at a table near the front door when three robbers entered. One of the intruders went behind the bar while the others menaced the patrons. When a customer made a break for the door a bandit fired at him and missed. The bullet struck Zappa. At St. Joseph's hospital, Joliet, it was said his chances for recovery were slight.

WORKERS SMASH C. I. O. LINE AGAIN AT LUMBER MILL

Rout Pickets in 4th Day's Battle; 10 Beaten.

Laona, Wis., March 31.—[Special.]—In the fourth day of fighting here, American Federation of Labor workers battled nearly an hour with C. I. O. pickets at the Connor Lumber and Land company mill and drove them half a mile from the plant.

It was the fourth time the A. F. of L. men had whipped their rivals, who sought to bar their way into the mill. At least ten persons were severely beaten. Three pickets were tossed into a creek. Clubs and brickbats were used freely in the mêlée.

After fighting their way through the picket line into the mill grounds, the A. F. of L. workers turned back at the cry of their leaders to drive the pickets off.

600 Participate in Battle.

It was estimated there were nearly 300 employés and almost that many pickets in the fight.

The C. I. O. belligerents were driven along Main street to their headquarters half a mile from the mill. Individual fights flared on all sides during the rout.

The trouble here was started by the C. I. O. men after the A. F. of L. Lumber and Timber Workers' union won collective bargaining rights and a closed shop agreement. In contrast to the usual policy of the C. I. O., that organization's adherents in Laona want an open shop.

Seek Removal of Mayor.

Belvidere, Ill., March 31.—[Special.]—Efforts to remove Mayor Perry Cratty, who asked for National Guard troops in a strike controversy, were being made today by strikers at the National Sewing Machine company plant here, a spokesman for the group declared.

Carl Baylander, the spokesman, said 400 signatures had been obtained to a petition demanding that the mayor be ousted. Cratty, who is a nonunion foreman employed in the strike bound plant, yesterday informed Gov. Henry Horner that the situation was out of control here. The governor advised that local authority be exhausted before the National Guard is used.

C. I. O. Petition Rejected.

Detroit, Mich., March 31.—[Special.]—A petition of the United Automobile Workers of America, a C. I. O. organization, charging the police department with brutality and seeking a curb on the department's use "to grind down the wage level and the worker," was tabled by the city council today. The council galleries were packed with 200 C. I. O. men as the action was taken.

"The mayor's storm troopers ought to be put in their place," Homer Martin, international president of the U. A. W. A., told the council as he related that scores of persons had been injured in five clashes between police and pickets at the Federal Screw works.

Mayor Richard Reading, who was elected last fall over his C. I. O. indorsed opponent, asserted that the police department is under orders to enforce strict observance of laws by all sides in strikes.

The screw works, where 13 policemen and 25 other persons were injured in fighting yesterday afternoon, was shut down today until Monday.

Halt Moline Bridge Work.

Moline, Ill., March 31.—[Special.]—Forty members of Tri-City American Federation of Labor unions today forced a halt in construction of the $82,000 bridge linking Campbell's island in the Mississippi with the mainland.

The unionists drove sixteen nonunion men off the job and established a picket line. The bridge, a Rock Island county project, was being built with nonunion labor.

"Strikers who picket peacefully will be protected from interference from any source," the mayor said, "and nonstrikers who desire to go to work will be protected from violence at the hands of strikers or pickets."

Conrad Schadt, Silvis contractor, asked for police protection and declared his intention of resuming work tomorrow. He said the union caused damage at the project by stopping the operation of pumps which keep cofferdams clear of water.

C. I. O., CHRYSLER HEADS AGREE ON NEW CONTRACT

Detroit, Mich., March 31.—[Special.]—The Chrysler corporation and the United Automobile Workers' union officials tonight announced they had signed an agreement to continue for one year their present contract, which expired at midnight.

K. T. Keller, president of Chrysler, headed the management negotiators while the union delegation was led by Richard T. Frankensteen, assistant president of the international, and R. J. Thomas, international vice president in charge of Chrysler locals.

BOY HIT BY AUTO WHILE PLAYING IN STREET DIES

Frank Pavesich, 6 years old, who was struck by an automobile Wednesday while playing in the street near his home at 1951 Dayton street, died yesterday in St. Joseph's hospital from a skull fracture. Paul Bulla, 1630 Dayton street, driver of the car, was held blameless by a coroner's jury which returned a verdict of accidental death.

Albert Svolba, 70 years old, 4118 Grove avenue, Stickney, died yesterday in the County hospital of injuries incurred on Feb. 1 when he was struck by a car driven by Fred Soukup, 4613 Wenonah avenue, Forest View, at Wenonah avenue and 43d street in Stickney. Soukup was charged with reckless driving and his case will be heard Saturday.

William Bowen, 37 years old, colored, 5163 Michigan avenue, whose skull was fractured on March 12 when his motorcycle struck a safety island in Michigan avenue at 46th street, died yesterday in the Provident hospital.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday 213 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these 172 were killed in Chicago, where 4,111 were injured in the same period.

Hearing Ordered on Plea to Stop C. I. O. Picketing

Judge Joseph Burke took under advisement yesterday the injunction petition of the Continental Beauty shop, 4808 North Kedzie avenue, asking that C. I. O. picketing in front of the place be stopped. The court offered to take a vote of the 23 girls employed by the shop to determine if they want to switch their union membership from the A. F. of L. to the C. I. O. When this offer was refused Judge Burke ordered attorneys to prepare to argue the case later.

DRIVER FLUNKS LIE TEST; GETS EXTRA 25 DAYS

William Olsen, 1824 North Luna avenue, took a chance with the lie detector in the Safety court of Judge J. M. Braude yesterday. He didn't win. Instead, he got twenty-five extra days in the county jail.

Olsen, charged with reckless driving, insisted he had not been drinking before he was arrested at Wabansia and Long avenues on Feb. 3. The arresting policemen said otherwise. When the lie test showed the policemen were right Judge Braude told Olsen: "I intended to give you five days if you told the truth, but now you will go to jail for thirty." In addition Olsen was suspended from driving for six months.

Three other motorists were sentenced to jail by Judge Braude yesterday, and two were fined. Their driving rights were suspended for varying periods. The defendants:

NAPOLEON KOSINSKIS, 4515 South Fairfield avenue, reckless driving, twenty-two days in the county jail.

HENRY BASCH, Blue Island, leaving the scene of an accident, ten days in the Bridewell, $25 fine.

HARRY CARRINGTON, 454 West 44th street, fined $25, and FRANK WARWICK, 1420 North Campbell avenue, fined $10 for reckless driving.

The Chicago avenue police yesterday were holding Haskell Benson, 190 East Chestnut street for arraignment today on charges of reckless driving. Benson was arrested after he fled from the scene of an accident at Dearborn and Maple streets Wednesday night.

"PARADE OF GAS RANGES" MONTH

● The Cooking Carnival at Peoples Gas Building marks the start of Chicago's "PARADE OF GAS RANGES" MONTH.

All during April, Chicago department stores and dealers will maintain special displays and demonstrations of the beautiful 1938 Gas Ranges which lighten kitchen work and make good cooking easy for every family.

By visiting your favorite dealer's store during Chicago's "Parade of Gas Ranges" Month you can become informed on modern cookery, as experts do it. Learn all about "waterless" cooking . . . smokeless broiling . . . automatic time controls on Modern Gas Ranges that free you for hours from the kitchen while your dinner cooks itself, perfectly!

If you have never inspected a Modern Gas Range, ask for a special demonstration at any Peoples Gas office. You will be amazed at Gas Range improvements. See how automatic controls of the new ranges take all "guesswork" out of cooking and make chef-style cooking easier to do than the old-fashioned watch-and-wait methods.

Be sure to attend Peoples Gas Cooking Carnival. Also see special displays and demonstrations of Modern Gas Ranges at your favorite dealers, all through April.

THE POLITICIAN AS BUILDER.

Illinois has 10,500 miles of highway in its primary road system. Only 3,500 miles of it are self-supporting, according to the recent reckoning of the state's own highway department. The other two-thirds of the system is operated at a loss. Not enough automobiles travel on this two-thirds of the mileage to meet the construction and operating costs incurred.

In fact, the situation is even more discreditable than these crude figures would suggest. Most of the mileage which is self-sustaining is on old routes which were among the first to be given a hard surface. These roads today are antiquated. They are dangerous because they were not well planned in the first place, because the pavement in many places has been pounded into wretched condition, because grade crossings have not been eliminated or adequately protected, and because, with all these deficiencies, these are the most heavily traveled roads in the state and therefore the ones on which accidents are most to be feared.

Instead of spending a fair proportion of the highway funds to modernize these routes by relocating and resurfacing them where necessary, the politicians have thrown money away on roads which never will be worth what they cost the people of this state. Three-fourths of the state's revenue from gasoline taxes comes from automobiles operating on city pavements, but only a relatively insignificant share of it is spent in the cities or in the approaches to them. The bulk of it is squandered on the political highways which constitute two-thirds of the state's system.

There is nothing in this accounting which should astonish any one who understands the ways of government. The application of road funds in Illinois provides a fair picture of the norm of governmental honesty and efficiency in the handling of public funds. To obtain votes and distribute jobs and contracts where they will do the most good [politically], money is wasted, lives are sacrificed, the welfare of individuals and industries in the state is neglected. Citizens who expect anything different or anything better from government are only fooling themselves. Citizens who think that what is true of state expenditures is not true in equal degree of federal spending are victims of a particularly dangerous delusion. The federal pork barrel always was a major scandal and political public works have touched a new low for waste and inefficiency in recent years.

WHEN CRIME WAS RAMPANT.

Former Judge Lyle is running for municipal judge in the Republican primary. He was left off the Republican slate, it is said, because of the objection of a former president of the Bar association, who recalled the opinion of a committee which held Judge Lyle temperamentally unqualified. This judgment was chiefly based upon Judge Lyle's placing such high bail bonds on hoodlums and gangsters that many of them remained in jail until trial. The committee also protested the taking of pictures of hoodlums in Judge Lyle's courtroom. The committee was more concerned with observance of ancient forms than with the suppression of crime.

Citizens should recall the circumstances in which these alleged errors took place. The St. Louis Globe-Democrat in a recent editorial entitled "Regenerate Chicago" has recalled them. "Only a few years ago," said the Globe-Democrat, "Chicago bore the hateful distinction of being the nation's crime capital. Murder, racketeering, and the whole category of criminal miscreance seemed to flourish. The city was a maelstrom of gang wars and hijacking battles. It was viewed in the prints as a haven of desperadoes, whose overlords mulcted the city of millions yearly."

In that situation Judge Lyle took a militant part to deal with conditions in which law enforcement was being successfully evaded and insolently defied by the underworld. The Bar committee considered that Judge Lyle was misinterpreting and exceeding his powers, but the situation was desperate and desperate remedies, most of the people of Chicago felt, were called for.

At any rate, Judge Lyle's judicial record cannot be fairly judged without reference to the conditions in which he acted. The people of Chicago have reason to remember them and those who took active part in the fight against them.

A TEST OF LEGISLATIVE FITNESS.

Once in a great while a vote is taken in the legislature which separates the sheep from the goats in unmistakable fashion. Such a vote was taken last year in the house on the proposal to investigate the conduct of Judge Edwin L. Wilson, the slot-machine judge of Joliet.

The facts in the Wilson case were as clear cut as they were notorious. He had issued a temporary injunction on April 27, 1936, to restrain the authorities of Will county from interfering with the operation of the slot machines. After more than a year had elapsed he still had failed to dissolve the temporary injunction or issue a permanent one. Meanwhile, the operator, thanks to his inaction, was in possession of a monopoly of the gambling machine business in the county.

A resolution calling for Judge Wilson's impeachment was introduced by Representative Joseph Sam Perry of Wheaton. It charged Judge Wilson with "willful and corrupt conduct in office." It was amended to provide for an investigation of the judge's conduct which might or might not result in impeachment. Even in that form the resolution was defeated by the close margin of 63 to 61.

On its face the record leaves no doubt that Judge Wilson is utterly unfit for the bench. He should have been impeached. Far from enforcing the law, he had encouraged its violation in a fashion happily almost without parallel in the judicial annals of the state. There was no doubt about the facts and no doubt about their meaning. The judge's conduct in resisting an inquiry only added to the accumulation of evidence against him; an innocent man would have welcomed an opportunity to clear himself. The 63 who voted to whitewash the judge without even an inquiry saved him his job but in so doing condemned themselves as permanently unfit for office.

The votes of the representatives from Judge Wilson's own district are particularly deserving of attention. Joseph Sam Perry of Wheaton, a Democrat, and Warren L. Wood of Joliet, a Republican, voted for the investigation. The slot-machine judge found a stanch friend in Mrs. Lottie Holman O'Neill of Downers Grove, a Republican. It is difficult to believe that their constituents will overlook this most significant chapter in their legislative careers.

AMERICAN ELECTRIC POWER SOVIETIZED.

While congress is making preparations for the investigation of the Tennessee Valley authority the house committee on rivers and harbors has reported out favorably the regional development bill providing for seven more governmental corporations, covering the entire area of the country, to do what the TVA has been doing in the Tennessee valley.

This proposal was on the work sheet for the special session when it was called last fall. Congress didn't get around to it then, but the fact that it was included in the emergency affairs for which a special session was deemed necessary threw another scare into the badly disorganized private utility industry. This industry, which has been one of the most adventurous of American private enterprises, is the one most directly confronted with a sovietized form of state socialism.

There has been talk of nationalizing railroads and coal fields and efforts to collectivize agriculture, but the electrical power utilities have been face to face with the governmental corporation intended to supplant them. They are being extinguished in the area of the Tennessee valley, where their best hope now is to get a deal with the government which will allow them to surrender the field to the governmental corporation without the complete ruin of their investors. A large part of the depression, as it affects durable goods, has been attributed to the failure of the utilities to expand their plants and place the orders they would have placed if they were not being supplanted by state socialism.

The prospect of having communistic electric power production based upon a fraud of navigation and flood control extended all over the country, as is proposed in the new bill for seven more electric corporations, is enough to stop private enterprise completely in this field.

Congress probably will refuse to discuss the new bill until it has completed an investigation of TVA, but the threat of the new legislation is in the background and, with governmental tendencies what they are, there is no assurance that the country is not about to have imposed upon it this great socialistic dominion in the production of power with everything it may portend to all industries.

Editorial of the Day

JUST FOOLISHNESS.

[The following comment was printed in THE TRIBUNE of Dec. 22 as an Editorial of the Day and ascribed to the London Sphere. In March it was reprinted by inadvertence and has elicited three communications from readers, two of whom state that they have written to the Sphere and received a reply denying that the article appeared in the Sphere. This seems to have impressed our correspondents with some sinister implication the nature of which we do not understand, but since they are interested to know the original source of publication we reprint the article again with the request that any editor or reader who may have read it in its original publication send the information to THE TRIBUNE. The facts expressed in the article are familiar and the view expressed obvious. It does not seem to us important whether they appeared in the Sphere or elsewhere, but our correspondents evidently think it is, and we are glad to try to give them any obtainable information. We do not apologize to the Sphere for ascribing a very sensible comment to it and we are not surprised that none has been asked. But neither should we be puzzled if its editor should express wonder that in a world shaking with great events any one should expend ink or postage in such an inquiry. Our own excuse for the attention given it is in our desire to satisfy every reader, and also in our belief that some of our readers may have missed the previous publication and will be glad to read it now.—Ed.]

The United States contains 6 per cent of the world's area and 7 per cent of its population. It normally consumes 48 per cent of the world's coffee, 53 per cent of its tin, 56 per cent of its rubber, 21 per cent of its sugar, 72 per cent of its silk, 36 per cent of its coal, 42 per cent of its pig iron, 47 per cent of its copper and 69 per cent of its crude petroleum.

The United States operates 60 per cent of the world's telephone and telegraph facilities, owns 80 per cent of the motor cars in use, operates 33 per cent of the railroads. It produces 70 per cent of the oil, 60 per cent of the wheat and cotton, 50 per cent of the copper and pig iron and 40 per cent of the lead and coal output of the globe.

The United States possesses almost $11,000,000,000 in gold, or nearly half of the world's monetary metal. It has two-thirds of civilization's banking resources. The purchasing power of the population is greater than that of the 500,000,000 people in Europe and much larger than that of the more than a billion Asiatics.

Responsible leadership which cannot translate such a bulging economy into assured prosperity is destitute of capacity. But pompous statesmen, looking over the estate, solemnly declare that the methods by which it was created are all wrong, ought to be abandoned, must be discarded, that the time has come to substitute political management for individual initiative and supervision.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may. Reg. U.S. Pat. Office

HANDSOMEST AND MOST ENTERTAINING of composers, Nicolas Nabokoff, composer of the music for "Union Pacific" and other ballets, and music head of Wells college, in town to lecture at the Arts club yesterday and before the Renaissance society tonight, is famed privately for his imitations. The late Diaghileff, Dali, the late Grand Duke Alexander, and personalities in the artistic world figure in his stories. A delicious bit of satire was demonstrated in a story he told luncheon companions yesterday at the Arts club. Nabokoff said he encountered Nikolai Sokoloff, WPA music head, on the street in New York recently. "Ah, Nabokoff," said his fellow Russian—and Nabokoff imitated his dramatic broken English—"here I am head of WPA music and you are head of music in a big college. We must do something for American music."

A MAN WAITING at St. Mary's hospital for his baby to arrive just called up with some news. A gambler from the west side—proprietor of several establishments—also was there waiting for his heir and it had just arrived, weight 7 pounds 11 ounces. Seven come eleven.

'Tis of another's making,
But should it suddenly turn gay—
Be sure my own heart's breaking!

SHOLOM SECUNDA, who made song history with his Bei Mir Bist Du Schoen, is conducting the orchestra for "The Brothers Ashkenazi" at the Studebaker. He sold the rights for $30 and gets no royalties. "And it's the only thing I've ever written I cared nothing about," Secunda says with an ironic shrug. . . . Den store misforstaeles is what Brooklyn born Sigrid Gurie, in town this week, called the tale of her Norwegian nativity—Norwegian for "the great misunderstanding." . . . Double for Snow White—Marilew Cavanagh, 18 year old Beverly Hills resident.

Dos Pikeros.

I have just returned from a winter in Mexico City. Before leaving I thought I would run up to Chapultepec and take a long last look about the castle. It was near the big bronze grasshopper fountain that I beheld with great surprise the former emperor of the Aztecs.

Montezuma, in all his glittering splendor, was sitting in the sun picking some carnero from his teeth with a long, thin piece of obsidian. He had kicked off his golden sandals and was rubbing his feet together in a most comfy satisfaction while he read in one of our great American newspapers the latest war news from Spain. I heard him saying half aloud and half to himself:

"Scarcely four centuries have passed since Cortez and his night riders were shocked to pity and wrath when they discovered that we, a pagan people, sacrificed annually twenty thousand men, women, and children to our god of war."

He sat musing when summoned to answer a long distance phone call, but I could not help but hear his conversation.

"Bueno? Cortez? Well! Well! Well! O, that's past, forget it. Yes, I have just been reading about it. I guess we were a couple of pikers."

Grace R. Squires.

BARRETT WENDELL'S STORY about the Englishman shown the spot where Warren fell reminded W. Russell Button of the tale of the old lady who was being shown around the old Victory in Portsmouth. When they came to a brass plate marking the spot where Nelson received his fatal wound at Trafalgar the guide said: "And this is where Horatio Nelson fell." "I don't wonder," said the old lady. "I nearly fell over it myself."

CHIVALRY—1938. A young mother on the south side was pushing a baby carriage in which her baby son sat holding a fat balloon on a string. A gust of wind tore it from the baby's hand. As the mother hurried after it an automobile stopped and a fat elderly man jumped out and seized the balloon. The young mother smiled and put out her hand to receive it, explaining that it belonged to her baby. "Well, it's mine now," said the man, getting back into the car and driving off.

Who Said "In the Security of Your Home . . ."

Residents of a suburb of Dubuque, known as Eagle Point, are notified the day before and also the hour before blasting in a rock quarry near by. Women and children leave their homes until the blasting is over, then return to wait for another notification.

REED BROWN JR. of "Room Service" has put a trick peep-hole in the curtain at the Selwyn to fool backstage visitors. The peep-hole, about the size of a quarter, has a small mirror fitted into it. The other night he tried out his peep-hole gag on a south shore miss named Elna Hile. "Look, who's that young lady out front with the brown hat?" he asked her, turning away from the mirrored peephole. "That's funny," retorted the visitor as she peeked. "She looks just like me, but what a lousy hat!"

By the Last Post.

Here's a real bit of news for you. I've actually found some one who reads June Provines' "Line." Her name is June Provines. Regretting the passing of R. H. L. from the "Line" and hoping you'll get off the editorial page so I won't have to look at your odorous "Line" every morning. Regretfully and hopefully, Robert Falkman.

P. S.—The black line is in fond memory of "A Line o' Type or Two" which passed away when you took over. Please have the decency to bury it.

SUCH COMMUNICATIONS as the above give rise to understanding sympathy rather than indignation. Mr. Falkman obviously looked to the Line for daily enjoyment, which he no longer finds. We are sorry. He liked this department as run by preceding scribes, and might—just possibly might—like it better now if we tried to imitate more closely the Line of our predecessors. Perhaps it might be just as well to make clear to old Line readers our own feeling about a column. Any imitation lacks vitality, according to our way of thinking. We are not trying to imitate the Line of other days, but to present the type of column we think might be interesting to readers. Maybe we're wrong. Perhaps—like Cornelia Otis Skinner—we like to do it all, but haven't Miss Skinner's versatility. Maybe a majority of readers would like fewer oddments, fewer personalities, fewer stories, and more literary gems, quips, and poems of contributors. It's no fun doing a column unless you're making people enjoy it. What do you—the readers, if any (in spite of Mr. Falkman's comment)—want to read in this column?

PARASITES IN THE DIGESTIVE TRACT.

YEARS ago it was thought that any one who exhibited a voracious appetite was afflicted with a tapeworm. It was said that twice as much food must be consumed because the creature demanded full meals for himself alone. This viewpoint, of course, is the veriest rubbish, but parasites do exist and now and then find lodgment in the human intestinal tract.

The beef variety is the most widely distributed throughout the world. Instances of human infestation, however, are rare, as modern packing house inspection has erected protective barriers.

Of the three more common classes, only one—the fish species—causes a severe anemia which is sometimes mistaken for the pernicious kind. That which affects the pig is found also in dogs and cats and likewise may be transmitted to man.

Symptoms on the whole are not characteristic. There may be a sense of pressure in the abdominal area and some distress or colicky shifting pains. Occasionally constipation or diarrhea may lead to an erroneous diagnosis. After a time, however, segments of the worm appear in the stools or a marked anemia calls attention to the possibility of the presence of fish worm.

Strangely enough, these serpentlike affairs are rather long lived and cases have been reported in which they have been known to flourish within the alimentary canal of an individual for twenty years or more. Spontaneous recovery, therefore, is unusual for as long as the head remains the body will regenerate.

The importance of getting rid of these animals is obvious and—fortunately—all forms yield to about the same plan of treatment. Whatever method is adopted, the main consideration is that the chemical used, while poisonous to the interloper, must not be toxic to the patient.

For many years a powerful preparation known as male fern has been advocated. There is some objection to its use as it may damage the kidneys, injure the digestive apparatus, or be responsible for collapse. The search has continued, therefore, for something which would be sufficiently nauseating to the invader and yet be without danger to the host.

Within recent years the suggestion has been made that carbon tetrachloride could be administered with safety. Many of us are familiar with this substance, as it is the liquid so frequently found in hand fire extinguishers. Under its stupefying influence, many unwanted and uninvited guests will relinquish their hold on the intestinal wall and be swept free with the expulsion of the bowel contents. But even this is not a drug which can be employed with impunity and certain precautions are necessary. Sodium sulfate is recommended as a laxative, to be given with the medicine or shortly after. Both alcohol and fats are omitted strictly from the diet for several days. In addition, the calcium level in the blood should be raised and generous quantities of carbohydrates fed two or three days prior to the date appointed for the worm's going away party.

Under this treatment few patients will complain of more than slight nausea and some dizziness or headache; but as soon as a copious bowel discharge is secured all discomfort disappears. It is not necessary that the patient be starved before giving this compound, as was common with the older procedures.

But after all it is so much easier, with but routine precautions, to avoid the possibility of tapeworms than to expel them. Good hygiene dictates that one should wash the hands thoroughly after playing with dogs and cats. Furthermore, all meats and fish should be well cooked.

DELUSIONS OF GRANDEUR.

A. O. F. writes:

1. What are the symptoms of paresis?
2. Is it curable, and how?
3. What are the symptoms of softening of the brain?
4. Do either of the above lead to insanity before death?

REPLY.

1. The beginning signs may be slight, such as defective memory, tremors, loss of pride in personal appearance, and obvious character changes. Later, the patient may exhibit delusions of grandeur and think that he is capable of conducting the affairs of the world. Still later, mental deterioration occurs, with paralysis.
2. If the cause is syphilis fever therapy is employed. Many cases improve.
3. Usually caused by failure of circulation brought on by hardening of the arteries. Symptoms may be similar to the above.
4. Either disease may lead to complete mental irresponsibility.

TOXIN MAY BE CAUSE.

H. J. H. writes: I have a habit of moving my eyes, shoulders, and toes. I call it a habit, but it isn't in the true sense of the word, because the more I try to stop the more often I get the impulse to move these parts of the body. I have tried change of diet and tonics with no result. Could you tell me what might be causing this trouble?

REPLY.

Most of these movements are termed habit tics. A muscle or set of muscles may contract routinely. Sometimes nervous irritability caused by some toxin is responsible. In most instances, however, the tendency may be controlled with training. It is much like biting one's fingernails. The symptoms are aggravated by fatigue, excitement, and mental or physical strain. Infection, if present, should be removed. Mental hygiene will aid you to acquire poise and equanimity. One can learn to ignore apprehension which is groundless.

YOU'RE TOO OPTIMISTIC.

T. R. writes: Not long ago you had an article on appendicitis. It was my impression that deaths from this disease no longer occurred; that every one knew about the symptoms which are recognized so easily.

REPLY.

Would that your idealism were an actuality! There were 20,000 deaths in the United States from appendicitis last year. But even this substantial total does not equal the 36,000 who met death in automobile accidents. Some day we will regard human life as sacred.

IF CAUSE IS FOUND.

J. J. S. writes: 1. What is the cause of allergic dermatitis? 2. Can it be completely cured?

REPLY.

1. Allergic dermatitis is a skin eruption caused by sensitivity to some protein which may be associated with food, chemicals, or scores of other substances.
2. Yes, if the irritant can be identified and removed. Sometimes a vaccine accomplishes the same purpose.

FATHER KEOUGH'S FUNERAL SERMON.

Chicago, March 29.—I have just read in your paper the timely, bitter sermon of the Rev. Edward S. Keough expressed over the grave of the late Edward Shuler, who died a martyr to the cause of clean, democratic unionism. It appears to me that Father Keough's sermon expresses the sentiments of every decent, intelligent union man in America who respects democratic forms of government and believes in the principle of a fair day's work for a fair day's pay.

The future of organized labor in America depends upon the actions of labor leaders today, and if those who possess the power to purge organized labor of crooked union politicians and dictators do not act at once along this line one can safely gamble that unionism is riding to a fall.

AUGUST SCHULTZ.

WHOSE REPRESENTATIVES?

Chicago, March 28.—The President expressed his pleasure at the failure of the American people to "buy" the senate on the motion to recommit the reorganization bill. Does he not infer that we must "buy" what the constitution says belongs to us? Has he become so bold that he dares accuse us of bribery when we use telegrams to express our will to the senate? Should senators be our representatives or his?

The shocking fact is that we were outbid with our own money—or our own credit—and that, if the lure of public projects to cost from ten million to one hundred and thirty million dollars proved an insufficient price, our representatives were bludgeoned into line with threats of the withholding of patronage and relief.

The President himself has brought home to us the glaring truth that suffrage is our last line of defense. We had better use it before that, too, becomes the empty gesture that will be made in Austria on April 10.

In the light of crumbling democracies abroad, complacency and inaction here will be fatal. The democratic system of checks and balances must be maintained. The telegrams to which the President referred evidenced a normal reaction against centering too great power in the hands of any one individual or in one department of our government.

We, the people, may have lost a battle, but we have not lost the war. We still have left the sword of suffrage. Our votes must be used to uphold democracy and to destroy any vampire which seeks to nourish itself at the throat of American business and to grow fat on the very life blood of our republic.

A. H. HUMISTON.

DEJECTED.

Dubuque, Ia., March 29.—After the vote on the reorganization bill was announced yesterday my dejection scarcely knew any bounds. Undoubtedly millions of others felt as I did. The vote stood: Puppets, 49; Patriots, 42.

In a supposed democracy it truly is alarming when representatives of the people vote the opposite of the will and welfare of their constituents. Our forefathers expected that the executive would be in error at times, and did not intend the senate and house would surrender their powers to the executive, but correct him whenever necessary. During the last five years, as events have transpired, senators and representatives have been absolute nonessentials in Washington, and an honorable procedure on their part would have been to resign and refuse to accept their salaries.

Possibly it would be well to postpone this action until after we cut the war debts of the poor European nations which boast of their huge armaments and until after we build a big navy to pull British chestnuts out of the fire as we did in 1917, only to have them formulate a "gentlemen's" agreement among the European nations not to pay their just debts to us.

Pardon me if I seem to be too patriotic, but the Washington events of the last twelve months have been just a little too much for the average intelligent American to assimilate. I favor many good features of the New Deal and voted for President Roosevelt.

PATRIOTIC.

SUGGESTION.

Effingham, Ill., March 29.—The passing of the reorganization bill by the senate yesterday was a serious mistake. It appears that the house will now become the battleground.

May I offer a suggestion? There are very many people who are anxious to contact through letters and telegrams the men it will do the most good to reach. If THE TRIBUNE would print each day a list of those for, those against, and those undeclared it would give an opportunity to intensively contact those who are on the fence.

Let's keep America safe and do not surrender to one man rule!

LE GRAND A. FLACK.

A VERY YOUNG LADY.

Chicago, March 28.—It is evident that Miss Peace-At-What-A-Price is a very young lady or she would remember how twenty years ago the young ladies were pinning white feathers on any young men not in uniform.

VETERAN.

THE VOTING AGE.

Chicago, March 28.—With a large percentage of newspaper space devoted to juvenile crime and the coming election, I wonder how many think how these youths will cast their ballots. I suggest that we step up the age eligibility from twenty-one years to twenty-five and bar those with a criminal record from the polls. This, I feel, would lessen the corruptness of our government.

Test Your Facts

Below each of the following questions are listed three answers. Make your choice, turn to page 37 in the Want Ad section for the correct answers and mark your score.

1. How many years of independence will be celebrated by the United States on July 4, 1938?
[a] Two hundred. [b] One hundred and sixty-two. [c] one hundred and ninety-two.

2. What causes a person to feel chilly in a house in winter with the temperature at 78 degrees Fahrenheit?

3. What compounds have the property of neutralizing acids?
[a] Alkalies. [b] Salts. [c] Metals.

4. Who has the authority to canonize persons as saints of the Roman Catholic church?

PARTNERSHIP.

Chicago, March 25.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. A and B are partners in business. A invested $2,000 and B $500. Current stock inventory is $3,000 and actual assets $2,000. If partnership were dissolved, in what proportion would this be divided?

2. Can A force B to dissolve the partnership without B's consent for any cause or reason? Present lease runs for another year.

3. There is no written contract of partnership. Is the above investment by A and B legally in force? B furnished part cash and experience. The partnership has been equal as to salary. Is the same responsibility assumed by both as to liabilities and profits?

4. Can the private assets of A and B outside of the business be held by their creditors?

5. Can B legally insist upon a larger salary than he is now drawing, taking it for granted that A will receive the same remuneration, or must he get the consent of A to it? A is willing to work on a small salary to increase his assets in the store.

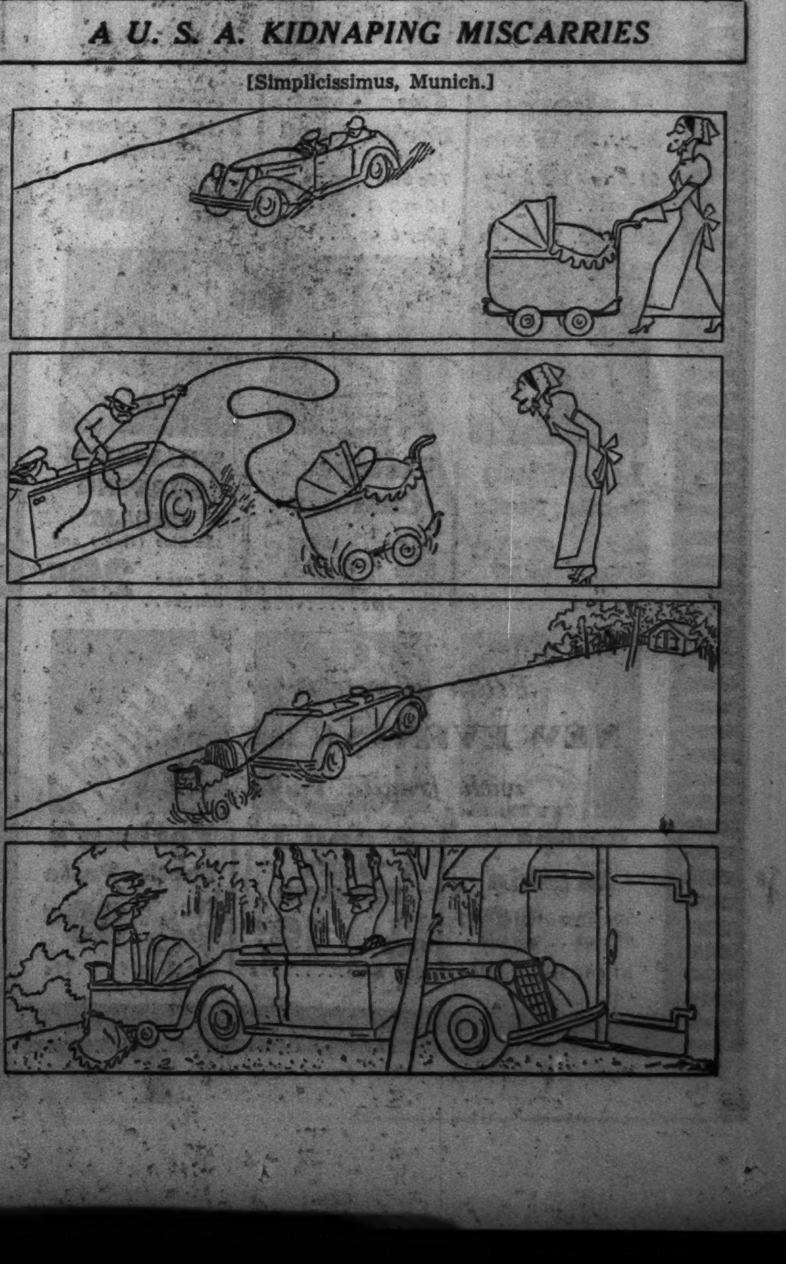
6. Would the following agreement be legal: B to receive fixed salary now and stipulated sum at expiration of present lease and in return immediately turn over to A all assets and debts, good will, etc., which A will be personally responsible for? Both signed the lease. Would that acquit B of all obligations? H. H.

1. In absence of showing to the contrary, it would be presumed that the original understanding was that the partners would contribute equally, hence B would be charged an additional $1,500 and the balance including such $1,500 divided equally.
2. In absence of agreement to the contrary, either partner can file a bill to dissolve.
3. As we understand it, you have stated that the agreement was so enforced, and we see no reason to disagree with you.
4. Yes, on proper facts.
5. If the partners cannot agree, dissolution is the remedy.
6. In general, they can make any agreement they please. We advise the employment of an attorney.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

A U. S. A. KIDNAPING MISCARRIES

[Simplicissimus, Munich.]



TERROR KILLINGS UNSOLVED; HUNT FOR CLEWS FAILS

No Suspects in Custody for 2 Union Slayings.

A week ago today, at 5:10 a. m., the body of Edward Shuler, a former student of the University of Chicago, was found in front of 2222 Ohio street. There were four bullets in the head. Shuler's relatives said he had been slain because of enmities growing out of his activities in union affairs.

Forty-nine days ago Lloyd Rourke, an independent laundry wagon driver, was slugged with baseball bats in the hands of pickets surrounding the Del Prado hotel in an effort to unionize employés there. Rourke died two days later, on Feb. 12.

No Progress Made.

No one is under arrest in connection with either case. Assistant State's Attorney Mal Coghlan, in charge of the investigation of both killings, said yesterday he knew of no suspects and had no good clews. Yesterday thirteen men who had been questioned in the Rourke case were dismissed—on charges of disorderly conduct—by Municipal Judge Joseph McGarry.

Shuler was a member of local 399, International Union of Operating Engineers, and was employed in the City National Bank building, 208 South La Salle street. He left the building at midnight March 24 with a man, identity unknown, who had called for him. The police have found no one who saw him alive after that.

When Mrs. Madelyn Shuler, the widow, heard of his death, she said he had been living in constant fear since October, when he was beaten in a union meeting.

Many Threats Made.

"We have received numerous threats over the telephone," she said. "We moved several times to get away from the callers."

From Russell Shuler, a brother of the slain man, Prosecutor Coghlan learned that Edward had frequently spoken of people who were "trying to get him." Russell added that Edward had named several persons who were to be suspected if harm came to him.

Official records show that in October four men were arrested for the alleged assault on Shuler. All were acquitted by Judge Harold P. O'Connell when witnesses disagreed as to who had done the slugging. One of the four was Lee Phillips, a member of the union and an ex-convict who was paroled from Joliet penitentiary in 1934 after serving five years for a $15,000 jewel robbery.

Jewel Thief Gives Alibi.

Phillips surrendered. He gave an alibi, after asserting that he had no ill will toward Shuler and knew nothing about his death. He was freed on a writ of habeas corpus when Coghlan informed Chief Justice Harrington of the Criminal court there was no evidence against him.

Andrew F. Leach, Charles Albright, and Lawrence Hickey, all members of the union, were the others who had been charged with assaulting Shuler. None of them have been questioned in the present case.

Shuler was a member of a faction in the local which had opposed the election of the president, Richard J. Wren. He was a partisan of Andrew Leach [an uncle but an opponent in union matters of Andrew F.] and was regarded as an able speaker. His brother Russell suggested that "somebody wanted to get him out of the way before the next election."

Deny Union Affairs Involved.

Officers of the union, including Wren, and the secretary, Anton J. Imhahn, have maintained that union affairs had nothing to do with the killing. Both asserted that Shuler was well regarded and his influence nowise feared. Imhahn announced that the union treasury would pay $5,000 reward for the arrest and the conviction of the killers.

He also protested against a sermon preached at Shuler's funeral by the Rev. Edward S. Keough, pastor of Holy Rosary church. Father Keough criticized unions that used sluggers and strong arm men and urged that unionism clean its ranks.

Prosecutor Coghlan has been in conference daily, including yesterday, with Russell Shuler and with friends of the slain man. But nothing of direct import was learned, he said. The Shuler case is no nearer solution than it was a week ago.

During the investigation of the Rourke murder numerous members and officials of the Trades and Crafts council were interviewed. All asserted they knew nothing of the slugging of Rourke and were opposed to violence in strikes. The prosecutor's office learned, however, that Rourke had been warned to stay away from the hotel, and the evidence was held to indicate that he was slain because of his refusal to cease delivering laundry at th strikebound Del Prado.

But there the investigation ended, so far as results were concerned. The Rourke slaying is as much a mystery as the murder of Shuler.

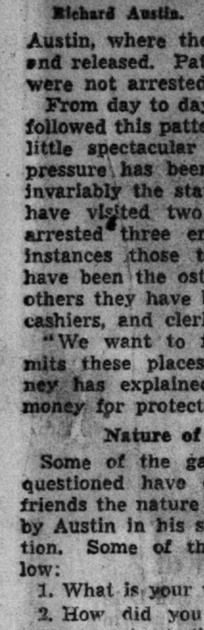
START 3D WEEK OF FACT-FINDING HANDBOOK RAIDS

Courtney Police Seize and Question Six More.

State's Attorney Courtney's campaign against bookmaking establishments in Chicago, which he has described as a series of fact finding expeditions, went into its third week yesterday.



Richard Austin.

Raids by the prosecutor's police were made at 5512 Prairie avenue and at 5736 Prairie avenue. In each place three men were arrested and taken to the office of Assistant State's Attorney Richard B. Austin, where they were questioned and released. Patrons of the resorts were not arrested.

From day to day the campaign has followed this pattern. There has been little spectacular about it, but the pressure has been constant. Almost invariably the state's attorney's men have visited two places daily and arrested three employés. In some instances those taken into custody have been the ostensible owners; in others they have been sheet writers, cashiers, and clerks.

"We want to find out who permits these places to open," Courtney has explained, "and who gets money for protecting them."

Nature of Questions.

Some of the gamblers who were questioned have disclosed to their friends the nature of the queries put by Austin in his search for information. Some of these questions follow:

1. What is your voting address?
2. How did you happen to open your resort at this particular address?
3. How long have you been a bookmaker in Chicago?
4. Did you file an income tax return?
5. Are all your employés registered under the social security act?
6. From whom do you get your race information service, and what do you pay for it?
7. Do you know any policemen in your district?
8. After raids were made on your place, who told you when to resume activities?
9. Are you affiliated with any political organization; and in what capacity?
10. Do you make any contributions to any one?
11. Do you know your ward committeeman?
12. Did you, at any time, find employment for friends of your ward committeeman, or of your precinct captain?

Accuses Ward Committeeman.

Austin said last week that one operator, William Goldman, 5006 Sheridan road, told him seven employés had been hired on the recommendation of J. Frank Lyman, regular Democratic committeeman of the 48th ward. Lyman denied this and added that he did not know that Goldman's or any other place was open for gambling in the ward.

Questioning of the arrested men usually required only a short time—from eight to 25 minutes, the gamblers said. All, however, were kept waiting several hours before Austin sat down with them.

RED CROSS CLASS GROUP IS GIVEN SYPHILIS TESTS

Sixty members of the American Red Cross training classes in home hygiene and care of the sick were tested for syphilis last night at a meeting in the Jehovah Lutheran church, 3740 Belden avenue. Mrs. Hilda Neely, supervisor of the classes, said anti-syphilis information will be made a part of all class programs in Chicago.

Fifty members of the Lawndale branch of the Chicago Boy's club had blood tests after a lecture meeting at the club, 2801 South Ridgeway avenue, on Wednesday night.

Petition for Fourth Ward Council Election Denied

Judge Donald S. McKinlay of the Superior court yesterday denied the petition of Samuel Berkley of 4442 Woodlawn avenue that the city council be required to call an election to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Ald. Berthold Cronson [4th]. The judge said the courts have no authority to order such an election, but criticized the council for not doing so.

3 YOUNG BANDITS HELD TO JURY IN BONDS OF $180,000

Last of Gang, 15, Seized by Police.

Three young bandits, among seven members of a gang who faced Judge Eugene J. Holland in Boys' court yesterday, were held to the grand jury in total bonds of $180,000 on ten charges of robbery and eight of burglary. They are accused of plundering stores and schools on the north and northwest sides of the city during the last six months, taking loot valued at $20,000.

At the same time Albany Park police believed they had rounded up the last of the gang with the arrest of Raymond Seiler, 15 years old, 3100 Cullom avenue, who was seized as he attempted to rob a candy shop Wednesday night.

None Over 18 Years.

The three held to the grand jury are Nicholas Laub, 17, of 4724 North Spaulding avenue, charged with eight burglaries and held in $80,000 bond; and John Raible, 17, of 1635 North Kedzie avenue, and Adolph Schlapa, 18, of 3226 West Wabansia avenue, each charged with five robberies and each held in $50,000 bond.

William Hansen, 17 years old, of 4248 North Albany avenue, was placed under the supervision of the court because he was implicated in only one burglary. Charges against Edward Katlarz, 17, of 3236 Leland avenue; Gordon Bowers, 19, of 1624 North Kedzie avenue, and Abraham Berzon, 17, of 3216 Leland avenue, were continued.

The Albany Park police arrested them last week after receiving information that they had broken into several schools. Most of the boys were good students in various north side high schools.

Implicate Companion.

In confessions made to the police the youths implicated Seiler. On Wednesday night, Policeman Clifford White seized him as he was attempting to hold up Miss Adline Sperlak, 1522 South Harding avenue, the clerk in the store at 4554 North Clark street.

At the station Seiler said he did not know his companions had been arrested or that he was wanted. He later admitted he had committed eight robberies during March, getting a total of $150.

Four other youths, arrested last week with the original seven gang members, were not shown to have been involved in the robberies for burglaries and were held to the Juvenile court on minor charges.

DEMANDS ACTION BY IERC AGAINST RELIEF CHEATERS

Commissioner Offers to Sign Complaints.

A demand for prosecution of persons involved in fraudulent relief cases uncovered downstate by the Illinois Emergency Relief commission was made yesterday by Thomas E. Courtney, a member of the commission. He voiced his demand at the monthly meeting of the commission for allotment of state relief funds.

When other members told Courtney that the attorney general has ruled that the IERC has no power to force local officials to prosecute, Courtney offered to start a personal campaign against relief cheaters.

Offers to Make Complaints.

"Bring the information of fraud to me and I will go into the communities and sign the necessary complaints," he said. "If local officials refuse to take the proper steps I'll do my best to force them to."

As revealed in THE TRIBUNE recently the commission heard yesterday that its investigators recommended closing of more than half the 1,429 cases on the rolls of Granite City township and the closing of 40 per cent of the 158 cases in Clear Lake township, north of Springfield.

Leo M. Lyons, executive secretary of the commission and commissioner of the Chicago Relief administration, told IERC members that the investigation in Granite City disclosed that high school pupils were listed on the relief rolls as heads of families.

The IERC instructed Lyons to write to each of the 13 places that have now been investigated by the IERC and ask officials to report whether they have followed the IERC recommendations and what they are doing to prosecute fraud cases.

Check Shows Rolls Padded.

Investigations conducted by the IERC in a dozen townships and one downstate county have shown that an average of nearly 40 per cent of the relief cases in these communities is not in need of relief. Courtney charged that these conditions are costing the state $1,000,000 a month.

The Chicago Relief administration asked the state for $3,384,566 for relief needs during April, but was allotted only $1,808,671. The balance of $1,575,895 must be met from funds advanced to the CRA from the general funds of the city.

SETS FIRE TO BED; DIES.

Hans C. Hanson, 78 years old, 732 North Cicero avenue, died yesterday in St. Anne's hospital of burns suffered Wednesday when blankets of his couch caught fire from a cigaret.

SERVE BANANA AS VEGETABLE; IT'LL BE HIT

Nutritious Fruit Takes Well to Cooking.

BY MARY MEADE.

Until a few years ago the idea of serving cooked bananas seemed ridiculous. Bananas as a vegetable didn't much tempt the American palate at first. It was another case of becoming used to an innovation and, once accustomed to it, many of us found new pleasures in eating.

The fact that many Chicago restaurants have been including cooked bananas on their menus has encouraged housewives to try them out at home. For, as every woman knows, a family which likes its everyday food is not especially receptive to something new unless it can be introduced in an enticing manner, such as with the declaration: "This is a specialty dish at the Wunnerfuleats restaurant."

I can recommend any of these cooked banana recipes to the skeptical. They're worth a try, anyway.

Bananas au Gratin.

[Six Large Servings.]

¾ cup grated American cheese
1 tablespoon dry bread or cracker crums
¼ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons lemon juice
6 bananas, cut crosswise

Mix grated cheese, crums, and salt. Roll bananas in lemon juice and then in the cheese mixture. Place in a well greased baking dish and bake in a hot oven [400 degrees] for 15 to 20 minutes. Bananas au gratin are excellent accompaniment for baked ham, chops, or cold cuts of meat. If the meal is a complete one, the amounts given in this recipe will serve 12 persons, half a banana to a serving.

Banana Scallops.

[Serves Six.]

Melted fat or oil
1 egg
1½ teaspoons salt
6 firm bananas
¾ cup fine corn flake, bread, or cracker crums, or corn meal

These scallops may be fried in shallow fat, an inch deep, or in deep fat, with the kettle half to two-thirds full.

Heat fat to 375 degrees or until an inch cube of bread will brown in 40 seconds. Beat egg and add salt. Slice peeled bananas crosswise into inch thick pieces. Dip into egg and roll in crums or corn meal. Fry in the hot fat 1½ to 2 minutes or until brown. Drain on unglazed paper and serve hot.

Banana Fritters.

[Serves Six to Eight.]

4 medium bananas
¼ cup flour
1 cup sifted flour
¼ cup sugar
1¼ teaspoons salt
2 teaspoons baking powder
1 beaten egg
⅓ cup milk
2 teaspoons melted shortening

Cut bananas into inch pieces and roll in the one-quarter cup flour. Combine the cup of flour with sugar, salt, and baking powder. Combine egg and milk and add to dry ingredients, stirring until a smooth, stiff batter is formed. Stir in shortening. Dip floured banana pieces into the batter, completely coating them. Fry in shallow or deep fat heated to 375 degrees, four to six minutes. Drain and serve hot with roast meat.

For cooking select bananas with green tips or all yellow bananas. These are greener than the brown flecked ones chosen for salads and for serving raw.

Frosting for Any Cake

This lush-looking banana frosting may decorate any type of cake. It is made by stirring ¼ cup butter, 1 pound (3½ cups) confectioners' sugar, ½ teaspoon lemon juice, and ½ cup mashed banana together until smooth and creamy. This frosting is especially good on banana cake, for which there is a recipe in Mary Meade's newly revised booklet, "Baking the Perfect Cake." Send 23 cents in stamps, or buy it for 20 cents at a Tribune Public Service office, Tribune Tower and 1 South Dearborn street.

PROPER METHOD TO COOK MEATS IS TOLD SIMPLY

Directions to Help Bride Avoid Errors.

A little general knowledge about methods of cooking various cuts of meat will go a long way with the bride in preventing those embarrassing and expensive cooking errors.

CUTS FOR EACH METHOD.

ROASTING: Beef ribs and tenderloin; pork loin, shoulder, and fresh ham; lamb leg and shoulder; veal leg and shoulder. Cured ham and shoulder are also cooked by this method, but it is called baking.

BROILING AND PAN BROILING: Porterhouse, sirloin, club and rib steaks; beef tenderloin; lamb rib loin and shoulder chops; cured ham and bacon slices; and ground meat.

BRAISING: Beef rump, round or chuck, cut thick for pot roasts or thinner for Swiss steaks; flank steak and beef short ribs; pork chops and steaks; lamb breast and neck; veal chops and steaks.

STEWING: Cuts from beef flank, shank, neck, plate, and brisket, and shoulder, neck, and breast of lamb and veal.

SIMMERING: Beef plate, brisket, shank, short ribs, and corned beef; lamb shoulder and leg, and cured ham and shoulder.

DIRECTIONS FOR COOKING.

ROASTING: Season meat with salt and pepper. Place it fat side up on a rack in an open roasting pan. Leave uncovered and add no water. Put in moderately slow oven [300 to 350 degrees] and roast until done. Allow 18 to 20 minutes a pound for rare beef, 22 to 25 minutes a pound for medium done beef, and 27 to 30 minutes a pound for well done beef. Fresh pork requires 30 to 35 minutes a pound; cured pork requires 25 to 30 minutes a pound. Lamb requires 30 to 35 minutes a pound. Allow 25 to 30 minutes a pound for veal.

BROILING: Pre-heat broiling oven thoroughly. Place meat on rack so top of meat is three inches below flame or heating element. When browned season and turn to brown on other side.

PAN BROILING: Heat heavy skillet to sizzling hot. Brown meat on both sides, then reduce heat and cook more slowly until done, turning occasionally to prevent burning. Pour off fat as it accumulates.

BRAISING: Dredge meat in flour if desired. Brown on all sides in hot fat. Add a small amount of liquid, cover tightly and cook slowly until done.

LEFTOVER EGG YOLKS CAN BE USED TO MAKE RICH FROZEN CUSTARD

COFFEE PARFAIT

[Serves six to eight.]

1 cup sugar
¼ cup water
⅛ teaspoon salt
4 egg yolks
½ cup very strong coffee
3 tablespoons cognac
2 cups whipping cream

Boil sugar, water and salt together for five minutes. Beat the egg yolks light and pour in the sirup. Return to a double boiler and cook and stir until the mixture coats a spoon. Beat until cold. Then add coffee and cognac. Whip cream until stiff and fold into cooked mixture. Freeze in tray of automatic refrigerator. Serve in parfait glasses with a garnish of cognac flavored whipped cream.

SPRING EMPTIES A CORNUCOPIA OF FOOD BARGAINS

Fruit and Vegetables Pour in from South.

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

Unseasonably warm spring weather is bringing an increasing amount of fruits and vegetables from the southern truck gardening areas, making it possible for retail grocers to load their counters and cases with food bargains for today and tomorrow. THE TRIBUNE's weekly price survey indicates that foods have taken a definite turn downward.

Shoppers will find many more foods reduced than advanced in price in city and suburban retail centers. Staples, green grocer, and retail meat departments offer bargains.

Flour and Sugar Cheaper.

Several staples on the shoppers regular list are marked down, including flour, sugar, coffee, and lard. Prices or higher grades of flour have been cut 4 to 6 cents a 24½ pound sack in most retail stores. Cane sugar is off 2 cents a pound and beet sugar 1 cent a pound in some stores. Five pound packages of cane sugar generally have price tags 1 to 1½ cents lower than a week ago. Most merchants have marked down their lower grades of coffee 1 cent a pound. In many shopping centers lard has been cut 1½ cents a pound.

Leading stores in several places are offering American cheese and several kinds of packaged cheese at lower prices. Olives in jars have been reduced as much as 6 cents a quart in many stores. Several merchants arc featuring at lower prices some brands of canned corn, peas, peaches, green beans, apricots, beets, carrots, and vegetable soups.

Greenstuffs Prices Down.

Greengrocers are offering green beans at 1 to 2½ cents a pound under last week's prices. They also have cut their prices of fresh tomatoes 2½ cents a pound. Cabbage is off a half-cent a pound in most stores. Cauliflower, broccoli and asparagus are cheaper in many places. Asparagus still is considered high. Celery, onions and radishes are lower in a few places.

Retail meat markets have several cuts of fresh and cured meats at reduced prices. In many butcher shops bacon of the lower priced brands is off 4 cents a pound compared with last week. Some have their higher priced brands reduced 2 cents a pound.

Pork loin roasts and pork spare ribs are slightly cheaper in a few shops. Round and sirloin steaks have been lowered 2 cents a pound in some places. Halibut is off 4 cents a pound, and herring and trout 2 cents a pound lower in some shops.

Comparatively few items of food have been marked up since last week. Substantial advances were made, however, in the prices of most items that were raised within the last week. In many stores eggs are 1 to 3 cents a dozen higher than a week ago. Green peas jumped up 2 to 4 cents a pound. Head lettuce in city and suburban stores is 1 to 4½ cents a head higher. New red potatoes are 1 cent a pound more than last week. Carrots are up a penny a bunch, and white turnips 1 cent a pound in a few stores.

Stewing Chickens Higher.

Butchers raised their prices 2 cents a pound on beef pot roasts, and stewing chickens are higher in most shops. From 1 to 4 cents a pound has been added to the prices of shoulder and loin lamb chops generally. Perch and whitefish are 2 cents higher in some places.

Cattlemen were paid 25 cents a hundred less than a week ago for good and choice steers. The week's top steers sold at $10.25 a hundredweight. Farmers were also paid 25 to 40 cents a hundred pounds less for hogs, with the week's top selling at $9.25 a hundred. Fresh pork is off $1 to $1.50 a hundred. Lambs are higher, 25 cents a hundred above last week. The top reached $8.85 this week. Dressed lamb is $1 a hundred higher, according to official reports.

Most price changes on fresh fruits and vegetables at the central market have been downward since last week, according to federal reports. Truck crops are being shipped from many of the southern states and are generally about two weeks earlier than usual. Fresh asparagus, green beans, broccoli, cabbage, cauliflower, cucumbers, green peppers, both old and new potatoes, and bunch carrots are lower.

Head lettuce, green peas, spinach, strawberries, and fresh tomatoes are higher.

STOCKINGS LAST MORE THAN HALF AS LONG AGAIN, Says Mrs. Johnson, of Amazing New Suds
Are women excited about this new washing suds? Just listen to what Mrs. E. Johnson of 2016 Estes Ave., Chicago, says:
"Dreft-washed stockings lasted more than half as long again, without getting pulls or runs. And it was just marvelous the way Dreft improved their appearance. Now that I wash my stockings in Dreft, they stay richer and newer looking all the time."
Dreft does a better job washing your stockings because it's a different, modern suds. It has all the advantages of soap flakes and not one of the disadvantages.
Soap scum is one of the things that spoil stockings and Dreft never forms scum.
Dreft makes suds as easily in hard water, as in soft—5 times more suds, than any soap flakes in hardest water.
Dreft dissolves as easily in cold water, as in hot. Dissolves instantly in water just the right temperature for washing delicate fabrics. Never leaves any undissolved particles.
And Dreft is so mild its suds won't hurt your eyes any more than water. These Dreft suds don't contain any alkali at all. So it's literally "safe in water, safe in Dreft."
Ask your dealer for a package of Dreft today. Try this amazing suds for washing your silk stockings tonight! Procter & Gamble.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE TO MARK 7 YEARS ON AIR

Show Is Radio's Oldest Juvenile Program.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Little Orphan Annie next Wednesday rounds out seven years of broadcasting on W-G-N-NBC. [Before going to the network Annie warmed up for several months on W-G-N alone.] Orphan Annie is the oldest juvenile show on the networks. Actually she has survived all but a few of the shows for adults. Amos and Andy, Rudy Vallee, and a scant half dozen others have longer records—but no more exciting.

Annie toured the world for years under the guidance of Frank Dahm who has now gone to New York to chronicle the life of Pretty Kitty Kelly, and Ferrin Fraser is now doing the Orphan's scripts. Through the years Shirley Bell has portrayed Annie. A little girl when she started, she has become quite a lovely young lady now. Henrietta Tedro and Ed Sprague play the Silos and Frank Derby is Joe. Lawrence Salerno still sings the theme and Piere Andre lectures on the advantages of using the beverage that sponsors her.

Brian Aherne, film actor, will read passages from Shakespeare's "Coriolanus" to a background of Beethoven's "Coriolanus" music, played by the San Francisco Symphony orchestra, at 4:30 p. m. today.

News and Notes: Frank Parker, the tenor, takes over the post of master of ceremonies on the Hollywood Hotel program at 8 tonight on WBBM-CBS, replacing Jerry Cooper. . . . The Maple City Four are back from Hollywood, where they made a picture for Republic studios, and will return to the National Barn Dance lineup at 8 p. m. Saturday. . . . Lou Breese and his orchestra, who have taken over at the Chez Paree, are airing their rhythms over NBC these evenings. . . . The Jack Westaway Under the Sea adventure series for children on W-G-N and other stations winds up its present series at 6 tonight.

Mark F. Ethridge, Louisville publisher and broadcaster, yesterday was named president of the National Association of Broadcasters by its board of directors. NAB recently was reorganized. Ethridge, it was announced, will serve temporarily without salary until a permanent appointment is made.

Edmund Taylor, CHICAGO TRIBUNE correspondent, who covered the history making events in central Europe recently, will broadcast an eyewitness account of Hitler's seizure of Austria from London over W-G-N-Mutual at 9 p. m. tomorrow.

BANK ROBBERY SUSPECT HELD IN BOND OF $50,000

John H. [Dressed Up Johnny] Gardner, sought for a holdup in 1935 of the First National Bank of Milford, Pa., was ordered held in bond of $50,000 for removal to Pennsyvania by United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker yesterday.

Gardner was arrested in his apartment here by federal agents, last week, shortly after THE TRIBUNE published a picture of him, together with information that he was wanted by the government.

Federal agents said Gardner, who is 55 years old, has a record dating from 1901. He has been involved in several Illinois bank robberies, and once confessed the $100,000 robbery in 1921 of the Masonic temple here. At that time he was known as a master safe cracker.

Open Plane Shuttle Route, Airport to Glenview, Today

A new flying shuttle service between the Chicago airport at 63d street and Cicero avenue and the Curtiss-Reynolds airport at Glenview will be inaugurated today by the United Air Lines. W. A. Patterson, president, said the service will be operated for the convenience of north shore travelers. Two trips will be made daily.

Wilkins Visits City; Tells of Hunt for Arctic Flyers

Sir Hubert Wilkins, explorer, was in Chicago yesterday on his way from New York to attend the air show at Los Angeles, Cal. Sir Hubert told of making a futile search over 350,000 square miles of arctic wastes for the Russian flyers who disappeared several months ago on a transpolar flight.

STUDENTS ON JOB TOUR GO BACK TO GRINNELL BOOKS

Fifty-two Grinnell college seniors, who came to Chicago on a job hunting pilgrimage, left for Iowa last night, some with promises of jobs and none discouraged.

The visit, the third of its kind, was arranged through the coöperation of Grinnell alumni in Chicago. The students visited business, industrial and professional men in an effort to learn their requirements for employment.

V. K. Patterson, personnel director at Grinnell, who was in charge of the group, said the 38 young men and 14 young women who made the trip, inquired into the possibilities of advertising, insurance, investments, banking, journalism, production, chemistry, career politics, and personnel administration.

GIVES UP AFTER RELEASE STARTS POLICE SCANDAL

Kenneth Peters, whose release with a companion by two Town Hall detectives precipitated a police scandal, surrendered before Chief Justice Cornelius J. Harrington in Criminal court yesterday on an indictment charging assault to commit a robbery.

Judge Harrington refused to approve a bond offered by Julius Benvenuti, 2140 Lunt avenue, and ordered Peters held for a hearing on April 25 before Judge Rudolph Desort.

The two detectives, Earl Flannery and Frank McKune, who have been suspended, are to appear before Judge Desort on Monday on charges of conspiracy to obstruct justice and allowing a prisoner to escape. They are accused of releasing Peters and another man, known only as Tip, after two uniformed policemen from Town Hall station had caught them in a robbery attempt on Feb. 26. Tip has not been apprehended.

Life Begins At 40

The Most Competent and Trustworthy Steel Workers Are Usually OVER 40

At 48—JOHN DUFFY is a Typical Example of a Top-Notch Riveter

JOHN DUFFY has the experience, nerve and stamina a high-steel worker needs

CONTRACTORS LOOK FOR MEN with experience, when they have important riveting work to be done. Those most in demand for the big jobs are generally over 40.

Riveting requires iron nerves and cat-like agility. Danger walks beside every man on the high steel girders of a bridge or skyscraper, and the riveter must keep his wits about him every second.

"The life of a riveter is a thrilling one," says Duffy. "And it's just as active as that of an athlete.

"We need strong nerves, and I find that the old-timers are much better in this respect than the younger fellows.

"Last December, I was working on the construction of the Thousand Island Bridge, as steel inspector. It was snowing most of the time, making the work extremely slippery and dangerous. I noticed that the older workers were much calmer and seemed to have steadier nerves than the youngsters."

Men OVER 40 Are More Valuable

According to very recent figures, two out of every five steel employees are more than 40. The average age has increased two years since 1930. There is a growing realization that man's value is likely to increase with age.

Many people over 40 fail to take advantage of this fact, because they do not give their health its proper attention. Mental and physical efficiency require good health at all times.

Read these letters from 3 men—ALL OVER 40—who are finding it easy to make the grade:

Albert Forest Digestion mended

Staying in Fine Condition at 46

Dear Life Begins:

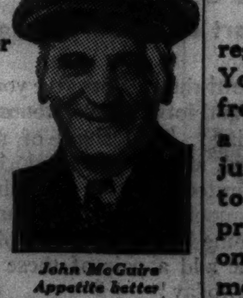
I run an elevator in a U.S. Post Office Building. There is heavy traffic on my car, and I carry the public as well as mail carriers and Post Office employees—about 2000 a day in all. I should say 2000 a night, for my hours are from midnight to 8:30 A.M.

When I was getting around 40, I began to have trouble sleeping. My appetite began petering out, too. My stomach was unsettled so bad even chicken soup was hard to keep down. I didn't feel up to working at all.

A friend took pity on me and tipped me off to Fleischmann's Yeast. He said it had helped his wife. I bought some of the cakes and ate 3 a day regular. Almost right away I began to have more pep. My digestion started to mend and I began to take an interest in things—felt more like working.

I am now 46. My condition is fine. I continue eating Fleischmann's Yeast, because it helps keep me that way.—ALBERT FOREST

Keeps Up with Younger Men



John McGuire Appetite better

Dear Life Begins:

As a young man I'd always been husky, but several years ago my health began to let down.

First my appetite went—then terrible indigestion kept me from getting it back. I had a civil-service job as chauffeur on heavy trucks, and I was worried about being able to keep it.

I found out about Fleischmann's Yeast by reading about it in the newspaper. I'd been eating it three weeks, when I noticed a real difference in the way I felt. My appetite began coming back. After trying the first substantial food I'd had in over a year, I found I had no discomfort. I was so pleased I wanted to shout.

Last year I was transferred to another job, where I'm keeping my end up working with men half my age. I don't worry about hard work, now I've got my health and a good job.—JOHN McGUIRE

Joseph F. Farlardeau Has new energy

Heavy Work Seems Easier Now

Dear Life Begins:

Outside painting is my trade, but a while ago my work fell off and I got a job on a mosquito-control project. It was harder physically than the work I'd been used to. I'd be sore and stiff when I got home at night—had bad headaches and got very cranky and irritable.

Finally I told one of the men in the crew I thought I'd have to quit. He said I should try eating Fleischmann's Yeast to build up my strength, before deciding. I started with 3 cakes a day. In about six weeks I could feel a change. The work seemed easier. Everything else straightened out by degrees. My headaches disappeared and my nerves quieted down.

I still eat Fleischmann's Yeast every day and at 57 I've got more energy and ambition than I had years ago. The way I feel now, I look forward to getting back into my regular trade when those contracts start up this spring.

JOSEPH F. FARLARDEAU

AFTER 40—Slower Digestion Can Cause Poor Health

PROMPT, efficient digestive action depends largely on a full, powerful flow of gastric juices from the stomach walls. But around 40, these juices often begin to grow weaker and scantier.

By eating Fleischmann's Yeast, many people have found a way of helping digestive action to be normally rapid again. Millions of tiny, living yeast plants in every cake of this fresh food stimulate digestion—by helping to induce a quicker, stronger flow of digestive juices.

Also, by adding this one food to your diet, you can be sure of getting a good daily supply of 4 important vitamins: the Nerve Vitamin, the Bone Vitamin, the Cold Resistance Vitamin and the Vitality Vitamin. Their names tell you why every one of these vitamins is necessary for really robust health.

Eat Fleischmann's Yeast regularly, 3 cakes every day. You'll soon learn to like its fresh, malty flavor. So that a fresh flow of powerful juices can be ready in time to help digest your food promptly and easily—eat one cake ½ hour before each meal.

Declares Love Is Sole Reason for Marriage

BY JOSEPH CERUTTI.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 30.—Dr. Ethel Dukes, co-director of the Institute of Child Psychology, has worked out a code for successful wives.

Its main clause is that women should marry for love and love only. Every other reason for marriage, such as position, home, or money, is a prostitution of marriage, she told a crowded women's meeting at Friends house, London.

Outlining her code point by point, she said that the wife who wished for a happy married life would not:

Domineer over her husband.

Criticize him in the presence of others.

Insist on changing him.

Try to show him off.

Turn him into a cushion carrier or an additional servant.

Insist on constant entertaining in the house and out of it when he is tired and wants a smoke and his armchair.

Despise his homespun qualities when she has had time to improve her cultural and social qualities while he has been hard at work.

Run down his mother or other relatives.

Refuse to have children if he wants them and there is no medical reason why she should not.

Use any feminine wiles or neurotic illnesses to make him subservient to her.

Dr. Dukes has a high opinion of the worth of domestic servants as wives. Homes where a man had married a servant, she said, had a much higher standard.

Finally, she urged wives to cultivate the quality of forgiveness. Husbands, she held, were often more forgiving than their wives.

The Housewife

Lamb's wool is used to make a clever new floor and wall duster we saw the other day. The duster has five fingers, like an enormous human hand, and they're set into a flexible spring handle that gives a natural wrist movement which makes it easier to get into corners and around the tops of moldings.

Each finger or section can be removed by turning, so it is a simple matter to wash this duster and "fluff" it out again. And, as the fingers are movable, they provide a greater polishing area, for when they are soiled you can turn them over to a clean surface.

School Heads to Consider Several Policy Changes

The 43d annual meeting of the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools will be held in the Stevens hotel next week, from Wednesday through Saturday. A. W. Clevenger, secretary, said yesterday that several important changes in policy affecting 300 universities and colleges and 2,600 high schools and preparatory schools would be considered. More than 1,500 official delegates are expected to attend.

Parents Should Aid Formation of Good Habits

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS
[Copyright: 1938: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

In thinking about what little children can do at certain ages, as we were yesterday, we're apt to have in mind chiefly acts connected with the everyday business of their living—the routine habits, the motions that have to be gone through in connection with eating, sleeping, bathing, and dressing.

We should expect them to learn to do all these things. We should gradually, as they are able, make it possible then to do things themselves; to grow in independence, in responsibility.

But we don't need to force it. We shouldn't, in fact, because this puts a strain on a child which makes itself felt in a subtle way. It has been found, in some cases, that when too great emphasis [sometimes associated with punishment] is placed on the gaining of self-control in one direction, a greater lack of control in another direction is noticed; or a new undesirable habit is formed. So, we must let our small child take these things in his stride, providing, however, opportunity for him to acquire habits when he is ready for them.

One important way in which we provide opportunity to learn is by making it reasonably easy for him to form these good habits. Do you expect your small son to wash his hands in the bathroom and dry them himself? Then, see to it that he can reach the basin easily; perhaps a broad low box will act as a step. See that the soap is within reach and his own towel rack the right height.

Do you expect your small daughter to undress and get into her nightie or pajamas all by herself? Then, her buttons or snaps or zipper must be conveniently placed, and her sleeping garments designed with that in mind.

Do you expect her to be orderly with her toys, coat, leggings, and rubbers? Then, provide low hooks and convenient space for them.

Single Feather Leads Explorer to Discovery of Congo Peacock

"The Search for the Congo Peacock," a free lecture illustrated with motion pictures, will be presented at 3 o'clock tomorrow in the James Simpson theater of the Field museum by Dr. James P. Chapin, curator of birds of the eastern hemisphere for the American Museum of Natural History, New York.

Dr. Chapin has conducted four major expeditions in Africa. In 1911 he found in a native's hut on the Congo a single feather which matched those of no known bird. During the next twenty-five years, using the feather, Dr. Chapin evolved a mental picture of the bird, its probable habits and habitat. Using this information he returned to Africa in 1937 and discovered the bird, collecting several specimens.

A Simple Princess Dress

WOMAN'S AND MISS' FROCK.

This simple princess dress is styled to allow you all the possible leeway in the matter of color combinations. The result may be as dressy a frock as you could wish, or a simple model for wear during your hours at home.

Two slantwise panels at the waistline are really tricky and the sketch at the left shows what we mean by color contrast. In this version the panels just mentioned and the sleeves coöperate in some real fashion. This design is simple otherwise. A plain V neckline tops a slide fastener in the bodice.

The larger figure illustrates a daytime frock perfect in cottons. It has a scalloped collar on a high V neckline and the same scallops are repeated in the cuffs on the modified puffed sleeves and on the two pockets. This comfortable dress buttons all the way down the front, making it exceedingly easy to wear.

Instead of using printed fabrics for the sleeves and waist panels suggested in the sketch at the left, you might use embroidery for the color touches. Pattern No. E-700 is an excellent one and is available for 10 cents extra.

Style No. 2855 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, and 20 years, and 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, and 40 inches bust measurement. Size 16 requires 3½ yards of 39 inch material.

Correct Hair Style Assists Stout Woman

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.
[Copyright: 1938: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

Have you not noticed how some large women manage to conceal the fact that they are oversize, and some shout it a mile away?

It appears to be a matter of grooming more than anything else. This fact was confirmed by radio singer Amanda Snow, whose weight is well over 200.

"It's extraordinary what hair arrangement can do for women like me," she volunteered. "It's only when we get careless about our appearance that we look our weight, or remind people of our weight."

Most large women, Amanda observes, have broad faces, a fact to be borne in mind when parting hair and arranging it. Center parts should be avoided, she thinks, since they only emphasize the face vertically. Yet, center parts do give an effect of height and, consequently, the hair should be parted on one side but higher up than usually is seen.

Further, the hair should be as flat to the head as is possible to achieve symmetry. Fluffed out hair only serves to emphasize a large face.

"Comb the hair out and up and, if you wish to be ultrasmart, brush it high up in back. But whatever you do, keep your curls close to your head.

"Go frequently to get the dense crop of hair thinned out. You can take off 20 pounds by refining the shape of the head with this thinning out of which I speak. You have to do it, really, or hair will not lie close to the scalp."

Miss Snow thinks makeup, too, is an influence in reshaping the oversize woman that is often overlooked. Emphasize your eyes with makeup, she says, but too much rouge and lipstick, too highly colored, simply lay emphasis on size and shape of face.

Loyola to Give Course on Economics of Fascists

Two new economics courses, designed to give students a better understanding of current economic problems in Europe and the United States, will be offered by Loyola university during the summer session, which begins June 20. One course will concern "Economics of Marxism, Fascism, Communism, and Trade Unions," and the other "Economics of Contemporary Welfare Movements in the United States."

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

Unless you're deaf, dumb, and blind, of course, you know about cleansing pads. The cosmetic woods are full of them. Business girls adore them because they're a solution to the problem of the short and snappy freshening up. And even shoppers carry them in their bags in the convenient little purse sized containers provided for that purpose.

Heretofore they've been small in circumference. Now some have been brought out in a boudoir size—a size that's a little more practical if you want to cleanse thoroughly, as you do at home. These are richly saturated with cleansing lotion [nonalcoholic, by the way], so that one of these boudoir size pads is sufficient for the face and the neck. You might stretch a point and take another one if you do the ears!

These are going to be perfectly swell for summer use. They really do feel cooling to the skin and there's nothing at all messy about using them. For the quick clean-ups during the day you'll find them great preservers of that well groomed feeling. In summer most of us have to cleanse our faces oftener during the day than we do in winter; a great many of us undoubtedly will find these larger cleansing pads a summer delight.

These pads for home use come in a white glass jar; with them comes a tall bottle of the cleansing lotion so you can saturate them liberally if and when they dry out slightly. Remember that with these, as with all pads, you must keep the jar cap on tightly.

You can still get the little baby pads to carry about in your purse, filling them from a large jar.

ELEANOR NANGLE.

Bernard Sunny Home Will Be Scene of Sale

BY JUDITH CASS.

THE Vocational Society for Shut-Ins always is fortunate in having interesting homes opened for sales of the society's goods, but in the last few years these homes have been new, country ones, quite different from the one that will be opened on Tuesday for the society's next sale. It will be held in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard E. Sunny at 4913 Kimbark avenue, and the goods will be on display in the art gallery which occupies the entire third floor of the house.

The Vocational board hopes that the shoppers will not allow their attention to stray too long from the attractive wares of the society to the many interesting paintings that line the walls of the gallery. Mr. Sunny, who will celebrate his eighty-second birthday next May 22, recently acquired a Gainsborough, a small one of a girl and dog, painted on a black walnut board. Another picture he purchased recently is of Ishbel MacDonald's celebrated English "pub," but it was painted more than a century ago by George Morland, who died in 1804.

Mrs. Sunny has invited sixteen friends to assist at the sale, which is the first one that the society has held on the south side in several years. Mrs. Sunny will entertain her assistants at luncheon Tuesday.

Mrs. John R. Hurley is in charge of publicity for the Vocational society. She and Mr. Hurley are moving from town back to their home in Wheaton on May 1. The mild winter has provided a splendid opportunity for landscaping about the house and much has been accomplished in a new formal garden. The terrace, from which steps lead down into the garden, has been completed, and work has progressed rapidly on an orchard of pear, apple, and other fruit bearing trees that soon will be in bloom.

Interesting Teas on Day's Calendar.

So many interesting teas are on the program for this afternoon that one will have to drink a cup here and another one there to keep up with all that is going on. The arts department of the Chicago Junior league is giving a tea from 3 until 6 o'clock at the Findlay galleries, 424 South Michigan avenue, to open an exhibition of Gainsboroughs that will be hung throughout the month.

The Cordon is having as an especial guest at its tea from 4 until 6 o'clock Miss Lily Pons, the diminutive coloratura soprano, who is to give a concert tomorrow night at the Civic Opera house for the benefit of the Chicago Girl Scouts and the North Side Animal shelter.

Mrs. Ernst von Ammon is to be hostess at the Cliff Dwellers' usual Friday tea, following the concert by the Chicago Symphony orchestra; and in Evanston Mrs. Edwin E. Sheridan is opening her home for a tea for the young women who are to serve at a benefit card party and tea the Evanston board of Northwestern University settlement is giving April 18 at the Country Club of Evanston.

Exhibition Valued at Half Million.

The guards at the Findlay galleries have been doubled to insure proper protection for the Gainsboroughs, which are valued at $500,000 or more.

Mrs. John M. Silverthorne Jr., chairman of the league's arts department, is in charge of the exhibit. A 50 cent admission charge will be made during the exhibit, and proceeds will be used to give scholarships to public school children to study at the Art institute. Many of the paintings in the exhibit have

A Gay Hat for Early Spring

A flowered disc of raspberry red straw is held in position with a bandeaux of royal blue taffeta ribbon; the result—the gayest and youngest of early spring hats for daytime wear. Similar models will be found in the spring collections.

False Fronts Have Swank of Costy Blouses

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Fake fronts that can be anchored neatly inside a rib-hugging suit jacket are far from the comedy affairs they sound. They are fetching sheer trifles usually of snow white or pale spring pastels.

Crisp as a lettuce leaf, some of them mere vestees about twelve inches wide, that are held in place with tiny safety pins. Others are of the guimpe type, those well fitted waists without sleeves and gathered around the waistline on a rubber.

See the frilled varieties if you want something new, a chest frill that is wide at the top and tapers to nothing down around the beltline. This fluted frill is made of four layers that stick out over the left side of the jacket. A concoction which is spectacularly smart comes in white, pale green, bonbon pink, and blue. The material is extremely fine, and the details unusually dainty with tiny lace edging around the arms.

Other vestees are white with gay scarlet pipings on the chest frill, and some are navy blue. Still others are made of beautiful embroidered organdies with the small patterns looking exactly like frost on a winter window.

Such vestees are within a small budget, even though the material is so expensively sheer. In fact, these are just a fraction of what you'd have to pay for a complete blouse, and the general effect is just the same.

Other short sleeved suit blouses made of fine organdy and with chest frills boasting shallow scallops are expensive but worth every penny.

Fashion photograph . . . one of the gay new Easter hats, made of a flat disc of raspberry colored straw. The bandeau, of royal blue taffeta, holds the hat in place. The crown is a bunch of brilliant flowers. Similar hats will be found in the current spring showing.

Critic Regrets Program Choice by Brailowsky

BY EDWARD BARRY.

The appearance of Alexander Brailowsky in Orchestra hall last night as soloist with the Chicago Symphony orchestra did little to increase the local reputation of this slim and polished young Russian pianist.

In one of the lamest concertos of the repertoire — the Saint-Saëns Fourth, in C minor—Mr. Brailowsky proved [but we needed no proof] that he is the possessor of an astonishing dexterity. He also proved [but we needed no proof] that he can achieve when the occasion requires as bravely clangorous a tone as the most exacting fancier of this sort of thing could demand.

Competently wending their way through the concerto's many barren stretches and making the most of what welcome oases of genuine musical thought they succeeded in finding, pianist and orchestra produced a reasonable number of attractive tonal and rhythmic effects and came out exactly together at the end. There was an ovation which brought Mr. Brailowsky back to the stage several times.

Johannes Brahms rudely shouldered the soloist's offering to one side when, immediately after the intermission, his towering Fourth symphony took the center of the stage. Hans Lange and the orchestra gave a startling demonstration of what musical art can become when urgency of thought is substituted for aimless prettiness, when ideas which seem about to go somewhere really do!

For in this bittersweet E minor symphony, the last and in some respects the greatest of the four, Brahms did not pour into an architecturally perfect mold his wealth of mature feeling and long experience of life. Rather this feeling and this transmuted experience, when turned into musical form by a consummate practitioner, demanded—even created!—its own inevitable form.

This explains why this particular mold is an economical [some would say a parsimonious] one. It is exactly what the content demanded. The symphony's actual form, as in all supremely successful works of art, cannot be separated and analyzed as if it were part of a childish jigsaw puzzle.

Earlier in the evening came a first Chicago performance of Albert Roussel's 'Pour une fête de printemps." This composer, a Frenchman who died only last summer, has never attracted much attention here. This accounts for the fact that the "Fête" took eighteen years to make its way from the Seine to the Chicagou.

The new piece is a thoughtful and well mannered Gallic distillation of a spring fête—by no means a spring fête in anything like its immediacy. The music is delicate and distant, waveringly free and beautiful in its melodic, harmonic, and rhythmic structure. The iconoclastic features of the "Fête" did not obtrude themselves, for the daintiness of the performance did justice to the impressionistic character of the piece.

To open the program Mr. Lange and his forces played Berlioz' "Corsair" overture. Dating from the composer's youth, the "Corsair" displays nothing of the orchestral virtuosity which Berlioz was later to achieve, but it remains an honest and charming little piece in its own right.

Looking at Hollywood by Ed Sullivan

Column on Gable.

Hollywood, Cal., March 31.—Digging through some files in the publicity department at M.-G.-M., I came upon an old poster advertising Joan Crawford in "Dance, Fools, Dance," released in February, 1931 that really is a museum piece, because it was in that picture that they discovered Clark Gable, destined to become a fairly valuable piece of bric-à-brac. Up to then Gable had been kicking around town, eating irregularly.

Clark Gable on borrowed time.

Gable himself is convinced that his movie career was carved out of borrowed time. It was just previous to the 1931 Crawford picture which was to make him a fair-haired boy of cinema that Gable missed death by inches.

He was playing a bit in "The Painted Desert" for Pathé and there was a dynamiting sequence. The sticks of dynamite had been buried the day previous, and nobody noticed that during the night the wind had dislodged the sand packing. Instead of the force of the dynamite blowing itself out through the intended channel, it backed up.

Gable was standing with William Boyd and Bill Farnum when they touched off the blast two hundred yards distant. A huge rock weighing several hundred pounds sailed through the air and just missed his head. He was within six inches of being mowed down for keeps.

Since then Clark has been convinced that you don't exit unless your number is up. If he had not been called back for night shots on "Test Pilot," he and Carole Lombard would have accompanied Lord and Lady Plunket on the fatal trip to San Simeon.

Perhaps his fatalistic feeling has been sharpened by the dozen false reports of his death. Who originates these morbid accounts nobody has ever learned, but twice in the last six months the New York News' city desk has called me to check on the state of Gable's health. The last time New York had received the bulletin of his death via Washington, D. C., city desks.

From the time of his near-fatality on the outdoor location of "The Painted Desert" we have had eight years of Gable. Kings have abdicated, nations have been dissolved, and styles have changed in everything.

However, although the girls have changed the length of their dresses, the colors of their nails, and the size and shape of their hats, they still go for Gable in an emphatic way. The girls who were 18 when he first got his break in "Dance, Fools, Dance" are still for him now that they are 26. The girls who were 12 years old are now 20, and numbered among his fans. I guess the big guy must have something, huh?

The Lombard influence is not to be minimized in any survey of the Gable career. Two other women contributed to his formative years, but Carole has supplied what he most needed—enthusiasm, zest. She has proved to be a builder upper for him, becoming equally excited when he bags a brace of birds on a hunting trip, disliking formal Hollywood life as intensely as he dislikes it, and enjoying the things he enjoys.

Gable, a few years back, was morose, sulky, a bundle of frayed nerves. Today he's the most boyish of all the big stars, good natured, alert—and all of those things are apparent in his work on the screen.

On the day he celebrated his birthday, on the "Test Pilot" set, Carole sent him, for a present, two round trip tickets for a flight on the blimp that waddles over Los Angeles daily. For Christmas he sent her a scooter. They really have a swell time, and she has been a tonic for him by the same token. Her work has improved infinitely because of him.

If John Barrymore is Carole's best friend and most understanding, by the same token Lionel Barrymore is Gable's oldest pal out here. Lionel it was who secured Gable's first screen test at M.-G.-M., a screen test that has had few equals in this screwball community.

Clark had acted on the Los Angeles stage with Lionel in "The Copperhead," so when Lionel became a screen director he hunted up Gable: "Want to make a screen test," said the veteran. "Be at my office tomorrow at 10:30 a. m."

Lionel pressed buzzers on his desk and aids hopped out of drawers and wastepaper baskets. "Take Mr. Gable to the wardrobe department," he commanded, "and then take him to the makeup department." At the wardrobe department the startled Gable was handed a leopard skin, a knife, and a rose.

Before he could inquire about this odd apparel they had him in the makeup department, where it was evident he was expected. They told him to strip, and two men painted his body black in a jiffy. A third man laced the leopard skin around him, a fourth adjusted the knife in his sheath. "What's the rose for?" asked Gable, miserably. "Mr. Barrymore wants you to wear that behind your ear," said the head makeup man.

It was in that incredible get-up that Gable was screen-tested. When Irving Thalberg saw the test of a blackened-up Gable with a rose behind the ear he smelled Barrymore's breath. That test is still in the M.-G.-M. files out at Culver City. Eddie Mannix is holding it for ransom.

SYNOPSIS.

Karen Gilbert meets Gordon Stone returning to Barranca after 5 years in prison. Gordon was framed by Karen's ruthless uncle and guardian, Lyn Gilbert, owner of Bar B B ranch, and his foreman, Curt Ford. Because Karen has a friend, Hal Ferguson, take her to the hideout of Gordon and Jack Turnbull and warn them in time to save them from a posse of Gilbert's riders, her uncle imprisons her at his ranch. Gordon and Jack start a campaign against Gilbert. The affidavit of Linc Conway, who was kept by threats from coming to Gordon's aid, is published in the Courier. It accuses Gilbert and Ford. Gilbert starts suit for libel and hires his rider, Cheyenne, to rub Linc out. Gilbert calls on Gordon's uncle, John Fleming, owner of the J F ranch, and is ordered off. Gordon confronts Ford at the Bar B B ranch. At the point of a gun he forces him to release Karen.

INSTALMENT XXIII.

RUSTLERS.

At the top of a wooded slope he drew up the car. A wind blew from the north, and it brought with it a sound that caused Gordon to shut off the engine and listen attentively.

"Do you hear anything?" he asked presently.

"Is it the bawling of cattle?" Karen inquired.

"Yes. Driven cattle. They have come some miles, and they are being pushed."

"Who would be driving them at night?"

"You mean—rustlers?"

"Yes, I'm going to find out who they are."

A chill swept her, as if the night had suddenly turned colder. "How? If they are rustlers and are discovered they will shoot to kill."

He did not answer her protest. His mind was busy with ways and means. "They must be coming down Elk Creek pass," he said, more to himself than to her. "Think I'll run across and have a look."

He started the car.

"But there will be a lot of them. What can you do alone?" Karen asked.

"Don't know yet. I'll see how things work out."

"You'll only get killed," the girl pleaded. "It's foolhardy to try to stop them. I wish you wouldn't."

"Don't worry. It will be all right. I'm only going to slip down to the foot of the pass to investigate. I'll play my cards close."

A pulse of fear beat fast in Karen's throat. "If I went with you it would be safer," she suggested timidly, knowing her offer would be rejected. "They wouldn't dare kill you with a witness like me present."

"Rustlers are outside the law. They would be forced to wipe out all the witnesses. If you went with me it would only double the risk." Gordon's smile was warm and friendly. "But I'm much obliged for the offer, partner. You're a gentleman."

"Why do you have to know who they are?" she demanded. "It isn't your business. You haven't any cattle in the hills."

"If my enemies are rustling I'd like to catch them at it. But there's a chance I may have to follow them. In case I'm not back in an hour run back up the road and head for town."

"Without knowing whether——"

She stopped, afraid to put her fear into words lest they make the danger more real by expressing it. The man saw her face was white and stricken.

"Buck up," he said cheerfully. "I'll promise to come back sound as a dollar."

Gordon passed through the cottonwoods and climbed a rock covered hill beyond. It brought him to a bluff which looked down on Elk Creek pass. As he clambered down there came to him two or three times the resentful bawl of a cow. In his high heeled boots he slithered along a steep descent of loose rubble until he reached a bowlder bed below.

The drive was close to him now. At the bend in the pass, just above him, he could make out a blur of motion. Out of it details began to shape. A man on horseback—cattle—another rider—more stock. Among the blobs of moving figures he was almost sure he made out those of three men. There would be one more bringing up the drag.

A plan of action came to him. He moved out from the rocks, crouching low, gun in hand. Most of the drive had passed, but a few stragglers were bringing up the rear. The drag driver came around the bend. If he saw the crouching figure at all he took it for an outcropping bowlder. When he made his discovery it was too late.

"That you, Pete?" he called uncertainly.

Gordon was beside him. One hand held the bridle, the other pressed a revolver against his stomach.

"Slide out of the saddle—this way," Stone ordered. "Don't make a sound. And keep you hands in the air."

The trapped man looked down the dark and dusty canyon. His companions were so far ahead that they could be of no assistance to him. If the man holding him up meant business he would be dead long before help arrived.

Stiffly the night rider swung to the ground beside Stone. He was a slim young fellow not much over 20. His eyes were a skim milk blue, his mouth and chin weak. Peering into the face of his captor, he gave a little gasp of dismay.

"It's you," he exclaimed. "I thought——"

He had not seen the brand on the stock yet, but it was a fairly safe guess the bunch belonged to his uncle and had been ranging the Three Buttes district.

"Go ahead. I'm listening."

"Fleming hired us to move this stock."

It was a lame story. Stone laughed harshly. He ordered his prisoner to take the rope from the saddle and drop the loop over his head. Stone swung to the saddle, the other end of the lariat in his hand.

"I'll ask any questions necessary. Get a move on you."

For about a quarter of a mile they traveled up the canyon, then swung up a steep, narrow gulch that ran into the pass. It brought them to a plateau. To the right was a blurred shadow that meant trees. Toward this Stone directed his prisoner.

"This is a nice, quiet spot," he said, dismounting under a huge live oak. "I'm going to ask some questions and you are going to answer them. I advise you to talk—and to tell the truth."

"What you want to know?" the boy inquired sullenly.

"I want to know first the names of the men riding with you tonight."

"I've got no information on that subject," the rustler replied.

Stone tossed the end of the rope over a limb of the tree and drew it taut.

"You're going to come clean, or else——"

"I'm only a kid," the other man said in a cracked voice.

"Not too young to steal other men's cattle. What's your name?"

"Parke Rogers."

"I'm asking a question, Rogers."

Huskily the rustler gave names. "Tom Webb—a fellow called Slim—Lute Purdy."

"Gilbert send you out to steal Fleming's stock?"

"No. Gilbert isn't in it." Reluctantly the man let leak another name. "Curt Ford was aimn' to dispose of the stock."

"Any reason for picking on Fleming's stock?"

"Thought you said Gilbert wasn't in this?"

"He isn't. Anyway, Tom Webb told me so. Maybe Curt figured it would be an open season on Fleming now."

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"I have been going around steadily with a young man of 30. I am 21. I care a lot about this man. However, he has one defect which I am beginning to realize as a handicap more and more.

"I have always admired men who speak well. While I realized from the beginning that my friend fell far short of my ideals in this connection, I overlooked it for the time being. But recently, I get more and more annoyed. When we were alone before, I did not attach such importance to the man's speech. I used to shudder when we were out in company sometimes. Now, I am getting that I do not want to appear with him anywhere we might run into other people. He mispronounces and misuses words that seem unforgivable. Yet, I know of no way to correct him or help him without hurting him and, as I say, I have a feeling of strong attachment toward him. What do you think and say about this situation of mine?" Ginge.

Wonder if he is the right man for you, Ginge, considering you are but 21 and he is 30. Not that we think the age difference an impassable barrier in itself, but coupled with other differences, we wonder. We are right in assuming that you have a better education than the man or you wouldn't be aware of his speech and grammar. And when two people set out on the long journey it is well that they are of an educational equality. At least, that there should not be a great discrepancy in school training.

If the man had shown a desire to study after working hours, though he had missed the advantages in his earlier years, things would be different. But if he remains at 30 ignorant of his shortcomings and you at 21 are keenly aware of them, we have large doubts whether you two ever would meet on a common ground. And such things are important in marriage. If at 21 and assumedly in love, a girl is conscious and supersensitive about her sweetheart's speech, you may be sure that marriage isn't going to smooth out the assaults on the ear. On the contrary, you will nag about them and nurse grievances over them. So, if there is any way of remedying the fault, now is the time to attack the remedy. We know of no one better poised to make the attack than the girl the man is in love with. She can acquaint him kindly of his need for study.

BLAKE ANSWERS

She's Too Young for Dates.

"Dear Miss Blake: I like a girl 15. I am 17. When I ask her out she says she doesn't date yet. JAKE."

The Woman's Aid society of the Passavant Memorial hospital has a benefit every year, usually early in the year, but their 1938 benefit will not be given until next fall. They are not letting the first half of the year go by, however, without giving something, so they met yesterday afternoon at Mrs. Robert J. Dunham's handsome apartment at 1500 Lake Shore drive and planned an entertainment for the evening of April 26.

It is not a benefit in the strict sense of the word, for they do not anticipate realizing any large sum from it, but they will clear a neat sum, for Dr. Glenn Frank is donating his services as an act of friendship for the women of the society. Originally it was planned to have him talk in some one's drawing room, perhaps Mrs. Dunham's, just before the women of the society, their husbands and a few friends, but so much interest was evinced by those to whom the women talked that the members decided to have the lecture in Thorne hall.

Tickets at $2 each will be on sale at the hospital starting Monday. Mrs. Mark Trude and Mrs. William B. Cudahy will be in charge of the office, the telephone number of which is Delaware 7070. Mrs. George Jaeger Jr. and Mrs. Andrew Dallstream are ticket co-chairmen. Mrs. Walter R. Kirk, president of the society, and Mr. Kirk will entertain at dinner for Dr. Frank the night of the lecture.

Mr. Kirk and Mr. Dunham were the only men at the tea yesterday, but almost all of the women of the society were there, including, of course, Mrs. Kirk and Mrs. Dunham and the honorary president, Mrs. Joseph G. Coleman. Others present were Loyal Davis, Mrs. George Rasmussen, Mrs. Alden B. Swift, Mrs. Edward Byron Smith, Mrs. Adolph O. Hartmann, Mrs. Daniel Peterkin Jr., Mrs. Harold Beacom, Mrs. Edward A. Leight, Mrs. Orville Taylor, Mrs. Ralph M. Shaw, and the ticket and office chairmen.

'Spool Block' Is Old Quilt Design with Rare Charm

The history of today's coverlet is sadly lacking, but one thing is certain. There has been a variety of pieced patterns of the same name. The location and date of creation of these patterns are obscure, but the beauty and charm of the designs is apparent. The quilts all were pieced prior to 1860, which is early enough to give them a definite background. Another similarity in these patterns is that they almost were universally pieced in red and white. The "Spool Block" measures 10 inches square and 42 pieced blocks are set together with 3 inch bands of white material between the blocks. A 3 inch border and a ½ inch bias binding finish the coverlet.

La Rabida Asks Funds to Serve Child Patients

BY DORIS LOCKERMAN.

With more than half of its facilities idle for lack of funds, and with a waiting list of eighty boys and girls suffering from heart disease, the La Rabida Foundation yesterday announced a campaign to raise a maintenance fund of $35,000 a year for three years. The campaign will be conducted during the latter part of April.

LaRabida, Chicago's only sanitarium where children can receive care and treatment of heart disease exclusively, has heretofore been supported by funds raised by the women's board of directors, headed by Mrs. Herman N. Bundesen. It is nonsectarian and its services are free.

Its annual income, raised by card parties, tag days, profits from a benefit shop and more recently, with the assistance of the Junior auxiliary, has averaged $17,000 a year. Even with free medical service and no capital debt, that amount has been enough to finance only 40 of the 100 beds available. Since the opening of the new building in Jackson Park on the shore of Lake Michigan in 1932, the sanitarium has treated 698 children.

"The board has been untiring in providing these funds, and has faced many hardships in carrying the sanitarium over the years," Irwin N. Walker, a director of the Foundation who heads the campaign, said yesterday. "However, out of 60,000 children entering Chicago schools each year approximately 3,000 are cardiac cases. Invalidism caused by heart disease can be prevented in 75 per cent of such cases by proper medical treatment in childhood. The important thing is care and attention, a long period of rest, medical supervision, maintenance of general nutrition and, finally, the education of the family."

"Well to do families are able to provide this care at home, but it is difficult for the families of those with moderate incomes and next to impossible for the poor. These poor children have caused the constant demand for services of LaRabida.

"Our public campaign will be to make available at once facilities to care for a minimum of 100 children daily. Our ultimate aim, of course, is to provide a permanent endowment."

The new biulding, constructed to replace the original LaRabida which was donated by the Spanish government after the 1893 world's fair, is modernly equipped for the care of cardiac patients.

Entertain Judges for Dog Show.

The judges who will officiate at the 37th annual Chicago all-breed dog show tomorrow and Sunday at the International amphitheater, will be guests of the International Kennel club of Chicago at dinner tonight at the Saddle and Sirloin club.

Among the judges is Mrs. M. Hartley Dodge, who is arriving this morning from Madison, N. J.

No doubt, toasts will be drunk at the dinner tonight to two of the judges, Mrs. Miriam Hostetter Young of Cedarhurst, N. Y., and William Zehner Breed of Cleveland, whose engagement was announced recently by her mother, Mrs. P. Herbert Hostetter of New York. Mr. Breed, whose parents are Dr. and Mrs. Walter R. Breed of Cleveland, is to be in charge of the dog show at New York's world's fair next year.

Hold Annual Boat Race Dinner Tonight.

The Oxford-Cambridge Boat Race Dinner club of Chicago will meet at 7 o'clock tonight at the Fred Harvey restaurant, 308 South Michigan avenue. Gaylord Donnelley, John J. McDonough, William C. Parke, Durand Smith, and Sheldon Tefft are members of the committee for the dinner, which is held each year on the eve of the Oxford-Cambridge race.

The last Fortnightly dance of the season, which was to have been held tonight at the Fortnightly club, has been postponed until next Friday night.

Gen. Robert E. Wood, the Ralph A. Bards, the Frederick A. Prestons, and Dr. Carl B. Davis are sailing from Seattle today in the Westward Ho, a small yacht, bound for Juneau, Alaska, on a four weeks' fishing trip. Gen. and Mrs. Wood's youngest daughter, Miss Mary Wood, returned Monday from a fortnight's visit in Houston, Tex., with her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Wood II., and her fiancé, William S. Farish Jr.

Miss Wood and Mr. Farish are to be married on June 18 at Trinity Episcopal church in Highland Park. The ceremony will take place in the afternoon, and a reception will follow at the Wood home.

According to CULBERTSON

[Copyright: 1938: By Ely Culbertson.]

"Dear Mr. Culbertson: The old colonel, retired, was a bachelor who had changed the ancient adage to 'All is fair in bridge and war.' Further experience in war being denied him, he brought all his cunning and ferocity to the bridge table. Thus, excepting outright cheating, he considered all means fair in the battle of the pasteboards.

"North, dealer.

	NORTH ♠ A K Q 9 7 3 ♥ 2 ♦ 9 ♣ A K J 7 5
WEST ♠ 10 8 6 2 ♥ 9 5 ♦ K J 10 6 5 ♣ 10 8		EAST ♠ J 5 ♥ K Q 6 ♦ Q 7 4 3 2 ♣ 9 3 2
	SOUTH ♠ 4 ♥ A J 10 8 7 4 3 ♦ A 8 ♣ Q 6 4

"As soon as East led the heart king, and dummy went down, the colonel began his nefarious scheming for victory. From the unbalanced character of the hand he knew that he stood a good chance of finding most of the outstanding trumps in one hand. After considerable pondering he hit upon the campaign most likely to succeed. The heart ace took the first trick and he trumped another to prepare for a possible squeeze. Two leads of trumps brought in East's jack as captive. The colonel, who had already thought of this possibility, feigned to consider his next move. His customary ferocity changed cunningly into apparent dismay. Then dismay turned to the smile of a perfectly good loser as he nodded to West and said 'Guess you have me, old man.'

"Poor West, all innocence, exulting in the impending rout of the colonel's forces, agreed with him. Which, as you know, was the last bit of information the colonel needed.

"He led to dummy's club queen, trumped another heart, thus reducing his trumps to the same number as West's, led to the diamond ace, and then led hearts until West almost developed a heart complex. The colonel's queen-nine, of course, took the last two tricks over West's ten-eight of spades.

"Do I hear you say that the colonel should have played the contract at seven clubs? Merely because it was a laydown? Then you still don't understand the man. He will tell you that the best campaigns are those against fighting forces, not 'against women and children.' Besides, with clubs as trumps, you wouldn't have had this yarn. Sincerely yours,

"K. L. D., Chicago."

Well, I suppose a certain amount of latitude and poker tactics must be allowed retired colonels. Although I hardly can approve his deliberate fishing for information relative to the break of the trump suit, I concede that West's admission that he had left the ten and eight of trumps should have led to his own retirement.

HAWKS BEAT AMERICANS, 1-0, IN 2D OVERTIME

LOUIS DEFENDS TITLE AGAINST THOMAS TONIGHT

HEAVYWEIGHTS SCHEDULED TO GO 15 ROUNDS

Champion's Third Defense of Crown.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Nine months ago Joe Louis won the heavyweight championship of the world by knocking out Jim Braddock in the eighth round of their fight in Comiskey park. Tonight in Chicago Stadium Louis will defend his title against Harry Thomas in a bout scheduled for fifteen rounds.

Since 1934, when Louis, who won the Golden Gloves light heavyweight championship, entered professional boxing, he has beaten every opponent except Max Schmeling, with whom he is matched on June 22. Louis has knocked out thirty-one of his thirty-eight opponents. Included in the list of victims are Max Baer, Primo Carnera, Paulino Uzcudun, Jack Sharkey, Al Ettore, and Charley Retzlaff.

On this evidence there is none who seriously thinks that Louis will fail to whip Thomas in the third defense of his title. Indeed, if the match lasts more than five or six rounds it will be almost as startling as if Thomas should knock out the champion.

Class B Leaguer.

Thomas' record of sixty bouts in the last six years, during which he has been beaten four times, knocked out once, and won by knockouts forty-five times, is impressive until the list of opponents is surveyed. After a review of his record it is impossible to escape the conclusion that Thomas, with the exception of his last two fights, has fought in the class B league of pugilism.

That he is meeting the champion is the sole excuse for putting the bout in the Stadium and charging $10 for a ringside seat. Thomas would be far more at home in the White City or the Marigold Gardens arenas.

If this is unfair to Thomas, he has only his previous record and caliber of opponents to blame. By any standard of measurement Louis is superior.

Louis Younger and Faster.

Louis is younger, possibly ten years younger, despite the record book, which asserts Thomas is 27 years of age. Louis is easily a more accurate and a more powerful hitter with either hand, shooting his punches straighter. Louis is faster. And the champion now has learned never to underestimate an opponent. Joe was taught this lesson when at the conclusion of an inadequate training period he met defeat at the hands of Schmeling.

The champion has trained earnestly. Perhaps he has worked no more diligently than Thomas, who, of course, has this one chance to title and fortune, but it must be admitted that if both are at peak condition Louis is a prohibitive favorite.

Thomas might land one punch early in the fight and destroy the smooth coördination of Louis' attack. He might, as did Schmeling, equalize the battle with one of his right hand swings so that he could go on to victory. This chance is present in any fight and is predicated on the assumption that Thomas will fight as courageously against the champion as he has in other bouts. There is no reason

TRUDELL HELPS DAHLSTROM TO WINNING GOAL

Play Third Game in New York Sunday.

BY GEORGE STRICKLER.

The Chicago Blackhawks, whipped six times since November by the Americans, defeated the New Yorkers, 1 to 0, in the second game of the Stanley cup semi-finals early this morning in the Chicago Stadium before 14,500.

The winning goal was scored at 12:33 a. m. in the thirteenth minute of the second overtime period by Cully Dahlstrom, who just before the game had received notification that he had been awarded the Frank Calder trophy, given annually to the outstanding rookie in the league.

Dahlstrom's goal, which tied the series at one game apiece and sends the teams back to New York to decide on Sunday who shall meet the Toronto Maple Leafs for the Stanley cup, emblematic of world's supremacy, gave the Hawks their first victory over the Americans in eight games this season.

Takes Pass from Trudell.

The slender wing took a long pass from Louis Trudell, who had broken away down the left side, and hammered it high into the corner of the net over the outstretched arm of Goalie Earl Robertson.

The outcome was in keeping with the upset motif which has characterized the entire playoff series. Goalie Robertson of the Americans, like Dahlstrom a first year man, had been giving one of the greatest exhibitions of net minding since the late Chuck Gardiner held forth in the Blackhawk cage. His opponent, Mike Karakas, had had shaky moments and as the teams returned to the ice at 12:20 a. m. it appeared to be just a question of how long his luck would last.

Hawks Carry Fight.

Until the first overtime period, when both teams stressed defense and played cautiously to avoid penalties which would leave them short handed, the Blackhawks had dominated the play with a superb passing attack that carried the fight to the Americans throughout.

Big Earl Seibert, Blackhawk defense man, carried on a one man offense against the entire American team in the early minutes of the second overtime, attempting to settle the issue with a solo dash comparable to those on which he scored twice against the Canadiens in the first cup series a week ago last night. But each time when other American defenders failed Robertson would rise up to thwart Seibert.

In addition to the Hawks' passing and Robertson's skill each of the regular periods was marked by delays occasioned by Joe Jerwa's belligerency and the willingness of Jack Shill and Johnny Gottselig of the Hawks to accommodate him. These interruptions helped delay the start of the second overtime until after midnight.

Hawks Fire, But Miss.

Until the dispute over the Jerwa-Shill fuss, which delayed play for twelve minutes, the scoreless first period had been a major league demonstration of passing and goal tending. Only the fact that the goal tending was on one side and the passing on the other prevented the Hawks from establishing a comfortable lead.

Robertson made seven saves in the first six minutes which might well have been illustrations for the handbook on perfect hocky.

In the 17th minute Shill, who had been a trifle too determined to suit the Americans, fell in midrink with Jerwa, whose skates flashed in the light as the big defense man kicked twice at Shill. After they had regained their feet Jerwa went for the Hawk. A promising fight was averted when officials rushed in.

Dispute Over Penalty.

A dispute arose over the penalty, finally reaching the riot stage in front of the Hawk bench, where Jerwa sassed Manager Bill Stewart and was promptly promised a thorough whipping. Little Bill tore off his overcoat and started for the husky American, but was restrained. When Jerwa

Railbirds See Pot of Gold for Mrs. E. V. Mars Stable

BY FRENCH LANE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hot Springs, Ark., March 31.—The click of horses' hooves—or was it dollars?—sounded on the Oaklawn race track here early this morning and out for their setting up exercises paraded the Milky Way Farm stable horses, owned by Mrs. Ethel V. Mars of Chicago.

On a golden yellow pony at the head of this stylish procession rode Bob McGarvey, Milky Way Farm's methodical trainer. He recently swapped a race horse in California for this gorgeously colored lead pony so that in a way he could express his bursting pride in being the trainer of such a fashionable stable.

The cold and calculating eye of the early morning railbirds followed every move made by the 33 horses.

Training for Rich Stakes.

And it isn't any wonder. For here where spring is fast racing into summer, one of the country's leading turf establishments is in the midst of its training work for the rich stake races that are to be run on up the line in Kentucky, Chicago, and in New York later on in the spring and summer months.

It is a unique stable, too, because all these horses were bought during the last three years by Mrs. Mars herself in the most spirited bidding sessions that the Saratoga thoroughbred auction ring ever has known.

The earnings of these horses made Mrs. Mars the leading money winning owner of America in 1936, placed her second on that list in 1937, and sends her into the campaign of 1938 with the brightest of prospects.

First to go through their paces this morning were the 3 year olds. Their drill naturally attracted the most interest because in this group rests Mrs. Mars' Kentucky Derby hopes, her Arlington Classic hopes, and her aspirations for the Belmont stakes and the Preakness pot of gold.

Two stood out above the others—Tiger and Mountain Ridge. They are much more advanced than the others because Trainer McGarvey intends to pick up the $5,000 prize in the Arkansas Derby here on Saturday with one of them and thus cover training expenses. They are the two that also are to be trained for the Kentucky Derby.

Tiger is the better colt of the pair. Some supposedly wise judges of horse flesh have stamped this son of Bulldog as strictly a sprinter. In preparation for the Arkansas Derby, however, he has just worked a very easy mile and an eighth in 1:54 and could have shaded that by some seconds had his exercise boy, Harry Hamilton, hustled him at any stage of the drill.

$100,000 2 Year Olds.

Now the big section of the parade starts. The 2 year olds—fifteen of them for which Mrs. Mars paid more than $100,000—move into view. The accomplishments of their 2 year olds have carried the Milky Way banner into the limelight for two years in a row. This group of eleven colts and four fillies appears to be good enough to do it again this year.

There's Up the Creek, a son of Bulldog, bred much like Tiger, which cost $13,500, and Magic Key, for which Mrs. Mars paid a like amount. Sports Writer, a $10,000 beauty, bred like Omaha, Granville, and Gallant Fox, is the 2 year old which Trainer McGarvey fancies most.

He won't actually tell you that, but he can't keep his eyes off the youngster when the colt is out of his stall. He's a growthy fellow and you may not hear much about him until it is time for the Arlington Classic in July.

Then there's On Location which cost $16,000; the filly, Dinner Date, bought for $8,000, and No Competition which has been showing great speed. He cost his Chicago owner $6,100. There are others, many expensive ones, too, but it takes more than one look to appreciate the fine points of all this highly valued horse flesh.

Reaping Reward Is Back.

Older horses on the track are Reaping Reward, Military, Mars Shield, Jawbreaker, and High Pressure. The last two are not topnotchers. Reaping Reward is back to the wars after a leg ailment shelved him last June. Military and Mars Shield "might do," remarks the Milky Way trainer, "if the competition is not too stiff."

The names of the new 2 year olds will show you that Mrs. Mars has quit naming horses for her friends. "We tried it," said the trainer, "and not a one that we named for anybody turned out the way we expected it to."

The Milky Way horses will move from here to Kentucky next week. They will race both at Keeneland and Churchill Downs. They will go on to Lincoln Fields in Chicago for a June campaign and will race at Arlington Park in July. Then the stable moves east to Saratoga.

CUBS SCORE FIVE IN EIGHTH; BEAT WHITE SOX, 9 TO 2

Cavarretta and Herman Hit Home Runs.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Los Angeles, Cal., March 31.—The Cubs, featuring home runs by Bill Herman and Phil Cavarretta, this afternoon bowled over the saddened White Sox, 9 to 2, in the 1938 farewell to California.

The outcome gave the Cubs a record of five victories to two losses in the seven games the teams played against each other in Los Angeles. Both of the homers were essential runs, Herman's being run No. 2 and Cavarretta's driving in two runs with two out in the seventh inning to break a 2 all tie that prevailed at the time Philip connected.

Sewell Does His Part.

The Sox, who seemed more melancholy than ever after the entire squad had visited Luke Appling en route to the ball park, turned in another listless performance. The attack, except for a four hit uprising against Larry French in the fourth inning, was almost negligible. The Sox made seven hits and three of them, two singles and a double, were hammered out by Luke Sewell.

Johnny Whitehead and French pitched the first five innings and each quit with a record of two runs and five hits accomplished by his opposition.

Whitehead was touched for the pair of runs before his mates accomplished anything in his behalf. Demaree led off the second inning with a double, went to third on Marty's long fly to Kreevich and scored on Reynolds' line single to left. In the next inning Herman smashed his homer over the wall in deep left center to give the Cubs a 2 to 0 lead.

Sox Get a Couple.

The Sox were held to Walker's first inning double until Kreevich opened the fourth inning with a single to center. Walker filed to Reynolds but Kuhel singled to right, Kreevich taking third. Rosenthal dropped a single into short center field, Kreevich scoring and Rosenthal got home on Sewell's line single to right. French settled down in his next and last inning and retired the Sox in order and Whitehead also ended his chore

Masters' Meet Again Matches Jones and Field

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Augusta, Ga., March 31.—The case of Jones against the field, one of the truly celebrated events of American sport, will be tried once more tomorrow, when the fifth annual Masters' golf tournament opens on the Augusta National course.

The Jones in question is, of course, Robert Tyre Jones Jr. of Atlanta, who was wont to whip up a spot of golf before his retirement after scoring the game's grand slam in 1930. The field which will argue the case with him is composed of 35 professionals and eight amateurs, the most select cast of the tournament year.

The Masters was founded by Jones, for Jones, and of Jones. It is the one tournament of the entire year in which the Atlanta barrister makes a competitive appearance. That appearance is attended largely by sentiment, for in the four preceding events the terror which Bobby once exercised over all golf has subsided to a point where his play, generally speaking, has been that of a good week-end player.

Dashes Off a 69.

Bob's best performance in the first four Masters' shows occurred in the inaugural of 1934, when he tied for thirteenth place. Nevertheless his spell has sustained itself in that the field still feels he may haul off with a couple of cards such as made him the master of them all.

Today the 36 year old Jones dashed off a 33—36—69, three under par, in his final practice round. This came on the heels of a 70 which he shot yesterday. Both of these neat scores, however, were made with a casualness which lacked the old Jones concentration, and there was a suspicion tonight that unless Bob decided to play an April fool's trick on the boys he will not be a notable threat in the tournament proper.

Heading the field arrayed against Jones for the 72 hole argument, which will be concluded with the final thirty-six holes on Sunday, are the three gents who have won the last four titles. They are Horton Smith of Oak Park, Ill.; Byron Nelson of Reading, Pa., and Gene Sarazen of Brookfield Center, Conn. The last named needs no identification in connection with the Masters', for it was he who smacked that epic deuce in 1935, which tied Craig Wood and sent him out of the playoff a winner. Smith won the first and third tournaments, and Nelson came out of the gloaming last year with a last nine of 32, which

FIVE CHAMPIONS DEFEND TITLES ON ARENA RINK

Freisinger and Ronchetti in Two Day Show.

The final indoor skating show of the season, the National Indoor speed skating meet and ice pageant, sponsored by the C. Y. O., will be presented tonight and tomorrow night in the Chicago Arena, Erie street and McClurg court.

The entrants include a number of major titleholders and the best skaters of the Chicago Figure Skating club. There are twenty-four speed events on the program, including six for senior men and four each in the senior women's and intermediate boys' divisions.

Five of the present indoor champions will defend their titles. They are Leo Freisinger, C. Y. O., senior men; Madeline Horne, Beaver Dam, Wis., senior women; Lowell Miller, C. Y. O., intermediate boys; Lavergne Dahm, Cleveland, junior girls, and Neil Brunner, also of Cleveland, midget boys.

The races which will attract the most interest are the ones in which Freisinger will be matched with Vic Ronchetti. They are rated among the top skaters of the world. It will be their first meeting of the year.

Tonight's events also will mark the first American appearance of the season for Freisinger, who has been competing in world championship events in Europe. While Leo was away, Ronchetti won both the national and North American titles.

DECATUR 'Y' FIVE WINS FIRST GAME IN TITLE DEFENSE

Decatur, defending champion, won its opening game in the state Y. M. C. A. basketball championship tournament at George Williams college last night from the Duncan branch, Chicago, 47 to 45.

Waukegan beat Division Street of Chicago, 45 to 26. Nuttila of Waukegan entered the game in the middle of the final quarter and sank seven goals and a free throw. In other games Larrabee of Chicago beat Springfield, 50 to 39; Lawson of Chicago whipped Joliet, 47 to 33, and Oak Park beat Wilson of Chicago, 59 to 34.

Soldiers' Field Under Study as Site for June Title Bout

Sheldon Clark, chairman of the citizens committee, will meet with the Chicago park board Tuesday to discuss the availability of Soldiers' field as a site for the Joe Louis-Max Schmeling heavyweight championship bout June 22.

Joe Triner, head of the Illinois boxing commission, announced the meeting after a conference with Promoter Mike Jacobs in the Morrison hotel yesterday.

"We've got the fight," Triner said. "The only thing that'll chase it out of Chicago is inability to obtain Soldiers' field as the arena."

Joe Jacobs, American representative of Schmeling; John Roxborough and Julian Black, co-managers of Louis, and Promoter Jacobs constituted part of Triner's audience.

"But," the commissioner said, "Joe Jacobs wants the match held in New York and Roxborough in Detroit. What I'd like to know is where Mike Jacobs wants to hold the encounter."

Rumors persist that the bout will be presented in Yankee stadium.

Davey Miller is in line to referee the Joe Louis-Harry Thomas bout tonight in the Stadium. After the contest Louis will rest in Stevensville, Mich., for a few days and then go on a short refereeing tour. . . . Jack Carter and Vernell Williams, each of whom has won his last two fights, will clash in a five round amateur headliner in Madison Athletic club, 4711 West Madison street, this evening. . . . A series of intercity matches between amateur boxers from Joliet and Chicago will be held tonight in Northwest arena, 3968 Irving Park boulevard. . . . Willie Joyce, Gary boxer managed by Issy Kline, will make his debut as a lightweight in a five round semi-final with Frankie Agnes of the west side in Marigold Gardens Monday. Pete Lello and Nick Camarata are principals in the ten round main event. Joey Chizar, South Bend featherweight, is paired with Pat Robertson for four rounds.

Barney Ross, welterweight champion, and his co-manager, Art Winch, left last night for Minneapolis where Ross fights Henry Schaft in a ten round overweight bout Monday . . . Jack [Bad Boy] Brown has signed to meet Fred Grubmier in a secondary feature to the windup wrestling bout between Ruffy Silverstein and Fritz Von Schacht in White City Monday. . . . Princess Baba, daughter of the white rajah and ranee of Sarawak, will accompany her husband, Bob Gregory, to Chicago for his bout with George Gastovich, 185 pound wrestler, in the Stadium one week from tonight. Steve [Crusher] Casey faces Ed Don George in the chief attraction. . . . Charley White, former lightweight contender, returned yesterday from Philadelphia where he was a guest at the third annual dinner sponsored by the Veteran Boxers' association of Pennsylvania Tuesday. It was reported the proceeds may reach $10,000, a sum sufficient to make final payment on a home purchased for indigent fighters.

The second annual boxing show under the auspices of St. Felicitas Boys' club will be conducted tonight in St. Felicitas school auditorium, 83d place and Blackstone avenue.

Bridges' Elbow Injury Slight, X-Ray Shows

Lakeland, Fla., March 31.—(AP)—Detroit specialists notified Manager Mickey Cochrane tonight that Tommy Bridges, Tiger pitcher, will not have to undergo an operation for removal of a bone chip in his hurling arm. The specialists said examination of X-rays showed a small bone fragment just back of the right elbow. Cochrane said he would use Bridges soon in an exhibition game.

LOUIS DEFENDS TITLE IN FIGHT WITH THOMAS

Bout Is Scheduled for Fifteen Rounds.

No Suspicions Aroused.

There has been no suspicion of behind the scenes manipulation without which no heavyweight bout once was complete. Honest supervision by the Illinois commission and impartial conduct by referee and judges, for which Chicago's officials have worthy reputations, are a safeguard. Then, too, it would be ludicrous to assume that Louis and his handlers, in view of the impending Schmeling engagement and the champion's share of a purse which may approach a million dollars, would be party to chicanery. There is nothing in Louis' book to indicate he will deviate from the path of honest endeavor.

Louis' title defense is exactly what it has been advertised to be—a final warmup for Schmeling. But in his ambition to erase the knockout by Schmeling Louis has not forgotten that unnecessary recklessness can lead to an upset.

Thomas has repeatedly guaranteed he will give his best. He has every reason, for after all the stake is Louis' title.

Comparison Will Be Made.

This is a championship fight, but primarily comparisons will be made on Louis' work against the man whom Schmeling knocked down seven times and stopped in eight rounds.

Champion and contender finished preparations yesterday afternoon in Trafton's gymnasium. Each confined his training program to brief exercises. At noon today they will appear in Trafton's to weigh in.

Tonight's supporting card, a program of five six round bouts largely devoted to heavyweights, is above the average for a championship show. Outstanding is the bout between Dave Clark, former Golden Gloves middleweight champion, now campaigning as a light heavyweight, and Bill Palmer. Buddy Knox and George Nicholson may offer a more evenly contested bout.

First Bout at 8.

The first bout will start at 8 o'clock. Louis and Thomas will enter the ring approximately at 10 o'clock. The fight will be broadcast over a national chain. Champion and challenger will share in the receipts from this exclusive broadcast and from the moving pictures. Louis will receive 40 per cent of net receipts. Thomas will receive 12½ per cent.

ARMOUR PLAYS MILLS.

This Thing I Know.

This thing I know: When the red dawn shall break
After the dreary darkness of the night,
And in the tulip's heart there shall awake
And the young grass be redolent with dew,
And Spring wear lustrous lilacs in her hair—
All will be wilderness apart from you.
Better the white heat of the desert sands
That stretch out to the far horizon line,
If I might feel the pressure of your hands
Within my own, and know that you are mine;
With you beside me at the evening's close

REDS BATTER 3 TIGERS FOR 16 HITS; WIN, 7-5

Grissom Halts Detroit Rally in Ninth.

Tampa, Fla., March 31.—(AP)—The Cincinnati Reds combed three Detroit hurlers for 16 hits today and, with a four run attack in the third inning, won from the Tigers, 7 to 5.

Despite recent complaints of a sore arm and a tendency to wildness in the eighth and ninth, Lee Grissom, who succeeded Gene Schott on the mound, managed to counteract shaky defensive work afield and, in the last inning, cut short a Tiger uprising that netted two runs. The Reds committed five errors. Score:

Detroit [A.L.].......011 100 002—5 9 0
Cincinnati [N.L.]....004 001 20*—7 16 5

INDIANS WIN, 6-5.

New Orleans, La., March 31.—(AP)—The New Orleans Pelicans got to Pitcher Bob Feller today for five runs in three innings, but the Cleveland Indians tied the score with a four run rally in the sixth inning and won their last exhibition game here, 6 to 5.

New Orleans [SA]....230 000 000—5 9 2
Cleveland [AL]......100 04 10*—6 11 2

BROWNS BEAT HENS.

San Antonio, Tex., March 31.—(AP)—Ralph [Red] Kress hit his second home run of the day in the tenth inning to give the St. Louis Browns a 7 to 6 victory over Toledo of the American association today.

Toledo [AA]....130 101 000 0—6 12 2
St. Louis [AL]...201 010 200 1—7 13 3

Batteries—Marberry, Trout and Linton, Hancken; Walkup, Tamulis, Bonnetti and Sullivan.

ROOKIE BEATS MUNGO.

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 31.—(AP)—Aided by Brooklyn errors the St. Louis Cardinals trimmed the Dodgers today, 3 to 0, in a well pitched game.

Max Macon, Card rookie, outpitched Van Mungo in the first four innings, although errors by Leo Durocher at short and Buddy Hassett in left helped the Cards make two runs in the first. Macon pitched well with men on bases. Score:

St. Louis [N.L.]....210 000 00*—3 11 0

Batteries—Mungo, Fitzsimmons, and Chervinko; Macon, Weiland and Owen.

RED SOX, 6; LEAFS, 4.

Sarasota, Fla., March 31.—(AP)—Johnny Marcum gave another impressive pitching performance today—his third of the training season—as the Boston Red Sox shaded the Toronto Maple Leafs, 6 to 4. Entering the game in the fifth with the score tied at 4-4, Marcum limited the Leafs to one hit the rest of the way.

Toronto [I.L.].......004 000 000—4 6 2
Boston [A.L.].......103 001 01*—6 10 3

Batteries—Mulligan, Lafranconi and Klimczak, Reiber; Grove, Marcum and Desautels, Peacock.

PHILS WIN IN 9TH.

Biloxi, Miss., March 31.—(AP)—Scoring four runs in the ninth without making a hit, the Phillies came from behind today to beat Jersey City of the International league, 8 to 7.

Jersey City [INT]....240 000 001—7 13 2
Philadelphia [N]....003 000 014—8 9 3

Batteries—Stiles, Radon, Meketi and Redmond; Passeau, Lamaster and Atwood, Stephenson.

BEES, 9; BISONS, 1.

Bradenton, Fla., March 31.—(AP)—The Boston Bees today trampled the Buffalo Bisons of the International league, 9 to 1. John Lanning shut out the Bisons for seven innings, then yielded a run in the eighth. He allowed only six hits before being relieved by Dick Errickson. Score:

Boston [N.L.]......201 002 22*—9 11 0

Batteries—Fink, Archer and Phillips; Lanning, Erickson and Riddle.

PIRATES BEAT PORTLAND.

Fullerton, Cal., March 31.—(AP)—Arky Vaughan hit a home run in the first inning to the delight of his home town fans and the Pittsburgh Pirates went on to win their seventh consecutive game by beating Portland, 5 to 1.

Pittsburgh..........400 000 001—5 11 2
Portland............000 000 010—1 6 1

HAWKS DEFEAT AMERICANS, 1-0, IN 2D OVERTIME

made another remark Stewart again started for him. The officials persuaded Stewart to don his coat and sentenced Shill and Jerwa to the penalty box on minors.

Play followed the first period pattern as the teams sped through the scoreless second session. Robertson, taxed to the utmost by every Hawk flurry, delivered brilliantly. Karakas, on the other end of the rink, had only three difficult stops as the Hawks' defense checked fiercely and the forwards pressed goalward continually.

Americans Short Handed.

Penalties on Anderson for high sticking Dahlstrom and on Jerwa for roughing Thompson, which left the Americans two men short for nearly half a minute, gave the Hawks an excellent opening, but first Thompson then Seibert were thwarted by Robertson.

A five minute time out for debate followed the Jerwa penalty, the Americans contending that Thompson should be sent out, too.

The Americans fenced for a break in the first four minutes of the third period. They got it when Beattie broke away and went down the right boards, but Gallagher missed a perfect pass from the wing in front of Karakas.

The tempo was stepped up immediately and goalies took turns making spectacular stops. Dahlstrom was sent off in the eighth minute for tripping Anderson.

Dahlstrom had no more gotten into the penalty box than the Hawks were called upon to clear the puck in front of Karakas. They made a poor pass to the side. Stewart intercepted and drove the puck into the net, but the goal was not allowed because of interference with Karakas by Wiseman.

500 Amateurs to Play Today in French Lick Golf

French Lick, Ind., March 31.—[Special.]—The central states golfing season will be inaugurated tomorrow when the first of more than 500 amateurs—a record entry list—tee off on two courses in the seventh annual midwest amateur golf tournament.

With Gus Moreland of Peoria defending his crown, the largest field ever to shoot for the title will start the 54 hole event. Virtually every top notch golfer in the central states will be in the tournament.

The contenders include Don Armstrong of Peoria, who lost last year in an extra hole playoff to Moreland; George Dawson, who held the title in 1933, 1934, and 1935; Wilfred Wehrle, western amateur champion; Russell Martin, Art Sweet, Gus Novotny, and Chuck Becka.

White Sox and Cubs Renew Feud Today for Yuma Fans

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Los Angeles, Cal., March 31.—The White Sox and Cubs started out of here on a special train tonight. They'll stop at Yuma, Ariz., tomorrow for the purpose of exhibiting themselves in the eighth of the sixteen game spring series. The Yuma pitchers will be Charley Root and Newel Kimball for the Cubs vs. Ted Lyons and Sugar Cain.

After disposing of their Yuma engagement the Sox and Cubs will have two days at Tucson, two at Bisbee, and one at El Paso before splitting up. They'll get together again in Chicago April 15, 16, and 17.

Bob Logan, who had been tussling with an infected toe for several days, and Curt Davis, who spent more than a week trying to recover from the effects of a turned ankle, were among the Cub gentlemen exercising before today's game. Both may be able to do a turn on the mound in a few days.

Augie Galan, the Cubs' left fielder, was a spectator today but saw the game only through one eye. The other eye was concealed under a pad which he will have to wear for the next five or six days. A filmlike growth was removed from the optic yesterday.

Mr. James Dykes the Sox manager, and Vice President Harry Grabiner insist the club is hot on the trail of a shortstop who will help until such time as Luke Appling, who suffered an ankle fracture in last Sunday's game, but they are not willing to reveal the identities of the candidates. They deny having an eye on Woody English, now with the Dodgers.

The great Arthur Shires was out today to shake hands with such of the Cubs and Sox as knew him way back when he was a big leaguer. The versatile Arthur now is thinking up wisecracks for use in movie scenarios and is being paid for his originations.

In the eighth inning this afternoon Umpire Harry Geisel must have thought he was employed by the National instead of the American league. Or he may have been worried about catching a train. Anyway he called Kreevich out at second on a force play and from the grandstand it looked as if Kreevich had been on the bag for about a half hour before the ball arrived from Hack, who picked up Walker's grounder.

St. Luke Beats Trinity in Walther League, 39-27

Three senior games and one junior contest were played last night in the quarter-finals of the Walther Basketball league in Concordia college gymnasium, River Forest. St. Peter of Joliet won the junior game, defeating Downers Grove, 19 to 13. In the senior games, St. Luke beat Trinity of Crete, 39 to 27; Trinity of Herscher won from Westmont, 23 to 12, and Christ of Oak Park beat Bethlehem, 42 to 21.

OPEN HANDBALL MEET.

CUBS SCORE FIVE IN EIGHTH; BEAT WHITE SOX, 9 TO 2

with a three up and three down inning.

Bill Lee and Bill Dietrich took over the pitching business in the sixth and faced only three batters each in the inning. In the seventh Sewell singled, but nothing more happened to embarrass the proud Mr. Lee in that inning.

The Cubs resumed the lead in the seventh. With one down, Hack singled to left and stole second as Herman fanned. Cavarretta then lifted a homer over the right field screen, scoring behind Hack to give the Cubs a 4 to 2 advantage.

Boze Has a Bad Day.

Berger's second error on Marty, at the outset of the eighth, opened up a Cub scoring spree. Marty was moved to second by Reynolds' sacrifice. Jurges singled to right, Marty stopping at third. After Jurges had gone to second on a passed ball, O'Dea was given an intentional pass, loading the bases. Dietrich walked Lee, forcing Marty across the plate.

Hack then singled off the right field screen, scoring Jurges and O'Dea. Herman was safe, Lee scored, and Hack reached third on Owen's high throw. Cavarretta walked, filling the bases again. Clint Brown replaced Dietrich and Demaree flied to Kreevich, Hack scoring. Marty, up for the second time in the inning, fanned.

Record Entry of Dogs Seeks Show Honors

BY BOB BECKER.

A total of 1,169 purebred dogs will compete for ribbons and points in the International Kennel club show which opens tomorrow morning in the International amphitheater, 42d and Halsted streets. The dogs come from twenty-eight states and three Canadian provinces, a record for this spring show.

Competition in many of the breeds will develop a three cornered contest among owners from Canada, the east, and the middle west. This is expected in classes for English springer spaniels, dachshund, and old English sheep dogs. Leonard Collins of Toronto, Ont., is showing a sheep dog that recently has won important dominion shows. Mrs. Janet H. Henneberry, 399 Fullerton parkway, will make a bid for honors among English springer spaniels with three entries, including her Champion Dunoon Donald Dhu, which was the best springer in the New York show.

Enters Prize Cocker Spaniel.

One of the outstanding nominations in the classes for cocker spaniels is Blackstone Reflector, a champion entered by Mrs. Leonard Buck of Far Hills, N. J. The dog won top honors in the New England cocker spaniel show in Boston last November and also in the recent Westminster Kennel club show in New York City.

Much interest is expected to center in the poodle champion, Pillicoc Rumpelstilskin, sent from Elberon, N. J., by Mrs. Milton Erlanger for exhibition only. This dog captured the American Kennel club award for the best American bred dog of 1937.

Shepherd Dog Exhibition.

A special feature announced for Sunday evening at 7:30 will be an exhibition of trained shepherd dogs to be presented by the German Shepherd club of Chicago.

Culver Military academy cadets have entered a number of dogs. This is the first time that members of the Academy Kennel club have entered dogs in the Chicago show.

Washington and Lee Crew Enters North-South Regatta

New York, March 31.—(AP)—Washington and Lee has been added to the list of crews which will compete in the North-South regatta on the Harlem river June 4.

Smokers' Test shows Vintage Tobacco is at least 25% easier on your breath

WHITE OWLS are definitely easier on your breath—scientific tests prove it. And there's a good reason why, too. Every White Owl always has a Vintage-tobacco filler. Nature—not artificial factory processing—made this tobacco exceptionally mild, mellow.

We maintain a vast crop-inspection system—the only known organization of its kind—to locate Vintage tobacco. In Vintage years, we classify all filler tobacco into seven grades—and buy only tobacco of the quality of the top three for use in White Owls.

Switch to White Owls today and taste the rich Vintage tobacco . . . then notice how quickly your breath clears.

The Metallic Nose Knows

Scientists use a sensitive osmoscope to measure odor . . . to record its intensity and lasting power. Ten popular brands of 5¢ cigars were tested by this machine. White Owl was at least 25% easier on the breath than all the others. After 30 minutes, all trace of tobacco odor disappeared from the breath of White Owl smokers.

One of the largest crowds in the history of an American Bowling Congress tournament jammed the Coliseum last night, expecting to see Hank Marino and his Heil Products of Milwaukee better the 3,087 total of the Isaac Baker & Sons of Erie, Pa., but the national match champions disappointed the 6,000 fans as they turned in a 2,926 total on games of 932, 985, and 1,009.

Charley Daw, who has captured two A. B. C. titles, opened with 146, due to a 5-7 split and errors in the fourth, sixth, and ninth frames. Elmer Koch, leadoff man, contributed only 167, but Billy Sixty, Gillie Zunker, and Marino all went over the 200 mark.

Koch, Daw, and Zunker bettered 200 in the second game, but Sixty dropped to 182 and Marino to 184.

Marino Has Troubles.

The Heils started the final game as if they were going to equal their performance of last year in New York, when they shot 1,161, but in the ninth frame Daw, Zunker, and Marino failed to strike or spare and the team totaled only 1,009. Marino scored only 164.

Charley Davies, anchor man of the Buffert, Inc., team of Milwaukee, furnished the biggest thrill of the evening when he opened his final game with ten strikes. His eleventh shot crossed the head pin for a Brooklyn hit and he left the No. 10 pin standing. Davies picked up the spare for 289, the high single game of the tourney.

Youngsters Entertain Crowd.

Jackie Rump, 3 years, of Fort Wayne, and Eddie Laurent, 4 years old, of Chicago caught the fancy of the capacity crowd with an exhibition before the 8:30 squad started bowling. The youngsters conducted themselves like veterans.

The Krakow Furnitures of Detroit, who won the team championship with 3,118 in New York last year, will roll tonight. The lineup will be the same as last year, with Herbert Mertens, who totaled 576; Frank Cuthbert, 573; Richard Krakow, 640; Alex Innes, 664, and Frank Yost, 665.

FORT SHERIDAN CONQUERS 122D ARTILLERY, 9-3

The Fort Sheridan polo team advanced to the final of the western title tournament, Chicago circuit, by defeating the 122d Field Artillery, 9 to 3, in the 124th Field Artillery armory last night.

The Army trio took the lead at the outset and widened the gap as the game progressed, outscoring the 122d in every period except the last, when honors were even.

Morris, Hutchinson Tie.

Maj. Paul H. Morris and Capt. Cary B. Hutchinson tied for scoring honors with four goals apiece.

As a result of its victory Fort Sheridan will meet the winner of tomorrow night's game between the Chicago Shamrocks and Chicago Black Horse Troop in the Washington Park armory.

Play Finals Thursday.

The final round in the Chicago circuit is scheduled for Tuesday night. The successful team will oppose Cleveland in the 124th Artillery armory Thursday for the western championship. Lineups:

FT. SHERIDAN [9].		122D ARTIL'RY [3].
Capt. Hutchinson	No. 1	Lt. Fritz
Maj. Morris	No. 2	Lt. Harrison
Capt. Jernigan	B.	Lt. Johnson

Fort Sheridan	3	3	2	1—9
122d F. A.	1	0	1	1—3

Goals: Hutchinson, 4; Morris, 4; Jernigan, 1. Harrison, 1; Johnson, 1; by pony, 1. Referee—John C. Powers.

Name Scarlata Fencing Captain at Notre Dame

Notre Dame, Ind., March 31.—[Special.]—Salvatore Scarlata, junior premedical student from Lodi, N. J., was elected Notre Dame 1939 fencing captain at the annual fencing dinner here tonight. He succeeds Jack Zerbst who led the Irish to seven victories in nine matches during the last season.

RIFLE SHOOT STARTS TONIGHT IN FIELDHOUSE

The first of 200,000 rounds of small bore ammunition will be fired this evening in the third annual University of Chicago Rifle club invitational match in the Midway fieldhouse.

Approximately 500 of the nation's outstanding marksmen, including 100 college experts, will participate in the three day event. A new lighting and target system has been installed in the fieldhouse for the shooters.

While the regular shoot is under way in the fieldhouse tomorrow, the intercollegiate shoulder to shoulder rifle meet will be held in Bartlett gymnasium. Teams from the University of Cincinnati, Wheaton college, Norwich university, and the Universities of Iowa, Wisconsin, Chicago, Alabama, Illinois, Indiana and Ohio State are registered.

Russell Wiles Jr., match manager and University of Chicago rifle team coach, said that a total of 3,000 targets will be used during the three days.

Ramey Meets Buckler in Ten Rounds Tonight

South Bend, Ind., March 31.—[Special.]—Wesley Ramey, Grand Rapids, Mich., and Jimmy Buckler, Louisville, Ky., will meet in a scheduled 10 round fight here tomorrow night. Tommy Pallatin, South Bend, former national A. A. U. lightweight champion, and Gary Rosette of Grand Rapids, will meet in the 6 round semi-windup.

Wilson Nine Opens with Morgan Park Today

Apostoli Fights Glen Lee—Aims at Steele Bout

New York, March 31.—(AP)—Fred Apostoli of San Francisco and Glen Lee of Edison, Neb., leading candidates for the right to meet Freddie Steele for middleweight honors, head tomorrow night's boxing program in Madison Square Garden in a 15 round return bout. Apostoli won a close decision when they fought twelve rounds two months ago.

Apostoli already has put a $2,000 check on file with the New York state athletic commission to bind his challenge to Steele. The commission, however, withheld action until after tomorrow night's bout, and is likely to recognize Lee as No. 1 challenger if he whips Apostoli.

FACTS BEHIND OUR HUMAN CUSTOMS . . .

APRIL FOOL'S DAY... our day for jokes

Why?

In 1564, when CHARLES IX of France decreed that the New Year should begin January 1st instead of April 1st, he started something! Those who objected became the butt of many jokes, some of which have come down to us today. The French called the persons they fooled poisson d'avril, meaning "an April fish"... or a young fish, easily caught. This custom is

HERE'S ANOTHER CUSTOM BASED ON FACT:

The public can't be fooled about whiskey quality and that's the reason behind GLENMORE'S popularity. For the quality of this fine Kentucky Bourbon goes back to the development of the original formula two generations ago... the honest adherence to that formula by the founder's family through the years ...to the excellence of Kentucky's deep-well water... and to the faithful care and attention given GLENMORE in every detail of preparation. You won't be fooling yourself if you pour GLENMORE... you get more.

MILLS AUCTION VIEWED AS STEP TO MEET TAXES

Estate Levies Reported to Total Large Sum.

BY WILLIAM FULTON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 31.—[Special.]—With the auctioneer's hammer thumping and crowds jamming the home of the late Ogden L. Mills, secretary of the treasury under President Hoover, the public sale of furniture, tapestries, paintings, and other art properties got under way today.

A strike of city moving van drivers, which has virtually paralyzed all moving in Manhattan and the Bronx, upset plans for the sale. Besieged by strikers, agents found it necessary at the last minute to hold the auction in the Mills home, large red brick landmark facing Central park, instead of at the Parke-Bernet Art galleries. Two hundred men held the vans at the curb throughout the night and early morning hours.

Reports Are Persistent.

While the sale went on through the afternoon, reports persisted that the beneficiaries under the will of the former cabinet member had been forced to put the highly valuable collection on the auction block in order to satisfy state and federal estate taxes.

No appraisal of the Mills estate has ever been made public but it is believed to be substantial and to fall within the higher taxing brackets. The federal levy now reaches a maximum of 70 per cent, approximately 17 per cent higher than the comparable tax on estates in England.

Attorney Roy C. Gasser, an executor of the estate, refused to discuss the reasons for the sale.

"No comment," was his crisp rejoinder to questions. "The executors have no statement, whatever, beyond the formal announcement of the sale."

By Order of Legatees.

From other sources close to the family it was learned that the next step following the auction is to sell the home, which probably will be razed to make way for an apartment building. This was regarded as further evidence of a liquidation for tax purposes.

Friends of the widow, Mrs. Dorothy Randolph Mills, represented her as anxious to dispose of the town house and its furnishings. They said she would make her home in the future at the Mills' country estate at Woodbury, Long Island. Mills left her this home and the residence in the city. He willed his collections to her with the exception of specified works for the Metropolitan Museum of Art.

The art collection and furnishings left under the will of Ogden Mills, father of the treasury head, also were placed on sale today. The elder Mills left 12 million dollars to his son when he died in 1929, and the treasury head was already rated as a millionaire. Ogden L. Mills died Oct. 11, 1937, at the age of 53.

Included in the sale will be Beauvais and Gobelin tapestries, eighteenth century French furniture, Chinese porcelains, Gainsborough and Goya paintings, and even the gilded panelings in the rooms. The sale will continue through Saturday.

Two other well known American collections also are being liquidated here in New York. One is the sale of the furnishings in the home of the late Mortimer Schiff, banker and capitalist, which will take place in June, according to an announcement by the son, John. The other was the sale last week of the art objects, porcelains, and rugs from the Greenwich, Conn., home of Percy A. Rockefeller, nephew of the late John D. They were offered by the five children.

COUNCIL ASSURED OF CLEAN BILL IN HOUSING DEFICIT

The city council committee on housing was assured yesterday by John R. Fugard, chairman of the Chicago Housing authority, that the city will not be responsible for any deficit that may arise in connection with the three low cost housing projects here. Deficits will be adjusted between the CHA and the United States housing authority.

The matter was brought up because of loans obtained by the CHA in anticipation of rents. The CHA borrowed $12,500 from the city at 3 per cent interest and $42,500 from a bank. This $55,000, for which rents from the projects are security, will be paid back next year, Fugard stated.

The committee has been conducting an inquiry into the affairs of the CHA, but it was indicated that both groups will confine themselves to efforts toward starting work on the South Park gardens, a project for colored residents.

Kansas Mayor, Re-Elected, Resigns $35,000 a Year Job

Kansas City, Mo., March 31.—(AP)—Mayor Bryce B. Smith, who was re-elected mayor of Kansas City for a third four year term at Tuesday's city election, announced today his resignation at southwestern regional vice president of the General Baking company. He said he would give his full time to civic duties. He will continue as a director to the baking company. His post as vice president paid $35,000 a year. He receives $5,000 annual salary as mayor. The city has a city manager who handles administrative affairs.

Driving Instructor Passes Red Light; Flunks in Court

New York, March 31.—(AP)—Frank Zupa pleaded guilty and was fined $10 in traffic court today for passing a red light. "This is your third offense for passing a red light. What is your occupation?" the court asked. "I am an auto instructor," said Zupa, "and I teach folks how to drive."

HOLD LAST RITES TOMORROW FOR MRS. EDW. HINES

Widow of Lumberman Dies of Pneumonia.

Funeral services for Mrs. Loretta Hines, widow of Edward Hines, millionaire lumber merchant, who died yesterday in Michael Reese hospital, will be held at 10 a. m. tomorrow in St. Mary's church in Evanston. Burial will be in Calvary cemetery.

Mrs. Edward Hines.

Mrs. Hines, who was 65 years old, became ill on Dec. 12. After several weeks in the hospital she was returned to her home at the Ambassador East hotel, but three weeks ago complications developed and she returned to the hospital. Pneumonia was the cause of death.

Active in Charitable Work.

Both Mr. Hines, who died in 1931, and Mrs. Hines were well known for their activities in establishing the Edward Hines Jr. Memorial hospital for war veterans. The hospital is named in memory of their son, who died in the world war. In addition Mrs. Hines was active in other charitable work, particularly in the interests of Rosary college in River Forest, and the Big Sisters association.

Mr. and Mrs. Hines also presented the $500,000 chapel to St. Mary of the Lake seminary at Mundelein as a memorial to their son.

Three Children Survive.

Mrs. Hines was born in Chicago. She was married on June 12, 1895, and was the mother of four children, three of whom, Mrs. Howell H. Howard of Dayton, O.; Ralph J. Hines, Lake Bluff, and Charles M. Hines, Hubbard Woods, survive.

For a number of years Mr. and Mrs. Hines lived at 1456 Ridge avenue, Evanston. Mr. Hines was president of the Edward Hines Lumber company. Their sons are now continuing the business.

Ministers Exchanged by Lithuania and Poland

WARSAW, March 31.—(AP)—Kazsis Skirpa, Lithuanian minister to Poland, today presented his credentials to President Ignace Moscicki. Skirpa promised his coöperation with the Polish government, under whose dictate Lithuania agreed to restore diplomatic relations broken eighteen years ago. Today was the day fixed by Poland's ultimatum of March 17 for exchange of ministers.

Pole Presents Credentials.

LOSES FEET UNDER TRAIN; DIES.

The wheels of a New York Central freight train severed the feet of Patrick Mansfield, 6803 Anthony avenue, yesterday at 97th street near Avenue N, east of the Calumet river. Mansfield died last night in South Chicago hospital.

OBITUARIES

Richard J. Donnelly.

Funeral services for Richard J. Donnelly, 71 years old, an employé of the city for twenty-five years, will be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow in the chapel at 4245 Madison street. Burial will be in Forest Home cemetery. Mr. Donnelly died Wednesday night in Bethany hospital. He lived at 5309 Washington boulevard. He came to Chicago fifty-four years ago from Cleveland and entered the plumbing trade. For seventeen years prior to 1919, he was president of the Chicago Journeymen Plumbers' union. Surviving are his widow, Ada C.; a daughter, Mrs. Myra Booth, and two sons, Harry R. and Robert R. Donnelly.

William Bundy.

Marion, Ill., March 31.—(AP)—William Bundy, former Democratic sherif and state representative in 1887, died today in the Herrin hospital. He was injured last night when he fell downstairs at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Edward Longbons of Marion. He would have been 92 years old next Saturday. He had been a pharmacist until ten years ago.

Dr. D. N. R. Smith.

Baltimore, Md., March 31.—[Special.]—Dr. D. Nathan Ryno Smith, 74 years old, died yesterday at his home here. He was the son of the late Dr. Alan P. and Emily Jones Smith and the grandson of Dr. Nathan R. Smith, professor of surgery at the University of Maryland. He was the great-grandson of Dr. Nathan Smith, founder of the Yale medical school.

Daniel E. Hoffman.

Funeral services for Daniel E. Hoffman, 67 years old, ticket agent for the elevated lines for 39 years, will be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow in the chapel at 214 South Western avenue. Burial will be in Woodlawn cemetery. Mr. Hoffman died Wednesday in his home at 3024 Jackson boulevard. His widow, Grace, and a son, Lawrence, survive.

Mrs. Annie M. Michener.

New York, March 31.—[Special.]—Mrs. Annie M. Michener, 72 years old, past national president of the Ladies of the Grand Army of the Republic, died this afternoon at her home in Yonkers. She was the widow of Reuben Michener, former executive of the Crucible Steel company. She was born in Philadelphia.

Mrs. Lois Guile.

Funeral services for Mrs. Lois Guile, one of the oldest residents of Marengo, in McHenry county, will be held in Marengo today. Mrs. Guile died there Wednesday at the age of 76. She is survived by five children, five grandchildren, and eight great-grandchildren.

Fred Wagner.

Fred Wagner, for many years a circus agent and theatrical manager, died yesterday from a heart attack. He was 66 years old and lived at 5222 Dorchester avenue. Mr. Wagner at one time managed the Sells-Floto circus and later was connected with other circuses. At one time he managed the old Columbian theater here. His widow, Pearl, survives. Funeral services will be at 2 p. m. tomorrow in the chapel at 1820 Michigan avenue.

Albert W. Goodrich.

Funeral services for Albert W. Goodrich, city fire commissioner from 1927 to 1931, will be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow in St. James Episcopal church, 666 Rush street. Burial will be in Rosehill cemetery. Mr. Goodrich, who was 69 years old, died Wednesday night in his home at 942 Lake Shore drive. He was for many years owner of the Goodrich Transit company, largest of the Great Lakes steamship lines, which he sold in 1921.

Benjamin Chew Sr.

Philadelphia, Pa., March 31.—[Special.]—Benjamin Chew Sr., 59 years old, member of an old Philadelphia family, died last night at his winter home in Boca Grande, Ala. During the world war he was a captain in the quartermaster's department. He formerly was master of the hounds at the Radnor Hunt club, a yachtsman, and big-game hunter.

Sultan of Selangor.

SINGAPORE, Straits Settlements, March 31.—(AP)—The sultan of Selangor, one of the most important of the Federated Malay States, died today in Klang. He was 74 years old. The sultan's successor will be his third son, Tungku Laxaman, whom the British government installed as crown prince instead of the sultan's eldest son in 1936.

Marylander Charged with Kicking His Wife to Death

Frederick, Md., March 31.—(AP)—Andrew J. Peomroy was charged tonight with murder of his wife, Mary, 35, whose rain soaked and bruised body was found outside the door of their Frederick Junction home early today. Police said she had been kicked to death.

CLEMENT ESTATE ACCOUNTING SETS VALUE AT $630,849

Probate Judge John F. O'Connell yesterday approved a final accounting of the estate of Nathan L. Clement, retired manufacturer who died on Nov. 24, 1936, at the age of 87 years. The accounting valued the gross estate at $630,849, compared with previous estimates of $350,000. Federal estate taxes amount to $65,492 and Illinois inheritance taxes will be $64,061.

The accounting was filed by two nephews, Arthur A. Clement and Allan M. Clement, both of 209 Lake Shore drive, who are the executors. The two have been made defendants in a suit by two grand nephews, not remembered in the will, who seek to have the document set aside.

Garbo and Stokowski Quit Italy for Africa

HIS BASE NOTE IS TOO SHARP; SHE LEAVES HIM FLAT

Zoom, zoom, zoom. All afternoon the deep, velvety notes of Robert Pilot's bass viol rattled the casements and jarred the furniture of the Pilot home. It was with some relief that Mrs. Roberta Peters Pilot answered the phone and relayed to her husband the offer of an engagement to play that evening.

But Mr. Pilot said no. He was worn out by his practice and could not accept. This annoyed Mrs. Pilot, who remarked that she worked regularly and that he should go earn the fee.

The upshot was that he put her into a cab with a note addressed to her mother which said in effect:

"Here is your daughter. Keep her."

When these events of Feb. 15, 1937, were laid before Judge Walter J. LaBuy yesterday by Attorney Sol R. Friedman a divorce was granted to Mrs. Pilot, who now lives at 4449 North Spaulding avenue. Robert and the bull fiddle live currently at 910 Lawrence avenue.

MARCH DEPARTS A LAMB; FLEECE KEEPS IT WARM

March came in like a lamb, and you know how those woolly coats are. It was, as a result, the fourth warmest March in Chicago's history, with a mean temperature of 45 degrees. Only March 1878, 1910, and 1921 have been warmer. The average daily excess temperature [figures are for the first 30 days] was 9.9 degrees, according to Forecaster H. A. Downs. Rainfall was 3.34 inches, .84 aboye normal. But the temperature was falling toward the freezing point when March departed last night, still a lamb if a trifle less mild. The forecast for today is partly cloudy and continued cold.

HUNDREDS OF ANIMALS IN ZOO ARE STARVING; MAY BE PUT TO DEATH

Los Angeles, Cal., March 31.—(AP)—Several hundred lions, tigers, monkeys, camels, and other animals at Zoo park are nearly starved, and unless immediate arrangements can be made to feed them, said Dr. C. C. Warn of the city humane department, they will be put to death.

Funds of the California Zoölogical society, which operates the zoo, have been depleted and admission revenues sharply curtailed because the zoo was damaged in the March 2 flood. Soon after the floods, the animals were placed on half rations. To provide even this, Zoo Manager William J. Richards, trainers, and keepers have gone without pay. Tonight the feeding was placed on a one-third ration basis. Many of the animals are ill from malnutrition.

URGE INVESTORS JOIN GROUP TO PROTECT SELVES

Magill Announces Drive for Million Members.

The American Federation of Investors is starting a national drive to enroll a million members, Dr. Hugh S. Magill, president, announced yesterday. The federation, whose headquarters are in Chicago, is a nonpartisan organization, incorporated in Illinois, for the protection of the nation's investors.

Frank J. Loesch, Chicago attorney who for years has been active in fighting crime, has accepted the chairmanship of a national advisory council of the federation, Magill said.

Dr. Magill asserted recent economic developments have made increasingly apparent the need for organization of American investors to help preserve free enterprise and obtain fair treatment for investors.

Cites Investor's Losses.

"Vast losses have been sustained by millions of American citizens within recent months," said Dr. Magill. "These losses have fallen on the millions who share widely in the ownership of American industry. The continued doubts about our economic future and idle savings which cannot find investment have resulted in the tragedy of greatly increased unemployment.

"The American Federation of Investors believes the time has come for the great majority of middle class American citizens to unite for their self-protection. Our appeal is made to every citizen, and particularly to the 64,000,000 life insurance policy holders, the 48,000,000 savings bank and postal savings bank depositors, and the millions of other owners of any kind of property.

Reports 90,000 Members.

The federation since its formation four years ago has included 90,000 in its membership, according to Dr. Magill. He said local committees will be organized throughout the country to aid the membership campaign.

Coincident with the campaign, the federation is sending to more than 10,000 Chicagoans a survey which asks seven questions about economic conditions, governmental policies, and need for investors' organization.

The board of directors of the organization includes: Willard N. Boyden, vice president, Continental Casualty company of Chicago; J. L. Kraft, president, Kraft-Phenix Cheese company of Chicago; J. De Forest Richards, president, National Boulevard bank, Chicago, and Henry S. Nollen, president, Equitable Life Insurance Company of Iowa, Des Moines.

Cluett, Peabody & Co., Inc.

Investors' Guide: Please send me some information about Cluett, Peabody common stock.—R. J. D.

Answer: Cluett, Peabody & Co., Inc., manufactures men's popularly priced and high priced shirts, collars, underwear, neckwear, and handkerchiefs, principally under the trade name "Arrow" shirts account for about two-thirds of total sales volume.

Sales for 1937 rose to $21,571,163 from $18,436,268 in 1936, but net income declined to $728,741, or 72 cents a common share, from $1,279,043, or $1.84 a share, in 1936, due principally to special provisions in the 1937 income account for reduction of inventories from cost to market value. Operations were profitable throughout the depression years except in 1932, when a loss of $271,752 was shown.

The balance sheet for Dec. 31, 1937, showed total assets of $17,174,216. Current assets were $13,860,613 and current liabilities were $3,428,668. A year earlier current assets were $11,051,729 and current liabilities were $2,669,088.

The company had 33,990 shares of $100 par 7 per cent preferred stock and 677,844 shares of no par common stock outstanding at the end of 1937. During 1937 the number of authorized preferred shares was reduced from 38,000 to 33,990 shares and the authorized common was increased from 250,000 to 750,000 shares. Old common shares were split three for one and stockholders were given rights to purchase additional stock.

Dividends paid on the common during 1937 totaled $2 a share, of which $1.50 was paid prior to the splitup.

Distribution.

Investors' Guide: Which is more desirable as an investment, stock in a company which has its stock distributed in small quantities to a great number of people or stock in a company which has its stock distributed in large quantities to a few people?—P. W. H.

Answer: We can best answer your question by saying it depends on the individual company which investment is the better. Desirability of an investment is measured by earnings and financial stability rather than distribution of its stock. There is usually a better market for stock distributed in small quantities to a large number of persons, but this is distinctly of secondary importance.

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farms

By Frank Ridgway

The Sparrow Hawk.

March 31, 1938.

WHEN the handsome little sparrow hawk begins searching in fields and meadows for insects, the landowner should feel grateful that his property has attracted such a useful bird. The smallest and the most brightly colored of our North American hawks, the sparrow hawk [sometimes called the grasshopper or mouse hawk], prefers insectivorous food to everything else. If insects are not available the hawk will turn to mice and an occasional small bird.

We have watched these graceful hawks many times when they were hunting their food on the experimental farm. It's an easy species to identify because of its size. No other hawk measures just ten inches over all. And no other hawk sports such gay colors. The upper parts of the bird are bright chestnut, and on the head gray, black, brown, and white are blended into a beautiful color pattern.

Poises for Strike.

We have seen these birds perching on dead stubs on the farm, and also on fence and telephone posts along the roads. But usually these little hawks hover low over a field, looking for a grasshopper or other insect. In the few seconds before it strikes the sparrow hawk poises absolutely motionless with wings and tail spread as if some tricky air current were holding it in midair.

The sparrow hawk, aside from its size and bright colors, also has another characteristic which sets it apart from our other hawks. It is the only species that commonly will nest in a hole in a tree. We have heard that it sometimes will even take a good sized nesting box and build a nest in it. But we never have seen this happen on any farm or estate that we have visited. [If readers have seen a sparrow hawk occupy a nesting box we would like to hear about it.]

The sparrow hawk must be rated as one of the most useful of the entire hawk tribe. Not only does it destroy grasshoppers and other injurious insects, but it also kills field mice. Only a small toll is taken of beneficial birds. It will kill the common English sparrow . . . a habit which doubtless will win them a few cheers from bird fans.

Lives Off the Land.

But the little sparrow hawk is an opportunist. If insectivorous food is not abundant it turns to something else. When English sparrows are plentiful it is reasonable to expect the hawks to go after them. At Harvard university the sparrow hawks are quite at home around some of the buildings, nesting in the spires of buildings and elsewhere, and making sallies over the grounds to find English sparrows and insects.

In view of its beneficial habits, this trim handsome little hawk deserves protection from the farmer and landowner, as any bird that wars on crop-destroying grasshoppers ought to be given every opportunity to eat as many of the insects as it will.

SHELL UNION OIL, INTERLAKE IRON EARNINGS RISE

American Machine's Profits Lower.

Shell Union Oil corporation yesterday reported a moderate increase in profits for 1937. Higher earnings were also shown by the Interlake Iron corporation and Central and South West Utilities company. The American Machine and Foundry company and Acme Steel company reported reduced profits.

Consolidated net income of the Shell Union Oil amounted to $20,668,880, equal after preferred dividends, to $1.44 a common share. In 1936 the profit was $19,654,860, or $1.35 a common share. In addition, the company had in 1936 a nonrecurring profit of $2,839,504 on the sale of an investment in an affiliated company. Including this nonrecurring item, 1936 profit equaled $1.57 a common share.

Interlake Iron Has Gain.

Interlake Iron had consolidated net profit of $2,402,553 or $1.20 a share of capital stock, compared with 1936 earnings of $581,143, or 29 cents a share. Indicated profit for the fourth quarter of 1937 was $620,145, against $837,371 in the preceding three months, and $513,499 in the final quarter of 1936. Sales in 1937 increased to $25,528,878 from $19,265,159 in 1936.

Central and South West Utilities, a unit in the Middle West system, reported consolidated net income of $2,718,343, compared with $1,886,203 in 1936. Gail Belden, president, said in his message to stockholders that of the 1937 consolidated net income, about $670,000 was not available for distribution to Central and South West because of preferred dividend arrears of subsidiary companies.

Acme Steel company reported net earnings of $1,898,091, or $5.78 a share, against profit of $2,157,677, or $6.58 a share in the preceding year.

American Machine and Foundry.

Net profit of the American Machine and Foundry company and subsidiaries was $1,038,346, or $1.04 a common share, compared with 1936 profit of $1,210,440, or $1.21 a share.

International Cigar Machinery company had 1937 net profit of $1,482,556, or $2.47 a share, compared with 1936 profit of $1,419,714, or $2.27 a share.

Everyday Economics

[Registered U. S. Patent Office.]

Film Distribution.

Motion picture films never are sold outright to the exhibitor. The theater owner buys the right to exhibit them in his theater, usually contracting months in advance for specific pictures he selects. Upon his choice of films—based on the type of his theater's clientele—depends his success. He must select and display feature pictures, comedies, travelogues, short subjects, and news reels in the same manner that a grocer selects his stock—with the thought of pleasing the customer.

The price which the exhibitor must pay the film producer is based on the character and extent of the box office draw. Thus, a picture which may cost a Broadway or State street theater several thousand dollars to exhibit may be sold to the small rural theater for only a few dollars. Price factors are location of the theater, seating capacity, type of patronage, and the time which has elapsed since the picture first was released.

As small purchases from the wholesaler are more expensive than large ones to the grocer, so individual pictures bought from the producer are more expensive to the theater owner. To meet this problem a system of "block booking" has been established, allowing [or forcing] the exhibitor to contract at one time for all or a large part of a given producer's film output, at a rate per film that would be impossible if each picture had to be individually "sold" by the producer's agent.

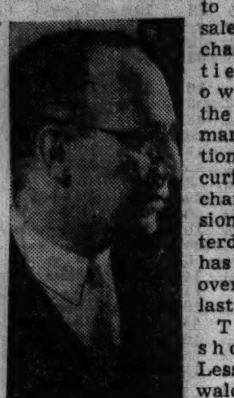
Officials Cut Stocks Held in Own Firms



Lessing J. Rosenwald.

Corporation officials and principal stockholders continued in February to make more sales than purchases of securities in their own companies, the monthly summary of transactions by the securities and exchange commission showed yesterday. Selling has had an edge over buying since last October.

The report showed that Lessing J. Rosenwald, chairman of Sears, Roebuck & Co., sold 5,000 common shares, reducing his holdings to 112,970 shares. Gen. Robert E. Wood, president, gave away 300 shares, leaving him 25,787 shares.

Grahams Sell Motor Stock.

Joseph B. Graham, president of Graham-Paige Motors corporation, sold 4,500 common shares of the company, leaving him 183,871 shares. Robert C. Graham, vice president, reduced his common stock holdings to 58,553 shares by the sale of 15,500 shares.

Three directors of Armour & Co. reported sales of the common stock. Elisha Walker, New York, indirectly disposed of 3,800 shares, leaving 15,000; Fred J. Leuckel, Trenton, N. J., cut his holdings to 17,600 shares by the sale of 1,200 shares, and Chase Ulman sold 800 shares, leaving him 9,000.

Several large sales of common stock of the Tri-Continental corporation, an investment trust, were reported. J. & W. Seligman & Co. through a holding company indirectly sold 11,700 shares, leaving 66,200, Walter Seligman, director, disposed of 4,000 shares, reducing holdings to 12,446. The New Palisades corporation, Jersey City, N. J., sold 11,700 shares, leaving 66,200 in its account.

Irving Fisher Sells Stock.

Irving Fisher, professor of economics at Yale university, a director of Sonotone corporation, sold 28,136 common shares of the company, leaving holdings of 70,000 shares.

Donald W. Douglas, president of the Douglas Aircraft company, reported the sale of 1,500 common shares, leaving him 5,800 shares.

The sale of 2,700 shares of common stock of Deere & Co. was reported by Dwight D. Wiman, director. This reduced his holdings to 25,959 shares.

William de Krafft, New York, chairman of the finance committee of the United States Rubber company, reported that he disposed of 2,400 common shares, including 300 by gift, leaving holdings of 1,600 shares.

The purchase of 1,000 shares of Chrysler corporation was reported by George W. Davison, a director of the company and chairman of the Central Hanover Bank and Trust company.

The Middle West corporation, Chicago, acquired legal title to 280,269 common shares of Central and South West Utilities held as collateral. The First National Bank of Chicago acquired in liquidation of a loan 5,604 common shares of Middle West corporation.

Other Transactions Reported.

ALLEGHENY STEEL—W. F. Detwiler, Brackenridge, Pa., president, sold 1,000 common shares, leaving 4,499 shares.

BACKSTAY WELT—Stewart H. Clark, director, Chicago, gave away 4,000 common shares, reducing holdings to 1,056 shares.

SEARS-ROEBUCK 4 WEEK SALES DIP 9.2 PER CENT

Sales of Sears, Roebuck & Co. amounted to $36,473,390 in the four weeks ended March 26, a decrease of 9.2 per cent from the total of $40,175,309 in the corresponding period of 1937, the company reported yesterday.

Part of the decline was attributed to the fact that the company had the benefit of pre-Easter shopping a year ago. The holiday does not come until April 17 this year.

For the eight weeks ended March 26—first two months of the current fiscal year—sales totaled $66,622,000, or 6 per cent less than the $70,900,732 sales in the corresponding 1937 period. The decline in the first four weeks of the current year was only 1.9 per cent.

STOCKS PLUNGE AFTER ADVANCE EARLIER IN DAY

Rally Only Mildly Toward Close.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 31.—The stock market took another drubbing today. Although a better tone which developed in the closing hours enabled the list to make a slight recovery from a sharp crack-up that resulted from a selling wave just after midday, closing prices were fractions to 3 points lower, with many issues entering new low territory for the year and longer.

Volume for the day was approximately 1,271,000 shares, with the bulk of trading coming just after the noon hour. A heavy wave of offerings came into the market at that time and wiped out early gains of fractions to two points that had been chalked up in three hours of slow but steady advance.

Trading Outruns Ticker.

Pressure was so urgent at the height of the attack that the ticker was delayed for several minutes.

The action of U. S. Steel common again was typical of the majority of pivotals. The stock started at 40¼, a gain of ⅜ of a point, climbed to 41⅝, then dropped to 38 in large supply, only to rebound to 39¼ for a net loss of ⅜ of a point. Other steels finished close to or at previous finals.

General Motors proved to be the chief weak spot in the industrial list, dropping 1⅜ points to 25⅞ in the most active trading of the day. Chrysler came to within a minor fraction of its Wednesday final price.

International Nickel continued weak in the copper group, slumping 1⅛ points, while other coppers were mixed. Kennecott and Cerro de Pasco worked into the plus column, but American Smelting and Anaconda lost fractions after being a point or so lower.

Chemical Leaders Lower.

Du Pont in the chemicals swung between 98 and 90 to close at 94, off 1¾ points. Allied Chemical did not fare as well, losing 3¼ points. Others lost as much as du Pont.

Some good recoveries were made in the railroad sector. New York Central, Southern Railway, Northern Pacific, and Illinois Central pushed into the plus column with fractional advances, and Southern Pacific closed unchanged. Weak spots were Santa Fe off 1⅛ points, and Union Pacific, off 3⅝.

General Electric made a new low with a loss of ⅝ of a point. Other heavy machinery shares lost from ¼ to 2 points. The former loss was incurred by International Harvester, while Westinghouse dropped the two points.

Aviation issues provided a bright spot in the list.

STOCK EXCHANGE SELECTS BENSON AS CHAIRMAN

Thaddeus R. Benson yesterday was elected chairman of the board of governors and appointed president pro tem of the Chicago Stock exchange at the first meeting of the board of governors under the exchange's new constitution. Benson will serve as chairman until the annual election June 6. The board voted to take no action on the selection of the new nonmember salaried president until after the June election.

Among those mentioned as possible candidates for the presidency are E. Cloud Wampler and Robert J. Fischer. Wampler is vice president of Lawrence Stern & Co. and a member of the exchange's advisory board, but not a member of the exchange. Fischer, a former member of the governing committee and now a member of the exchange, would have to give up his membership to be eligible for the presidency.

Benson appointed members of the five committees and the advisory board provided under the new program. Members of the executive committee, which has full powers of the boards between meetings, are: Warren A. Lamson, Michael J. O'Brien, Harry M. Payne, Paul B. Skinner, and Wallace C. Winter.

BOHN ALUMINUM OMITS COMMON STOCK DIVIDEND

The Bohn Aluminum and Brass corporation yesterday omitted the dividend due at this time on its common stock. Charles B. Bohn, president, said dividends will be resumed as soon as operations return to a profitable basis. Last year's payments were 75 cents each April 1 and July 1, and $1.25 each on Oct. 1 and Dec. 21.

Fisk Rubber pfd. $1.50 q..Apr. 20 Apr. 11
N. Y. Trap R. pfd. $1.75 q..Apr. 1 Mar. 21
Royal Typewriter 75c......Apr. 15 Apr. 5

Dividends omitted—United States Cold Storage [preferred]; Northwest Engineering.

CANCO AMERICAN CAN COMPANY

Hearst Halts Payments on Big N. Y. Hotel

New York, March 31.—[Special.]—W. R. Hearst and associates will relinquish ownership of the Ritz Tower, $6,000,000 luxurious skyscraper apartment hotel at the northeast corner of Park avenue and 57th street, under a plan by which the bondholders will gain control of the property. That was learned tonight.

Representatives of Hearst announced the real estate division of American Newspapers, Inc., topmost holding company for the Hearst publications, had informed the Continental Bank and Trust company, as trustee, that further payments of interest and amortization on the first mortgage 6 per cent bonds of the Parkab corporation, secured by a trust mortgage on the Ritz Tower, would not be continued.

Bank to Take Over Property.

As a result of this action the bank will step in and take over the property for the benefit of the bondholders without having to institute foreclosure proceedings.

The decision to relinquish interest in the Ritz Tower property was said to be the first step in a program calling for gradual liquidation of nearly all of the New York real estate holdings of Hearst outside of his newspaper properties.

The hotel action follows by a few days the announcement that Clarence J. Shearn, former Supreme court justice and former president of the Association of the Bar of the City of New York, had been appointed trustee to reorganize the vast Hearst enterprises.

The hotel was given up not only because it had been found unprofitable but also because it was recognized as "no part of a newspaper publishing enterprise."

The forty-one story building was erected by the late Arthur Brisbane, an associate of Hearst, in 1926. It was financed by a loan of about $4,000,000 from S. W. Straus & Co. and upon completion was said to have been appraised at $6,000,000.

Acquired by Hearst in 1927.

The property was conveyed to Hearst late in 1927 and the outstanding mortgage indebtedness at that time was reported to have been $4,458,333. The first mortgage bond issue had been created by the Parkab corporation in 1924, and amortization and interest payments on the issue are understood to have been made regularly up to this year.

The total net loss on this property in 1935 was said to have been $592,946 after taxes and other charges, and the net loss in 1936 was placed at $458,177. The last partial payment on the bonds was made last November. This amounted to $160,500, reducing the amount of outstanding bonds to $2,634,000.

OUSTED BROKER SUES WHITNEY, ALSO EXPELLED

New York, March 31.—[Special.]—Joseph D. Frankel, a member of the New York Stock exchange for seventeen years until his expulsion in 1933, brought suit for $5,000,000 today in the Supreme court against Richard Whitney, the former president, on the grounds that there was no basis for his expulsion. Whitney also has been expelled and is now awaiting sentence on two charges of grand larceny to which he has pleaded guilty.

In an affidavit Frankel declared that "since I had failed to enrich myself at the expense of others, this apparently did not meet with the approval of Mr. Whitney." He asked that the exchange be required to produce its records, so that he may seek the basis of the charges against him.

He said he was expelled because he had failed to collect money to which he was entitled and because he was alleged to have allowed a rebate to a customer whom he failed to charge a commission.

The motion will be heard April 6.

COURT DECISION MAY BOOST REPAYMENTS TO BANK DEPOSITORS

Prospects for additional repayments to depositors of defunct Illinois banks were strengthened yesterday by a ruling of the United States District court at Washington, D. C., ordering postal savings trustees to return $454,000 of bonds posted by the Woodlawn Trust and Savings bank, Chicago, to secure deposits of the postal savings system in that bank.

The Woodlawn suit, filed by William L. O'Connell, then general receiver for closed banks in Illinois, on Oct. 28, 1935, was regarded as a test case to determine the status of collateral posted with the postal savings trustees by banks which later closed.

Edward J. Barrett, state auditor, estimated that between $600,000 and $700,000 of collateral would be returned to closed Illinois banks if the receiver's office finally wins the litigation. Postal savings trustees may file an appeal to the United States Supreme court.

In filing the original action, O'Connell contended that funds of the postal savings system were private deposits that could not be given a preferred status and that the institution had no authority under its charter to pledge the bonds as security for postal deposits.

The Woodlawn bank closed June 22, 1932. Since that time it has repaid depositors $606,694, or 30 per cent.

WORLD SILVER PRICES RALLY; U. S. PAYS SAME

World silver prices showed first signs of improvement yesterday since leading markets were demoralized by the announcement last week-end that the United States would buy no more silver from Mexico. In London the price advanced 0.91 of a cent to 42.05 cents an ounce and in Montreal nominal quotations on futures moved up 0.10 to 1.05 cents an ounce.

The United States treasury again entered a bid of 43 cents an ounce for foreign silver, the same as Wednesday. The treasury's price was marked down 1 cent on each of the first two days of this week.

Gold imports received at the port of New York during the week ended Wednesday consisted of $9,190,000 from England, $4,170,000 from Belgium, and $3,475,000 from India. There were no exports. Engagements of gold yesterday for shipment to the United States included $500,000 in England and $2,000,000 in Belgium.

TRAIN LENGTH BILL IS KILLED BY HOUSE GROUP

Washington, D. C., March 31.—(AP)—The house interstate commerce committee today killed a senate bill to limit the length of freight trains to 70 cars. The vote was 14 to 7. The association of American railroads opposed the legislation on the ground that a limit of any kind would increase their costs of operation—an increase they said they could ill-afford.

Bills for a special unemployment insurance program for rail workers were drawn by Senator Wagner [D., N. Y. and Representative Crosser [D., Ohio]. Their legislation would tax railroad workers' pay up to $300 a month at 3 per cent, the levy to be paid by the carriers. It would remove railroad employés from state unemployment insurance systems. Rail labor executives favor such a program, contending workers in interstate commerce are not adequately protected.

We take pleasure in announcing that

Freight Drop Is Predicted by Shippers

Reflecting the decline in business throughout the country, shippers estimate they will require 17.7 per cent less freight cars to handle shipments in the second quarter of this year than they actually used in the second quarter of 1937, the thirteen shippers advisory boards reported yesterday.

The shippers expect they will use 4,989,844 freight cars in the second quarter of this year, compared with 6,060,366 cars actually loaded in the like 1937 period. The estimate is based on twenty-nine principal commodities.

Of the 13 boards, only one—the southwest—expects that it will use more freight cars than in 1937. The increase forecast by the southwest board is only 1.7 per cent.

Comparisons by Districts.

*Increase.

The 13 boards reported that of the 29 commodities covered in their estimate decreases are expected in shipments of 23 and increases in 6.

Chief Declines Expected.

The largest declines from the second quarter of 1937 are expected to be: Ore and concentrates, 52.5 per cent; automobiles, trucks, and parts, 42.4 per cent; iron and steel, 41.6 per cent; brick and clay products, 24.1 per cent; chemicals and explosives, 22.1 per cent, and machinery and boilers, 20.3 per cent.

Increases expected are: Grain, 34.4 per cent; citrus fruit, 23.4 per cent; fresh fruits, 23.5 per cent; cottonseed and products except oil, 12.9 per cent; fresh vegetables other than potatoes, 1.6 per cent, and live stock, 0.5 per cent.

ALLEGHANY CORP. PROFITS BY RAIL STOCK DIVIDEND

The Alleghany corporation, top holding company in the Van Sweringen rail group, yesterday reported net profit to earned surplus of $9,780,560 for 1937, against a net loss of $158,382 for 1936. The larger part of the increase was derived from 255,600 shares of Chesapeake and Ohio railroad stock, which was received on Nov. 30 as an extra dividend on the 1,278,000 shares of Chesapeake corporation capital stock. The shares received were listed in Alleghany's income account at $9,776,700.

The Chesapeake corporation, a holding company controled by the Alleghany corporation which controls the Chesapeake and Ohio railroad, reported 1937 net income to earned surplus of $9,808,843, against $10,241,376 for 1936.

Hawaii's Value to U. S. Told by Ex-Governor

Lawrence M. Judd.

The territory of Hawaii is important to the United States economically, as a strategic military base in the mid-Pacific, and as a vacation land for Americans, Lawrence M. Judd, former governor of the territory, said yesterday in an address before the Kiwanis club at the Hotel Sherman.

Judd, now a representative of the Honolulu Chamber of Commerce, urged close economic coöperation between the territory and the mainland because the islands are an important supplier of foodstuffs with an annual trade valued at 200 million dollars. He said that American sugar producers, including those in Hawaii, which provides one-sixth of the 6,000,000 tons of sugar consumed annually in the United States, "should work in the closest coöperation."

Have Common Interest.

"American sugar producers," he said, "have a common enemy—foreign competition. They have a common interest in protecting American industry. And they have a natural obligation to discharge, because it is vital that the nation be as nearly self-sustaining as possible, particularly in the matter of foods.

"Practically the entire population of the territory derives a livelihood, directly and indirectly, from agriculture, and nearly one-half of the population directly from the sugar cane industry. Anything said in behalf of her sugar industry is not the special pleading of an industry—it is the voice of an entire American commonwealth."

The United States, Judd said, has recognized the Hawaiian Islands as "the pivot on which world events seem destined to swing" and has made them her mid-Pacific stronghold by fortifying them as formidably as possible.

Strongly Defended Base.

The navy has spent more than $215,000,000 to make Pearl Harbor the most strongly defended base in the world, with a shelter large enough to hold the entire United States fleet, he said. The army spent more than $400,000,000 in Hawaii for military highways, guns, ammunition depots, anti-aircraft batteries, and an army post manned by about 20,000 troops. An enemy attacking Hawaii would have to land 100,000 men to subdue the islands, according to the opinion of military experts, Judd said.

"For offensive tactics also," he said, "in any war on the Pacific the terirtory would be of great value because it adds 2,000 miles to the mobility of our air and sea forces."

BANK CLEARINGS SMALLEST SINCE NOVEMBER OF 1934

New York, March 31.—[Special.]—Bank clearings in the week ended March 30 were the smallest for any full week since that ended Nov. 28, 1934, Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., reported today. For twenty consecutive weeks the aggregate clearings of 22 leading cities have been below the total of the preceding year.

The total for the latest week was $4,505,667,000, a decline of 21.8 per cent from the corresponding week last year. The decline from the preceding week was $682,085,000, or 24 per cent.

New York clearings shrank 23.3 per cent from last year's figures, and Chicago's total fell 19.7 per cent.

CHICAGO MONEY FLEES TO AVOID APRIL 1 TAX

200 Million Dollars Leave in Week.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

The report of Chicago banks issued yesterday by the federal reserve system disclosed that nearly two hundred million dollars of deposits were transferred out of the city last week to evade the April 1 tax assessment on personal property. In the last six weeks demand deposits of Chicago banks have declined nearly 300 millions as depositors pulled out funds in anticipation of the tax inventory.

The flight of capital from Chicago over the tax date has occurred annually for years. This year's movement of funds is larger than last year's. The heavier withdrawals are ascribed to the aggressive drive of County Assessor John S. Clark to list on the tax books personal property that in the past has not been returned for tax purposes.

Permit Balances to Fall.

Out of state corporations that maintain Chicago bank balances accounted for most of the withdrawals, bankers said. These corporations permit their Chicago bank balances to run down prior to April 1 by not making their usual deposits. Their balances are gradually built up again after the tax date.

Resident corporations and individuals have also sought to evade the tax by converting deposits into short term tax exempt securities which mature soon after April 1. As an accommodation for customers Chicago banks usually subscribe for such securities for resale in the month prior to April 1. The extent of such investments this year was not made plain by yesterday's bank statement. Holdings of direct government securities reported by the banks were 16 millions above the preceding week's figures.

Demand Deposit Figures.

Total demand deposits of Chicago banks on Wednesday were 1 billion 100 million dollars, compared with 1 billion 303 million a week earlier and 1 billion 392 million on March 2.

Bank deposits are assessed on the same basis as securities by taking 20 per cent of the full value and applying the 37 per cent equalization factor to arrive at the taxable value.

Chicago banks reported a moderate expansion last week in business credit. Loans to commercial, industrial, and agricultural borrowers increased 8 million dollars over the preceding week. New York banks reported a small decline in commercial loans and a drop of 33 million dollars in collateral loans to brokers and dealers.

The reserve reported an increase of 13 millions in monetary gold in the week. The excess reserves of all member banks of the federal system were unchanged from the preceding week at 1 billion 560 million, the highest mark they have reached since the present bank reserve requirements went into effect May 1, 1937.

Bank to Repay $464,073 to 12,000 Depositors

Payment of 10 per cent to 12,000 depositors of the defunct Chicago Bank of Commerce was authorized yesterday by Edward J. Barrett, state auditor. The disbursement amounts to $464,073, and brings the total repayments to 35 per cent.

Still Lower Prices?

As an organization specializing in international economic research, it has been our unpleasant duty to forecast and explain the reasons for the rapid breakdown in the American price level and the financial crisis we are now facing.

On January 10, 1937, our advertisement headed "Rich Today—Poor Tomorrow" warned of the impending financial and business collapse.

In August that year, we published William J. Baxter's startling 50,000-word book — "America Faces Its Greatest Business Depression".

In subsequent advertisements headed "Lower Prices" (November 28, 1937) and "The Coming Commodity Price Breakdown" (March 13, 1938), we announced the unpopular conclusions which our independent studies had forced us to discuss in our current weekly bulletins.

These weekly bulletins are available to corporation executives, bankers, investors, etc., at the cost of $80 per year. AS A SPECIAL INTRODUCTORY OFFER we will send you our annual review and forecast and the last three confidential reports of the Bureau upon receipt of your order for an annual subscription.

"America Faces Its Greatest Business Depression" ($1.50) is available through your book dealer or send check direct to this Bureau for delivery by return mail.

Stocks, Bonds

New York Bonds.

New York, March 31.—(AP)—The bond market moved to new low ground today with the pace accelerated by a considerable drop in United States governments and top grade corporate loans.

Bonds of secondary rating continued to slide back under moderate but persistent selling and general lack of support.

United States governments at one time showed losses ranging to ¾ of a point, but in late dealings treasuries, which had been under the heaviest pressure, rallied a little. Closing prices were 4/32ds to 11/32ds lower. Government dealers reported some liquidation by interior banks.

Rails again found it difficult to absorb a moderate flow of selling, and some issues fell to 2 to around 6 points. Most foreign groups recorded losses.

Transactions totaled $9,783,000, against $10,107,450 yesterday.

Chicago Stocks.

Chicago stock prices declined again yesterday. The total of 120 issues traded yesterday was the largest since Dec. 29, 1937, when 145 issues were traded.

Middle West, the trading favorite, dropped ⅜ to 4⅛. Commonwealth Edison closed at 22, off ¾. Unchanged were Chicago corporation at 1⅝, Cities Service at 1, and Armour at 4. Marshall Field advanced ⅛ to 5¾. Swift International rose ⅜ at 22½.

Trading on the exchange in March totaled 693,000 shares, compared with 407,000 in February and 1,631,000 in March, 1937. For the first quarter of 1938, volume was 1,695,000, against 5,842,000 in the first three months of 1937.

Bank Stocks.

First National bank stock was a weak spot among Chicago bank shares yesterday, declining $7 a share to $149 bid, $153 asked. The stock has slumped $16 a share this week. Continental Illinois National shares were quoted down $1 at $47.50 bid, $49.50 asked, by one dealer, and at $48.50 bid, $50.50 asked by another dealer.

Northern Trust shares declined $5 to $495 bid, $510 asked, a $25 drop for the week. One dealer, however, quoted the shares at $500 bid, unchanged from Wednesday. City National shares were off $1. Chicago Title and Trust company stock declined $3 to $102 bid, $105 asked, down $16 since last Saturday.

Among smaller banks Mercantile Trust and Savings was down $3 at $132 bid, $140 asked. Terminal National was quoted $20 bid, $23 asked, down $2 a share, by one dealer. Another listed it unchanged at $22 bid, $25 asked.

Commodities

Commodity futures, again led by rubber and hide contracts, took another drop yesterday. The Dow-Jones average of futures was off 0.46 to 49.66 [1924-'26 equals 100] at the close. This compared with 54.20 a month earlier [Feb. 28].

Crude rubber futures closed 0.33 to 0.44 cent lower, with the May quotation at 10.33 cents a pound, down nearly 2⅛ cents for the week.

Hides were sold heavily, with losses for the day of 0.45 to 0.46 cent a pound. The June contract closed at 7.67 cents.

Nominal prices for tin futures again dropped, slipping 0.45 cent a pound with little buying interest. Copper contracts closed easier, with declines of 0.04 to 0.10 cent. Zinc and lead futures were unchanged. Copper in the export spot market sold at 9.50 to 9.58 cents a pound early in the day, near Wednesday's range, but late prices fell to 9.45 cents. Domestic copper, lead and zinc were unchanged in the cash market.

Sugar futures advanced on scattered buying by trade and commission houses. Refiners reduced the price of refined sugar 0.05 cent a pound to 4.50 cents in the southern territory, but left in the southern territory, but left prices for other territories unchanged at 4.55 to 4.65 cents. Coffee was irregular.

Cash commodities on the whole again moved downward. The Associated Press index of 35 weighted wholesale commodities dropped to 68.53, to its lowest level since October, 1934. On Wednesday, the index stood at 68.60 [1926 equals 100].

REO DIRECTORS DRIVE TO OUST MANAGEMENT

Three Seek Proxies for Annual Meeting.

New York, March 31.—[Special.]—Declaring that they wish a new management to operate the Reo Motor Car company, three directors—William Loeb, Frank A. Vanderlip Jr., and Charles G. Sinclair Jr.—yesterday asked stockholders for proxies for the annual meeting scheduled on April 9. The directors said they are taking this action because "the present management has refused to act on a constructive program even when the 1937 loss of $1,982,292 brought the four year loss total to $4,559,618."

Reo Motor Car is one of the oldest automobile companies in the business. It was formed in 1904. Its headquarters are in Lansing, Mich. Early in 1937 the company discontinued the manufacture of passenger cars.

Report Losses Every Year.

The directors said that losses have been incurred every year since the present management took office. Rowland Campbell is chairman of the board.

"Mr. Campbell, although he had no previous experience in the automobile industry, has assumed executive direction of a highly technical business," the directors said. "His entire support comes from the old directors whose policies have so long, in our estimation, caused the company to lose money.

Would Change Top Officers.

"Since he depends solely on these directors, Mr. Campbell has made no comprehensive changes in the management and has confined himself to insignificant changes in the lower ranks. What is required is a complete change in the top ranking officers."

The directors said that the management they would put in control consist of persons with long and successful experience in the automobile and truck industry, and that they would elect to the board four Detroit men familiar with the truck and bus industry.

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK

Live costs of hogs were reduced again yesterday in an extremely draggy trade, despite continued light receipts. A cut of 10 cents in the average price to $8.70 brought the general level of prices to the lowest point in more than a month. However, cutouts still were unfavorable due to break of 50 cents per hundred pounds in the wholesale market for fresh pork.

Some recovery was registered in live stock markets. Only 3,000 cattle arrived, and this enabled sellers to check breaking prices and in some instances obtain advances of 10 to 15 cents over the lowest quotations prevailing the preceding day.

Slaughter lambs sold steady to 15 cents higher, but the upturn was forced and trading progressed slowly.

Chicago's February Business Registers General Decline

Business in Chicago during February retreated all along the line, the Chicago Association of Commerce said yesterday in its monthly survey. In only two lines included in the survey were advances shown over February, 1937. These were the number of telephones in use and the number of persons using airplanes.

One of the sharpest drops was in new building. Only fifty-six minor permits, having a valuation of $328,250 were issued, against 105 valued at $2,323,310 in February, 1937.

Bank clearings showed a sharp decline. Postal receipts, which for a time were not affected by the slump, were more than $100,000 below the 1937 volume.

Automobile registrations were about a half what they were a year ago, department store sales declined, and activity at the stockyards decreased. Statistics follow:

GRAINS RECEDE; WHEAT IS NEAR LOW FOR SEASON

Markets Influenced by Decline in Stocks.

Weakness in foreign markets and a further break in securities resulted in lower prices on the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday. Wheat declined about 1½ cents at the extreme and came within small fractions of a cent a bushel of the lowest level of the season, closing with net losses of 1 to 1⅛ cents. Corn was ⅛ to ¼ cent a bushel lower.

General liquidation developed in lard futures yesterday with net losses of 27½ to 37½ cents. Cash and Mav lard sold at $7.85 per 100 pounds, the lowest price recorded on the Board of Trade since August, 1934.

Expect Big Crop Estimates.

Expectations that estimates on the new winter wheat crop to be issued shortly by Chicago statisticians would suggest a near bumper yield tended to increase bearish sentiment.

A winter wheat crop of 692,000,000 bushels, compared with 685,000,000 bushels harvested in 1937, was estimated yesterday by Mrs. E. H. Miller in a report to Shields & Co. The prospective yield was 69,000,000 bushels in excess of the 1923-'32 average crop.

Liverpool wheat futures closed 2 to 2⅛ cent a bushel lower, the market being affected by cheaper Australian offerings and a decline in the United Kingdom demand for flour.

Cargill Buys More Corn.

Wet weather in the central west curtailed country offerings of cash corn yesterday. Purchases for deferred shipment to Chicago were estimated at 150,000 bushels, the bulk of which was secured by the Cargill Grain company, which was said to have bid about ¼ cent a bushel above the "cash grain call" price bid by members of the exchange.

Engineering Construction Awards Ahead of Year Ago

New York, March 31.—(AP)—Engineering construction awards for the week ended Tuesday amounted to $37,109,000, which was under the preceding week, but 7 per cent ahead of the corresponding week last year, Engineering News-Record reported today. Figures follow:
